they sell at a low figure most of the time.

American Beauties are holding their own wonderfully well for so late in the season, and the price is still firm, but Maryland, Killarney and Radiance can be bought for little money these days. Carnations are away down in price. Smilax is scarce and Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri are not especially good. Adiantum is fairly good, but there is little or no demand for it at present. Gardenias are scarce and demand a fancy price, while garden roses are about finished.

Strange to say, the trade in bedding plants is not yet supplied. Orders come in daily for seedlings of all kinds, also geraniums, salvias, cannas, caladiums, Boston ivy, etc. Veranda and window boxes and vases are still being filled, and there is an occasional inquiry about transplanting rose bushes.

Trade in general is quieting down; people are leaving for the country and things would seem dull if it were not for the Shriners' convention, to be held here next week. That event will no doubt liven trade up somewhat.

Various Notes.

Ambrose Saecker is growing some good sweet peas, the first of which found a ready market last week.

Geo. Hart's store will be open for one hour only on Sundays during July and August.

Here's a Mighty Fine Opportunity for a good man who knows the Nursery Business, or a firm that wants a branch house

I own one of the best greenhouse and nursery plants in the country—50,000 feet of glass is now in carnations and 130 acres in general nursery stock. I am a banker, a mighty busy man, and cannot give this enterprise the attention it deserves. A reliable nursery firm or a competent man who possesses good business ability will be sold a half interest at a fair price and on reasonable terms. It is desirable—but not absolutely necessary—that such a man should have a knowledge of greenhouse management, and a married man is preferable. This locality is unexcelled for growing many kinds of nursery stock, and I believe it is an opportunity for a nursery firm or a capable man to establish a splendid business. If you feel that you are the type of a partner I am looking for, and can invest from $15,000 to $20,000, write to me at once.

Peach budders, who know how, wanted now.

Splendid Opportunity!!

WANTED—As working foreman and partner, man of large and practical experience as commercial grower of roses, carnations, all cut flowers and every pot plant; designer and decorator; landscape gardener, forcing and propagating; also must be good truck farmer. Party must have best of references as to honesty, capability, sobriety and steadiness. Married man preferred.

TO SUCH A MAN I CAN OFFER EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

of getting into business for himself. I have just purchased Abingdon Place, containing 95 acres and known for thirty years as the handsomest show place and finest residence in north Alabama and am desirous of establishing commercial greenhouses and a truck farm on the place. With the proper man I will enter into a partnership arrangement whereby I will furnish him, free, a new five-room cottage on the place and all the land needed for a large floral business and truck farm—as much as he will undertake to work. The place is already equipped with a greenhouse 25x50 feet, having ventilators operated by turning wheels and heated by Hitchings hot water system. The heater is large enough to heat a greenhouse twice the size of the present one. There is a second greenhouse 14x40 feet, partly under ground and needing little heat. In addition to the greenhouses there is a large quantity of sash and glass for propagating beds.

Abingdon Place is partly within the city limits of Huntsville, Alabama, and three-quarters of a mile from the center of the city, with boulevard and paved sidewalks all the way in. Huntsville has a population of between twenty and twenty-five thousand, located on the Southern R. R. and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway, and besides being a splendid local market, with practically no competition, is so close to, and has such fine railroad facilities, that the markets of Memphis, Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn., Birmingham, Ala., and Atlanta, Ga., are all open to this business. Have already been offered contract to raise double violets for one of the largest greenhouses in the south. Huntsville is both a summer and winter resort for northern people and is known as the healthiest place and having the most delightful climate in the south, surrounded by the Cumberland Mountains. 1800 feet above sea level.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The extremely hot weather last week was anything but beneficial to the cut flower market, which was considered dull. A few of the large stores reported some good-sized funeral orders, but anything outside of that was small. Stock is plentiful, but of poor quality. About the only flowers of good quality are gladioli, lilies and valley. Roses ship in poorly and open quickly; the market has plenty of these. Carnations are much off in size and color and the bulk of them do not bring over $10 per thousand. All outdoor stock is suffering for want of rain. Adiantum, smilax and asparagus sold well all the week. Fancy ferns, too, were in good demand.

Club Anniversary.

The twenty-fifth anniversary banquet of the Florists' Club took place Wednesday evening, June 28, at Pechmann's hotel, and fifty-three members were seated at the tables. The large room was nicely decorated with palms and the tables with cut flowers, and the members voted it one of the best affairs the club has yet given.

After a splendid feast, Toastmaster J. F. Ammann called on George Asmus, president of the S. A. F., who spoke on S. A. F. matters. H. B. Dorner, of Urbana, Ill., secretary of the S. A. F., was next called on for a talk on "The Relationship of the S. A. F. to Florists' Clubs." President Connon spoke on "The Florists' Club," and Luther Armstrong on "The Early Days of the Florists' Club," he being the first secretary. C. C. Sanders spoke on "The Retail Florists' Association." H. C. Irish, E. W. Guy and S. Kehrmann were also called on for short talks.

There were only four members present who attended the first meeting of the club, twenty-five years ago. They were E. W. Guy, L. Armstrong, C. A. Juengel and S. Kehrmann. J. S. Wilson, a charter member, sent a congratulatory telegram from his home in Des Moines, Ia.

The Florists' Club will hold its regular monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, July 13, at 2 o'clock. The nomination of officers will take place and a large attendance is looked for.

Chairman De Wever has called a meeting of the bulletin committee for Thursday afternoon, July 13, at 1 o'clock, in the rooms of the Florists' Club in Odd Fellows' building. The meeting is quite important and he requests a full attendance.

Various Notes.

The Standard Scale & Fixture Co., local agent for the McCray Refrigerator Co., has placed a number of florists' boxes this summer. The firm has a good display of boxes at its salesroom in the Coliseum building.

Walter Pilcher never forgets to pass out good cigars on his birthday. His thirty-ninth birthday was celebrated last week. He has just started cutting a fine lot of America gladioli; the first spikes brought 12½ cents.

C. E. De Wever, at Clayton, will this week begin cutting fine gladiolus spikes. His place is finely equipped with the Skinner irrigation system. His roses in the field are in excellent condition.

The C. Young & Sons Co. will hold a stockholders' meeting and election of officers next week. The company has had a prosperous season in all lines.

C. C. Sanders left June 28 for a trip to Chicago to buy material for a new greenhouse, to be built at his Henley road place. He reports a good business season in nursery stock, plants and flowers.

Miss M. S. Newman has sent an announcement that her store will be closed during the months of July and August and will be reopened September 3. She and Miss Armstrong will spend the summer in the east.

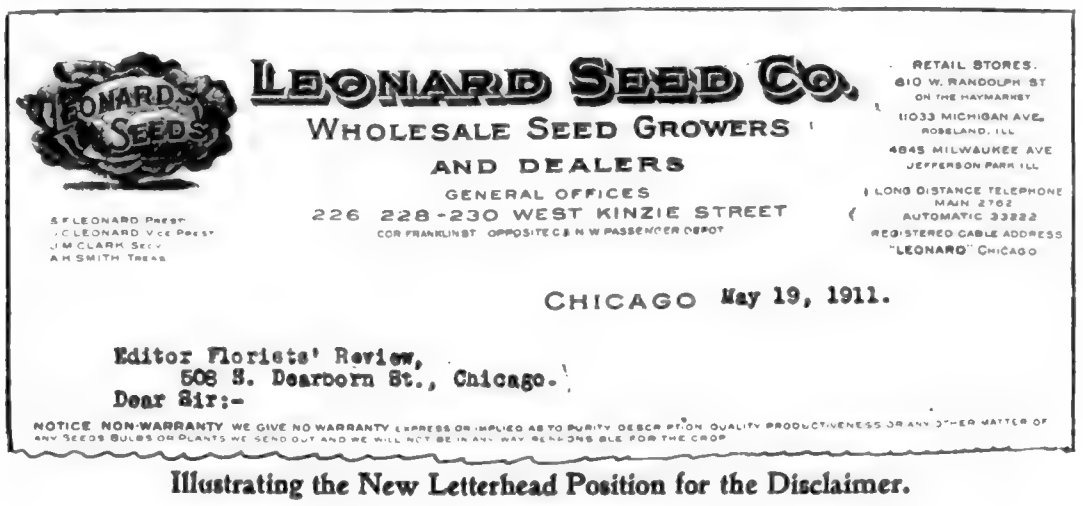
Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; First Vice-Pres., M. H. Duryea, New York City; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

THE Holland seed growers are having to contend with a dry season.

THE Everett B. Clark Seed Co., of Milford, Conn., is about to build a brick warehouse, 38x62 feet and three stories high.



PEAS are spotty; there are some good fields and some bad fields, with the average rather below what the growers would like for this date, even with a larger acreage than is out.

SUCH radish as there is in Michigan looks fairly well, but several growers who have had big pieces of radish in this territory in recent years have gone elsewhere with their crops.

NEW POSITION OF DISCLAIMER.

An attorney whose specialty is commercial law states that it is no new thing for the courts to hold that a contract is not to be affected by something that is entirely outside the contract, and not referred to in it, even though that something may be jotted down upon the same piece of paper on which the contract is written. A contract, in short, has a definite place of beginning and a definite end, and nothing can affect it which is written or printed in the margin, or on the other side of the sheet, or on another sheet of the same paper or book. Marginal matter, or other matter outside the body of the contract, may be incorporated by being referred to in the contract proper, but not otherwise. A case in which the Supreme Court of the United States so held some time ago is that reported in 150 U. S., 312. Here the court says that the contract is to be construed according to the terms stated in the correspondence, "and as it was clearly expressed in the writings between the parties, it could not be varied by the terms of the printed billhead of the invoice."

In Illinois it has been held that "printed matter in a letterhead forms no part of the letter written on the sheet, and will not qualify an absolute contract which results from an acceptance of an offer by such letter." See 153 Ill., 102. As a result of The Review having called attention to the latter decision as affecting the validity of the disclaimer, as usually printed on seedsmen's stationery, some seedsmen some time ago shifted the position of the disclaimer on their letterheads, bringing it to a point where it immediately follows the words "Dear Sirs," or "Gentlemen," as ordinarily filled in by the typewriter. The accompanying illustration is a photographic reproduction of such a new letterhead. By its use, where a contract results by an offer and acceptance, both by letter, the non-warranty is unquestionably a part of the contract.

Though this position for the disclaimer is new in the seed trade, firms in other lines have for years used it in conformity with the Illinois decision quoted above.

BURPEE SAILS SANS PAJAMAS.

When you sail for Europe and find you have forgotten to pack your toothbrush, you can remedy the oversight, with the aid of the wireless and aeroplane. And it was a seedsman who conceived the idea—only Mr. Burpee's parcel fell into the sea.

With the president of the National Sweet Pea Society on board the giant White Star liner, Olympic, on its maiden voyage eastward, June 28, Thomas Sopwith undertook to deliver to him a package from a New York department store. It was planned that as soon as the giant White Star liner should appear off Liberty Light the aviator should ascend with the bundle for Mr. Burpee on the seat beside him, sail over the bay, follow the Olympic until he could make sure that he could drop the bundle on the deck, and then fly back to his starting point, the Crescent Club. While several hundred members of the club and guests looked on from the shore, Sopwith was seen to sail gracefully out over the bay and to follow the Olympic southward. Then he was seen to take a downward swoop, until it seemed from the shore that he would land on the deck of the liner. But with fine precision, showing that his biplane was under perfect control, he arose again, and as he started upward a white object was seen to drop toward the steamship. Across the bay came the raucous sound of the salute of the Olympic's whistle. The decks of the steamship were suddenly seen to become white with waving handkerchiefs. But a wireless reported the parcel fell into the sea.

ROHNERT INCREASES ACREAGE.

Waldo Rohnert has purchased from the Ausaymas Ranch Co., Hollister, Cal., 286 acres of land for $50,000. The land is located about one-half mile southeast of Dunneville Corners, adjoining a tract of 200 acres owned by Mr. Rohnert, and the entire 486 acres will be used for a seed farm. The land just purchased is considered the best in San Benito county for seed raising, and this is one of the most important real estate transactions that has taken place in the county for some time.

Correspondingly high readings were made all over the pea and bean districts at the opening of the week.

Such extreme shade temperatures, coming at a critical time for the peas, have done great damage, cooking the vines, inducing premature ripening and still further reducing a crop that never had a chance of being large.

MAINE POTATO OUTLOOK.

According to G. Fred Snow, special agent of the Bangor & Aroostook railroad, who has just returned home from a tour along the line, Aroostook potato fields never looked better than those of the present season. He expects the crop to equal, if not exceed, that of last year, although estimates at this time of year may prove rather unsatisfactory later on. As to acreage, this year's crop will occupy somewhere in the vicinity of 90,600 acres—about the same as a year ago. The coming crop is likely to be of much better quality than that of 1910.

A CENTURY OF BULB GROWING.

The firm of E. H. Krelage & Son, Haarlem, Holland, was established April 10, 1811, and to commemorate the centenary the present head of the firm, Ernst H. Krelage, has issued "Een Eeuw Bloembollenteelt, 1811-1911," a handsomely printed volume of sixty-four pages, containing several illustrations. The author gives a description of the bulb business, beginning with the first years of the nineteenth century, and traces its development through to the present day, naturally featuring the important part this firm, now in the hands of the third generation, has taken in the acceleration of the growth of the industry. The monograph is written

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $2,145.

HOLLAND BULB CROPS.

This spring the weather was peculiar, for we cannot remember such weather during preceding years. The winter was rather mild, but in the first weeks of April, just as the hyacinths were in flower, we had a severe frost. East winds and icy cold continued some days and then north and northwest winds and storms, with snow and hail, followed. The frost was severe (12 to 14 degrees Fahrenheit) and the hyacinths looked poorly. The flowers were all flat on the earth and the leaves were stiff. Although a bright air prevailed, the sun was not able to melt the ice in the center and between the leaves of the plants. Also the frozen leaves of the tulips suffered by the wind and the general opinion was "a poor grow." But it happened otherwise. After the frost beautiful dry weather followed and the bulbous plants recovered themselves admirably, though the first weeks the bulb growers had a lot of work to cut the frozen tops of the leaves down. If the dry tops remain on the plants diseases such as "fire" may appear. The beautiful weather, however, helped the growers and diseases were less common than in other years. The hyacinths developed well at many places, especially the young bulbs. The first size bulbs have, at some places, poor roots, and therefore rather high prices for really first-class quality may be expected. From the continuous dry weather the forcing quality is expected to be high. Tulips, especially the early ones, ripened off at some places too early, and a smaller quantity of first size bulbs will be the result. Generally, however, the crop of early tulips will be large enough to satisfy all buyers. The late tulips, Darwins and cottage, made a better growth than last year, and as there are already many orders for them, an active trade will follow in the export season. The narcissi, daffodils, tazettas, etc., are good, and no fire or other disease appeared. The crocuses were, early in spring, very good, but the drought caused the leaves to die off too soon and so the crop will be moderate. The ranunculus suffered from the lack of rain, but anemones, irises, ixias, gladioli and lilies have developed well. The lifting of the tulips began in the first week of June, being nearly a fortnight earlier than last year.

In conclusion, we may say the crop of the different bulbs will be good in 1911, and as the forcing quality is high, an active trade is expected.

At the green auctions, which take place on the fields when the bulbs are in full flower, the prices for hyacinths and Darwin tulips were high. During recent years large quantities of Darwin tulips have been exported to America, and this year the exportation will surpass all records. Formerly only or principally mixed Darwin tulips were ordered by the American seedsmen, but now, as they have learned the better kinds and their brilliant colors, they require the varieties separate. By this fact the stock of many leading varieties, as Clara Butt, Mr. Farncombe Sanders, Tais, Edmee, Mme. Krelage, Faust, etc., will soon be short, and at the end of the season prices may be expected to be higher than ever. The cottage tulips also were, during the preceding years, more in demand than formerly. The single and double early tulips were, at the green auctions, moderate in price, but for forcing purposes they will be ordered in very large quantities.

The prepared hyacinths have become known in foreign countries, and just now the growers are making a beginning with preparation. They lift the bulbs earlier and bring them into a heated bulb house. In autumn, 1911, at Haarlem, a show will be held of prepared hyacinths and tulips.

The hyacinths grown one year in the south are not so satisfactory as was expected, and if the trials with the prepared bulbs should give a good result, the cultivation of hyacinths will soon be a thing of the past in Trence.—Horticultural Advertiser.

The value of clay for pottery is not based on the mere cost of delivering the clay at a certain place, but on the quality of pottery which, in the hands of artists, can be produced by that particular clay. Both material and art are necessary to create the ultimate value—one is dependent upon the other. So with Lily Bulbs, you must have good bulbs and be a flowering artist to evolve from them all they will produce. Bad bulbs are the most costly to buy, because of the lost time, space, expense and effort wasted, and then no returns, so how foolish it really is to buy bulbs because they are cheap! That's when you should be suspicious of them. Get good bulbs—base your costs on the average flower production and don't take chances on cheap bulbs, for one dose of bad bulbs will more than offset the additional cost of better bulbs for perhaps ten years. Horseshoe Brand cold storage Giganteum ready for delivery now or later—fully matured December 1910 bulbs—the best produced. Prices sufficient to allow us a reasonable profit only.

DESTRUCTIVE INSECTS.

You will find enclosed a specimen fly and also a small piece of snowberry with insects on it. The flies last year were extremely destructive; in one night they ate nearly all my Swiss chard. If you know of anything which I could put on the Swiss chard to keep the flies away, I should be pleased to hear about it. Could the chard be safely used after being sprayed or dusted? As to the insect on the snowberry, I should like to know what it is and what would kill it. R. P.

I have never been troubled with these same pests or with any other on snowberry shrubs or Swiss chard beets. The flies that are so destructive to the Swiss chard are a kind of beetles and will be hard to fight, for the reason that they can not be sprayed with any insecticide, as the foliage is used for greens. If you have only a small patch, you might keep the beetles off by spraying them hard every day with the hose and knocking them all off. Or you might try putting tobacco stems along each side of the rows; the smell of these would keep many insects away. But do not spray with any kind of dope.

I have sent the samples to the state entomologist for further information.
H. G.

CUCUMBER VINES WILTING.

Our cucumbers are beginning to show the effects of the larvæ of the cucumber beetle, which are working at the roots. Part of the plants are growing in the greenhouse on solid benches; the rest are on benches from which a crop of lettuce was taken this spring. They are planted five in a hill, with the hills about seven feet apart. The vines wilt and die back, some even to the roots.

Freesia Purity

From Original Stock—Greenhouse-grown

ALL those who grew our Greenhouse-grown Purity Freesia last year have given it highest praise and have in many cases increased their orders this year, thereby giving their unqualified endorsement to its merit.

Our bulbs have been grown by a Freesia Specialist, under glass, in a temperature of 45° to 50°, especially for us under contract, and are well-matured, fine, plump bulbs. This method of growing ensures stock being absolutely true.

They are just beginning to bear. Would carbon bisulphide reach the pests? We have tried it, but perhaps did not use it as we ought. We made holes eight inches each side of the hills and put in a tablespoonful of the carbon bisulphide, plugging the holes with soil. Can you suggest anything that will cure the trouble? D. C. B.

The treatment given should have killed all insects or larvæ in the soil, but perhaps some plants were too far gone to save. A handful of tobacco dust put around each stalk is good to keep the beetles from laying their eggs there.

It may also be possible that your vines have the bacterial wilt disease, which causes so much trouble at this time of year. It is extremely contagious and soon spreads all over a house, unless all diseased plants are taken out as soon as they wilt. Even then it will often keep spreading and no remedy has ever been found to be of the least value. Spraying can not help them at all. H. G.

PACIFIC COAST.

THE Tacoma rose show is to be seen in the illustration on page 15.

ON page 16 there is an illustration showing a field of freesias during the harvest season in California.

CALIFORNIA NURSERYMEN.

The California Nurserymen's Association is the name of an organization that has recently been formed and is affiliated with the Pacific Coast Association. Officers have been elected, preliminaries arranged and twenty-six members enlisted.

The officers are: President, W. V. Eberly; vice-presidents, Messrs. Howard, Chisholm, Wheeler and Wilson; secretary, H. W. Kruckeberg; executive committee, Messrs. Crow, Howard and Wrightman. G.

PACIFIC COAST NURSERYMEN.

Their Convention at San Jose.

The ninth annual convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen was held in Odd Fellows' hall, San Jose, Cal., June 21 to 23. Over 100 enthusiastic members were present and the meeting was by far the most successful one ever held by the association.

The address of welcome was delivered by Mayor C. W. Davison, who was introduced by President George C. Roeding and who responded in a most hearty and appropriate fashion. Joseph T. Brooks, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, followed with a few timely remarks, in which he referred to the great amount of good done in the dissemination of new fruits and flowers by those who were actively engaged in propagating and selling on this coast. President P. A. Dix gave a hearty response and Secretary-Treasurer C. A. Tonneson read the minutes and reports of the last meeting, which were quite interesting and received the indorsement of the association.

Reports and recommendations of vice-presidents were then made. A. W. McDonald, of Toppenish, Wash.; J. B. Pilkington, of Portland, Ore.; Ray Hartley, of Emmett, Idaho; W. V. Eberly, of Niles, Cal.; E. M. Tyson, of Brigham City, Utah; Leonard Coates, of Morgan Hill, Cal., and Albert Brownell, all bore testimony that nursery interests in each of their several localities were in a prosperous condition and that indications for the future were never brighter. M. McDonald, of Orenco, Ore., and P. A. Dix, of Roy, Idaho, on the legislative committee, said that there was much to be done of vital interest to the trade in Utah and that the legislature in Utah needed considerable attention, or laws might be passed that would mean ruination to the nursery business. S. A. Miller, of the membership committee, made his report, as also did C. F. Breithaupt, of the reception committee.

These gentlemen were thanked by President Roeding for the manner in which they had filled their offices. M. McDonald then spoke on "Nurserymen and Horticultural Authorities," and a general discussion of the subject was indulged in for some minutes. H. W. Kruckeberg followed with a paper on "Stray Thoughts on the Quarantine Laws and Their Execution." This article was written by J. S. Armstrong and covered that phase of the nursery interests in a concise and complete manner. J. W. Jeffrey, commissioner of horticulture, followed with an address along the same lines and a general discussion took place at its close. S. A. Miller, of Milton, Ore., took for his subject "Attitude of Nurserymen Toward Horticultural Laws and Inspectors," and the propositions involved were well handled by him.

Second Day's Session.

The second day's session was opened by President Roeding, introducing Prof. E. J. Wickson, who spoke on "Why the Nurseryman Should Stand in the Position of an Educator to the Fruit-growers." This was a splendid résumé of the better conditions that would be made possible if all in the trade exerted their utmost to bring them about. C. F. Breithaupt read a paper on "Grading Nursery Stock." A. McGill gave an address on "Plans for Growing and Keeping Nursery Stock." A. W. McDonald read a paper on "Apple Seedlings in the Northwest." C. F. Lansing spoke on "The Value of Cleaning Seedlings Before Planting."

Mr. Chase proffered a hearty welcome to the nurserymen to go to Salt Lake City next year, after several of the members had stated that the selection of a place which would bring the most new members and include the biggest territory should be made. His kind offer was accepted, and, by a unanimous vote, the convention was ordered held at Salt Lake City in 1912. The motion of J. B. Pilkington, to have the association request that the American Association of Nurserymen hold its meeting in 1913 with the Pacific Coast Association, and that it be asked to give this matter its consideration, was enthusiastically received. The association will take the necessary action to bring about this joint meeting by consolidation. The association favored Portland, but even if Portland were not to have the honor, they wanted to see this convention come to the Pacific coast.

The following committees were appointed: Committee on grading stock, P. A. Dix, A. W. McDonald, S. A. Miller, W. Eberly, Charles Trotter; committee on president's address, P. A. Dix, M. McDonald, H. W. Vrieveberg; committee on auxiliary associations, Fred Howard, E. Rust, John Vallance, F. T. Sweet and C. H. Smith; committee on resolutions, S. A. Miller, E. Tyson, C. F. Breithaupt, C. W. Howard, Leonard Coates; committee on audits, J. B.

Pilkington, W. V. Eberly, F. V. Spaulding.

In the afternoon Luther Burbank gave an address and an excursion was taken as the guests of the Chamber of Commerce on the electric line through Congress Springs, Saratoga, Campbell and Los Gatos. In the evening the Protective Association held an executive session in St. James hall. The grading of nursery stock was discussed and it is expected that shortly there will be a recognized schedule prepared and circulated, with a view to establishing a universal schedule for the sale of trees.

Third Day's Session.

The third day's session opened with a paper by P. A. Dix on "The Nurseryman, a Pioneer." This was followed by Leonard Coates on "Does Pedigreed Stock Pay?" N. S. Bennett spoke on "Virtues and Faults of Different Kinds of Pear Stocks," John Reimer on "Outdoor Adornment," and H. W. Kruckeberg on "Wild Flowers of California."

The election of officers for the coming year resulted as follows:

President—P. A. Dix, of Utah.

Vice-presidents—C. F. Lansing, Oregon; C. H. Smith, Utah; John Vallance, California; Ray Hartley, Idaho; A. W. McDonald, Washington; Charles Trotter, British Columbia; D. I. Tighe, Montana.

Secretary-Treasurer—C. F. Tonneson, Washington, reëlected.

Executive Committee—M. Soles, Utah; A. McGill, Oregon; Leonard Coates, California.

The last item on the program was a trip by special train to inspect the California Nursery Co., at Niles, Cal. About 125 members and their wives took the trip, spent a pleasant time and had a splendid repast, after which they returned to San Jose, all declaring that this was the most successful convention ever held on the Pacific coast. G.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The weather is slightly warmer in the daytime than it was last week, but the nights are cold and foggy, in magnificent contrast with those of the eastern states. The conditions are perfect for flower growing, handling and shipping in all its phases and never at this season of the year have blooms of all kinds shown to better advantage. Business is extremely quiet, even with the fact that San Francisco has the International Sunday School Convention on her hands at present, and there are many thousands of strangers in town. Still our delightful climate and our wealth of flowers and fruits cannot but help to make a tremendous impression on these visitors, and California is bound to benefit thereby at a future time.

Dahlias and gladioli have made their entries into the flower field in large quantities and have taken the places made vacant by the disappearance of bulbous stock. Sweet peas are still being brought into town by thousands, and, although about the best selling article on the list, are far from being used in their entirety. Carnations and roses are held at the same prices they have enjoyed since Memorial day, and sell about as usual for this season of the year.

Various Notes.

John Armstrong is with the Shibeley-Mann Co., on Sutter street.

John P. Reddy is with the Sievers & Cornwall Co. at its Powell street store.

J. B. Pilkington, of Portland, Ore., who was recently in town for several days, has returned to his home town.

Fred. Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, passed through town last week on his way for a trip through Oregon and Washington.

J. C. Chase, the label manufacturer of Derry, N. H., is in San Francisco on a short visit. While here he attended the nurserymen's convention at San Jose, Cal.

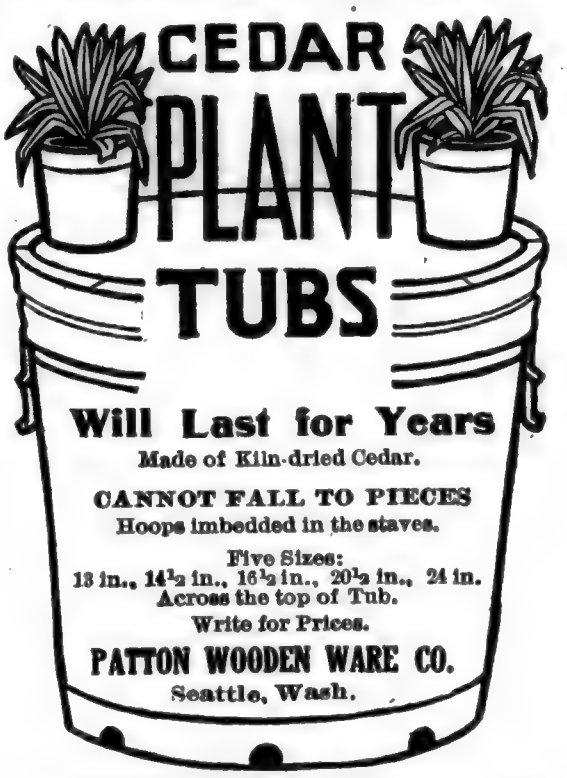
The Market.

Business conditions for the last week have been spasmodic. Stock is plentiful in every line. Carnations are showing the effects of the weather, getting smaller all the time. Roses are equal to the demand. Sweet peas are improving steadily in quality; yet the market is deluged with all grades. Coreopsis and gaillardias are attractive in window displays, but move slowly over the counter.

The funeral of Fire-Chief David Campbell, who was killed at his post of duty, created an unusual demand for flowers. The principal call was for large designs of many varieties and the work was well distributed among all the florists.



Various Notes.

Geo. C. Robinson, formerly of the Tonseth Floral Co., and A. E. Alder have leased the range of Geo. Betz, near Oregon City. They will grow carnations exclusively, for the wholesale market.

Mrs. M. Demeree, of Montesano, Wash., was in this city securing piping for a hot water system, which she is now installing. Her range is devoted principally to vegetables, with enough flowers for the local demand.

Fred H. Howard, of Howard & Smith, Los Angeles, Cal., called on the local trade to get orders for nursery stock.

The Sweet Pea Society held its exhibition on Saturday, June 24. Choice varieties were exhibited and many prizes competed for. Capt. Geo. Pope, an amateur enthusiast, for many years has interested school children in sweet pea culture by distributing seeds to each pupil. In the commercial class, Henry Clemmens, of Newberg, Ore., won first prize; R. Riegelmann, second; H. C. Hendes, highly commended. In table decorations, Martin & Forbes were awarded grand prizes. E. NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston, June, 1912.

Daniel Nehmer & Sons, the strawberry growers of Ontonagon, Mich., have decided to engage in the nursery business, especially the growing of apple trees.

The Pacific Coast department of this week's Review contains an account of the recent convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Nurserymen at San Jose, Cal.

B. E. Gage, of Peterson Nursery, returned to Chicago last week after an automobile trip of 600 miles among customers in Wisconsin and Minnesota. W. A. Peterson and family went to Lake Geneva July 3 for a fortnight's outing.

INSPECTION IN ENGLAND.

In the recently published bulletin of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, a part of which has been quoted in The Review, describing conditions in European nurseries, C. L. Marlatt stated:

In England Dr. Howard found that, as in France, there was no governmental nursery inspection. The nursery conditions there are somewhat better than in France, but the brown-tail moth and other injurious insects which might easily be imported on nursery stock occur in England. The officials of the government had the establishment of a governmental inspection service under consideration, and were willing to establish such a service, but stated that the demand for it must come from British nurserymen. An attempt was therefore made by Dr. Howard to get these interests to ask for such service, and, while no action has yet been taken, it seems probable that the English government will move in this direction.

Noting the above paragraph, Charles G. Pearson, secretary of the Horticultural Traders' Association of Great Britain and Ireland, writes The Review:

"Referring to your notice of the quarantine bill (June 8, page 51), it is not quite correct to say that 'no action has been taken,' as my association has been in communication and had a deputation before the Board of Agriculture on this subject. We were unable to make arrangements for a regular inspection of nurseries on the lines laid down in your new bill, the chief difficulty in the way being that of the expense, but I think that no difficulty will be experienced by those firms which regularly trade with the U. S. A., as the board has in these cases, where it has been properly applied to, sent down one of its own inspectors to go through the nursery and give the necessary certificate, when the conditions justified the same.

"I think it would be a good thing if you could publish this information; otherwise an impression might get abroad that nurserymen here were unable to fulfill the obligations imposed by the U. S. law and a serious hindrance to business might be the result."

EXTENDING WHOLESALE TRADE.

[A paper by E. S. Welch, of Shenandoah, Ia., read at the convention of the American Association of Nurserymen in St. Louis, June 14 to 16, 1911.]

In many cases the nurseryman who grows stock extensively must depend largely upon selling his product at wholesale to the retailer. For the production of the best class of trees, shrubs, etc., the personal attention of the owners of a large nursery plant is usually required. It is often difficult, therefore, to find time to distribute the product direct to the ultimate consumer.

Growing Desirable Stock.

All of us can help extend our wholesale market by producing a better grade of trees, by being careful to grow the hardiest and most desirable varieties, and by encouraging the distribution and planting of such stock as will give the planter the best possible results. Superior varieties of nursery stock, properly grown when planted, will be the means of increasing the demand for desirable stock at prices profitable to the grower.

The introduction of valuable fruits, ornamentals, roses, vines, etc., such as Jonathan, Wealthy, and Delicious apples; Montmorency, Bing and Wragg cherries; the Japanese varieties of plum; weeping birch, elm and mulberry; Frau Karl Druschki and rambler roses; Clematis paniculata and other varieties, too numerous to mention—the introduction of all these, I say, has been the means of a wonderful extension of the wholesale market for nursery stock.

The nurseryman can materially assist in creating a demand for the best and most desirable varieties, by planting freely himself, and giving the necessary attention to producing the best possible results.

Encouraging Civic Improvement.

He should be an active member of the improvement clubs and various organizations interested in civic improvements, and he should take the lead in organizing them, not from a selfish standpoint alone, for he should realize the great benefits that will accrue to all communities from the planting of trees, flowers, roses, etc. While such activity will enlarge the markets for nursery products, it is also the duty of the nurseryman, as a patriotic citizen, to encourage the beautifying of our country. What is there that will add to the beauty and value of real estate like the planting of fruit trees and ornamental nursery stock?

The nurseryman who can develop and introduce additional varieties of superior merit, in all lines of horticulture, will materially assist in the extension of our markets. The recent development and advancement of our nation in growing fruits has created a greater necessity for growing trees in wholesale quantities. Street, park and ornamental planting is rapidly following in all parts of our country; hence the nurseryman has a broad field for the development and extension of our wholesale markets.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Indianapolis is having its share of the hot weather. July 1 the thermometer registered 98 degrees in the shade. This extremely hot weather is having its effects on flowers. Lilies are the leaders in quality. Beauties are fair and carnations and Killarneys are holding out well, notwithstanding the heat.

Trade has been good, every day bringing considerable funeral work.

Various Notes.

W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, drove over in his new automobile July 1.

Harry Jones, with the Jones-Russell Co., Cleveland, is spending a few days with Geo. Wiegand.

S. S. Skidelsky spent a day with the trade this week. He has been at French Lick for the last ten days.

Herman Schilling is installing a new forty horse-power boiler. He reports a good spring business, having sold entirely out of bedding stock.

Martin Brandlein left last week for a visit to Germany. He expects to be gone about two months.

Carl Leonard, formerly with the Pahud Floral Co., has gone to Chicago to take a position.

Robert Fohl was married last week. Bernie Fohl, Sr., spent a few days in the city, attending the wedding.

J. A. Peterson, of Cincinnati, spent Saturday in this city, calling on the trade.

Carl Shuck, formerly with Henry Rieman, has opened a cut flower store at Fountain square. The new establishment is to be known as the Fountain Square Floral Co.

Baur & Steinkamp initiated a new delivery wagon last week.

C. W. Nims, with the A. H. Hews Co., spent a day here this week.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The Market.

June certainly was the month of weddings. Close to 400 marriage licenses were issued by the county clerk, which should be ample proof that the florists were kept on the move all the time. Nothing in the way of a big wedding was held, but still some nice orders were handled, and, on the whole, receipts on this line of work were above the average. Not only as a month of weddings does June shine, but the commencements are also in line. While not quite so heavy as last season, a good business was done in this department. Several big funerals took place, and stock of all kinds was cleaned up at all times. Never has good stock been so scarce in June as this season. There was a shortage all through the month, and it was keenly felt. Carnations were of poor quality, owing to the extremely hot weather; roses ditto. Sweet peas, which in other seasons have been so plentiful as to be a drug, were as good as cash. Those who had them are wearing that "smile that won't come off." The outlook for a better supply of flowers is not any too good, as asters are the next crop to come on, and they will not be any too plentiful, while carnations and sweet peas are about over for this season. But, as business will be quiet for the next two or three months, we shall not need much stock. It is hotter than usual and everybody is looking forward to vacation time and a few weeks' rest. K. R.

ANNOUNCEMENT!

We beg to announce to the carnation growers in general and to those in want of a PROFITABLE SCARLET CARNATION in particular that will be disseminated DURING THE SEASON OF 1912 at the following prices:

100, $10.00; 1000, $75.00; 2500, $65.00 per 1000; 5000, $60.00 per 1000; 10,000, $55.00 per 1000 (250 and 500 at 1000 rate)

As a matter of course, the question will be asked: What sort of a Carnation is Delhi? We will answer this question briefly and to the point:

¶ (1st) Delhi is a scarlet seedling of exceptional merit—a cross of Enchantress on an unnamed scarlet seedling.

¶ (2d) Delhi comes in early, it is free, and produces fine blooms throughout the season.

¶ (3d) Delhi is a strong grower, of ideal habit, making no surplus grass—every shoot coming into flower.

¶ (4th) Delhi has a calyx that is perfect and absolutely non-bursting.

¶ (5th) Its color is that of Victory or Beacon at its best, but, unlike the latter, it does not fade into an orange tint during the early fall and late spring.

¶ (6th) Delhi under ordinary treatment (and it has been grown all along in ordinary field soil without any admixture of fertilizers) makes 3 and 3½-inch blooms. Its keeping qualities cannot possibly be surpassed, for blooms shipped to Georgia, Florida and other southern points were never known to reach destination in a sleepy condition.

Mr. C. C. Murphy, the originator of Delhi, had grown it during the past five years for the Cincinnati market and has found it to be, without exception, the most profitable carnation he had ever grown, so much so that it required no little effort on our part to induce him to give "the other fellows" a chance at it. That the growers in the vicinity of Cincinnati well know the merits of Delhi is well proven by the fact that no sooner had we closed the deal with Mr. C. C. Murphy than orders were placed with us promptly for "early" delivery.

If you know any grower or retail florist in or around Cincinnati, just drop him a line and ask him his candid opinion about Delhi. Better still, come and see it for yourself at any time from September on.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

There is not much doing here outside of funeral work. June weddings have been plentiful and helped out a lot. Flowers are in good supply. Carnations retail at 50 cents per dozen; roses at $1 and $1.50 per dozen; lilies at $2 per dozen; gladioli at $1.50 per dozen; sweet peas at $1 per hundred blooms. Funeral work is good, using up quantities of short stock. Bedding out is still on the jump, but towards the end of the month will have let up a little. Most of the stores close at 6 p. m., with the exception of Saturday evening. Young stock in the fields is looking good. A few good rains would benefit the plants immensely. We are having some warm weather now.

Various Notes.

The rose show of the New Bedford Horticultural Society was held in the library building Tuesday, June 27. M. H. Walsh, of Woods Hole, had a large display of roses, in addition to a fine display from the Rogers estate.

W. L.

Manistee, Mich.—J. T. Harrell, formerly of Winchester, Ind., has purchased the Kitzinger greenhouses, in this city, and is preparing to restock them.

Cadiz, O.—John T. Timmons, of the Birdlawn Conservatory, has had a good season's business. In spite of the fact that he is afflicted with blindness and is compelled, as he says, to "labor in darkness," he accomplishes much, with the help of Mrs. Timmons. He is a diligent student of horticulture and has contributed articles on that and other subjects for the press, doing his own writing on the typewriter. He planned his own buildings without the aid of sight.

REMEMBER

Araucarias Are Our Specialty

No one can beat us in this line.

WARNING.

DON'T BE DECEIVED! Now, as well as for the last 25 years, we hold the ground as leaders in the importing, growing and shipping of our specialty, the Araucaria.

ARAUCARIAS. 6000 just received per Steamer Marquette from Antwerp, Belgium, more coming by next steamer. Araucaria Excelsa, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, palms, etc. Florists, you know we are leaders for the last 25 years in importing, growing and shipping this so well known evergreen decorative plant. The Araucaria, more in favor now than ever. Almost every florist knows our Araucarias, therefore no argument is needed for our goods. We know what our customers want and need, and have provided for them and set aside special specimen plants of the Spring Importation 1910. These specimen plants will stand the climate everywhere and are especially adapted for decorating lawns, porches, verandas, bungalows, private summer residences, hotels and boarding-houses at the seashore or elsewhere. Our prices are very low for fine stock.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

With the conclusion of the graduation exercises at the public and private schools, the florists have practically finished their special work for the season. Funeral work, however, continues brisk and this keeps the retailers more or less active. The action of the school authorities in some instances in refusing to allow flowers to be sent to the pupils at the schools has caused much discussion among the florists and the matter is to be taken up by the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island and a committee appointed to look into it.

Various Notes.

The annual excursion of the Rhode Island Horticultural Society will be made to Conanicut park on the steamer Sagamore, Friday, July 7, with dinner on the island, thence to Newport, where Fort Adams will be visited.

Samuel S. Pennock and family, of Philadelphia, have been spending a short time in the vicinity of Westerly.

William Crompton, of East Greenwich, is bringing to market some excellent Easter lilies.

Timothy O'Connor is erecting a handsome new office building at his greenhouses on Blackstone boulevard. The former office building has been moved to one side and is to be remodeled for a packing and make-up room.

The decorations for the recent firemen's memorial day were made by Charles H. Hunt.

Alphonso V. Chester and Miss Lydia Cain were married last week.

George H. Fitch and Earl De Muth were in the Sixth District Court a few days ago for breaking into the shop of Michael Sweeney, 512 Pine street, and stealing a small sum of money. They were sent to the reform school during their minority.

Miss Clara McCarron, the daughter of Eugene McCarron, had a narrow escape recently. She came in contact with an electric wire that had broken loose and received a shock that confined her to the house for several days.

John Johnston, of Johnston Bros., has been confined to the house for several days as a result of injuries received by being thrown from his wagon during a runaway.

Lawrence Hay is erecting an up-to-date cottage on Center street, East Providence.

The Woonsocket Nurseries, C. W. Morey, proprietor, of Woonsocket, have been busy all spring.

John Marlow, 48 years of age, a well-known gardener, was knocked off an electric car on College Hill a few days ago. One of the wheels passed over his right arm, severing the hand just above the wrist.

Henry C. Neubrand and Miss Madeline Walsham were married recently at Newton Highlands, Mass.

Thomas Curley, who has greenhouses on Wallace street, has complained to the police of the breaking of numerous panes of glass by boys.

J. Kopelman is finishing a new house on his farm at Oaklawn. It is 30x200 feet.

Charles H. Hunt has purchased three lots of land on Mystic street, containing about 12,000 square feet. He intends to begin at once the erection of one if not two houses. He will plant nothing but new varieties of carnations. W. H. M.

GERANIUMS

The steady increase in the demand for Geraniums is proving beyond a doubt that they are the universal favorites with the flower buying public, that they are today more popular than ever before; in fact, the demand during the past season nearly exhausted the available supply. We are increasing our stock for propagation to the extent that we shall produce them in enormous quantity next season, and feel confident that we shall be in a position to fill your orders to your entire satisfaction, but would suggest that your order be placed early. We have already booked heavily on some kinds. Good standard sorts at $18.50 per 1000, from 2-inch pots.

A splendid stock in 3-inch pots, ready for immediate shipment, at $3.00 per 100 and up, including Ivy-leaved in such varieties as Rycroft's Surprise, Mme. Thibaut, Mrs. Banks, Alliance, Pierre Crozy, etc. Variegated Foliage: Silver Leaf Nutt, Mrs. Pollock, Sophie Dumaresque, Mt. of Snow, L'Eleganta and Duke of Edinburgh.

Achyranthes Emersoni, Alternantheras, red and yellow, Coleus, Lemon Verbenas, Swainsona Alba, Hardy English Ivy, 2-inch, $2.00 per 100; 3-inch, $3.00 per 100.

Make a note to visit us when at the S. A. F. Convention.

IS IT A SHAMROCK?

Is the enclosed plant the green shamrock of the florists' trade?
W. A. B.

The specimen was quite shriveled up, but as near as I can determine it is the shamrock, or at least one variety of it, viz.: Trifolium repens, which is the variety most commonly sold for shamrock. Oxalis Acetosella, or common wood sorrel, is also much sold for shamrock, as also are several other plants. No one can tell what the true shamrock is, but if you plant Trifolium repens it will be found to fill the bill acceptably. C. W.

PINCHING BACK COSMOS.

Please tell me at what stage cosmos should be when you cut them back or top them to make the plants bloom earlier. E. W. P.

Cutting back or pinching back cosmos will hardly make them bloom any earlier. It will, however, make the plants somewhat dwarfer and more shapely. The pinching back can be done now, and again a month hence. If you want some nice, bushy plants, root some of the tops you take off in the propagating bench and pot on, flowering them in 8-inch pots. By pinching once or twice, the plants can be kept fairly short. Keep them plunged outdoors, with a stout stake to each, and do not place them under glass until the fall gales or early frost threatens their extinction. C. W.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each boiler advertised in The Review is a good boiler, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

A SMALL WISCONSIN HOUSE.

How many feet of 2-inch pipe will be needed to heat a greenhouse 18 x 55 feet? The north wall is four feet high, completely underground, and the south wall is three feet high. The house is seven feet high at the center. I want a temperature of 55 degrees. Please tell me, also, how large a boiler will be required. F. W. S.

If 2-inch pipe is to be used for both flows and returns, two flows and eight returns will be required. It could also be done with one 2½-inch flow and eight 2-inch returns. There should be no difficulty in heating the house with a boiler having a 20-inch grate, or with one that is rated at 450 feet of radiating surface.

TWO COLORADO HOUSES.

One of our houses is 20x99 feet. It runs north and south, with the boiler at the north end. The walls are cement and are four feet high. The height to the ridge is nine feet. We also have one house 12x35, running west from the boiler room, so that the two houses have the form of an ell. This smaller house has 5-foot cement walls and is nine and one-half feet to the ridge, with glass in one gable end. We have an Ideal sectional hot water boiler, with a rating of 1,650 square feet. The larger house must have a temperature of 50 to 52 degrees; the smaller one, 55 to 60 degrees. An outside temperature of 10 degrees below zero is cold for us, and we have experienced only a few nights of that temperature. Is our boiler large enough? How should our piping be done to get the best results? We have had extremely unsatisfactory results from the present system of piping. The expansion tank is three and one-half feet above the highest point of the piping. There is a Honeywell generator on the system, but something is radically wrong, as the small house will not heat above 50 degrees in zero weather. D. F. C.

As the amount of radiation needed in the houses will not be more than 1,150 feet, a boiler with a rating of 1,650 square feet of radiation should be amply large. An excess of twenty-five to thirty per cent should serve every purpose.

To heat the larger house, use three 2½-inch flow pipes, placing one in the center overhead and the others on the side walls. If the end of the house is much exposed, carry the flow pipes on the walls halfway around the ends and start the returns at that point. For the returns, nine 2-inch pipes should be used. They can be arranged in three coils, one of which should be under each of the side flows and the other under the middle bench. The flows should be given a slight fall and the expansion tank should be attached at the highest point. With the piping and arrangement suggested, there should be no difficulty in maintaining 52 degrees when the outside temperature is 10 degrees below zero. For the smaller house, use two 2½-inch flows on the walls and seven or eight 2-inch returns underneath.

IN EASTERN KANSAS.

I am building a greenhouse, 18 x 67 feet and eight feet to the ridge. The walls are three feet high, with two feet of glass. The house slopes to the west. The ends are glass. I wish to pipe for hot water, in such a way that I can change to steam later if I desire. I have in view a new cast-iron boiler, with a capacity of 750 gallons and with three 2-inch outlets. Would one 2-inch flow be enough to heat the required amount of 1½-inch returns, and how many returns would be required to maintain a temperature of 40 degrees when the outside temperature is zero? J. B. M.

For the house described use either one 2½-inch flow or two 2-inch flows. A single 2-inch flow would be too small. For the returns use nine 1½-inch pipes with a 2½-inch flow, and eight returns if two 2-inch flows are put in. If the flow pipes run downhill, it will be a simple matter to change from a hot water to a gravity steam system.

EXTENDING THE COILS.

We have a small house, thirty feet long, which we wish to extend to the same length as our other houses, which are sixty feet long. In extending the coils, would it be satisfactory to simply make new coils and fasten them onto the old ones by means of close nipples? C. V. G.

The question does not give any idea of how the present coils are arranged, or of the manner in which it is pro-

12 YEARS AGO

We Installed

—two "Morehead Traps" of type shown above in the greenhouse of John F. Horn Bros., Allentown, Pa. This machine has recently been replaced by larger traps of the "Morehead" type shown below—

Read What They Say

"In regards to the Morehead Steam Traps, the two old Steam Traps here were in use 12 years and did the work until we put up too many houses and then we had to get two No. 5, and these are large enough now for the entire place, which is 75,000 feet of glass. They give us no trouble here at all; pump all the water very easy and require no attention whatever. Work on all kinds of steam pressures, high or low. We have our boilers on floor level and have what you may call the Double Trap System. They deliver the water hot and quickly. Also feed the boilers with the city water when we need water by just letting it simmer in the receiver. We only turn off city water when we shut down steam for the day, so we can always hold the water line in our boilers steady by just letting the cold water valve so and the city water mixes with the condensed water and never helps to run the steam down on the boilers. We consider the Traps far ahead of the pump, as the pump is too slow and requires packing and also oil. Traps for us every time and Morehead at that. The old Traps would have lasted a life-time, as they did not show any wear in the 12 years they were in use here."

THE KROESCHELL GREENHOUSE BOILER

Here is the boiler that is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists and gardeners who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler the highest praise.

10,788,000 square feet of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years. You will find the new 1910 model Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler in every state in the Union and Canada.

Our Eastern business has been exceedingly heavy the past season.

Kroeschell vs. Cast Iron Boilers

Over 1500 Cast Iron Boilers were replaced by the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler during the past six years. It is a common occurrence for a Kroeschell to replace two to four cast iron boilers at a single place; this is the CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM PLAN, and has saved many florists hundreds of dollars per season in fuel alone, besides a big saving in labor.

OUR HEATING ENGINEER has probably had more practical experience in this line than any other greenhouse man, and we place his experience at your service.

What the Users say

Cast Iron Boilers Require Twice the Amount of Coal; Kroeschell Boiler Only One-half

I bought a No. 3 Boiler in 1901. We had a corrugated cast iron fire-box boiler and sectional cast iron boiler before we bought yours in 1901. The cost of heating with this boiler is one-half less than it was with my cast iron boilers. Your No. 8 Boiler, which we bought recently of you, is not being run to its capacity.

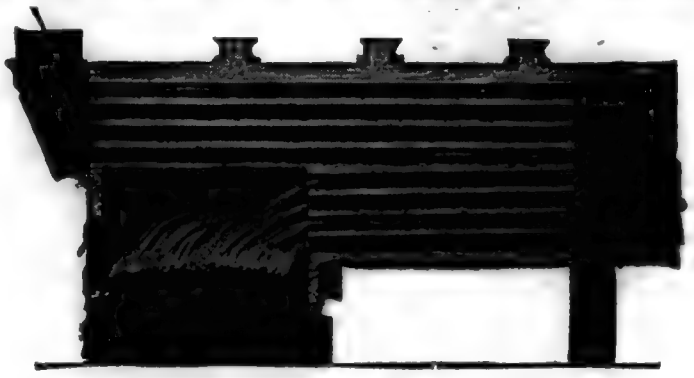
posed to make the connection. If steam is to be used, almost any method of connecting the pipes would probably answer, but if the pipes are for hot water, care must be taken not to obstruct the flow. The best way would be to extend the present coils, but if that is done it might be necessary to put in larger flow and return pipes. Not more than 200 square feet of radiation should be carried in 2-inch flow and return pipes.

If this can not be done, run independent flow and return pipes to the new coils, unless a direct circulation can be made with the old coils by means of nipples not less than two inches in diameter.



TWO ILLINOIS HOUSES.

We are building two east and west greenhouses, 25x90 feet, connected, but with a partition between the houses. We shall use hot water heat. We have not decided on the boiler as yet, but are figuring on a mercury system. The south house will have four feet of glass in the south wall. Both ends of the south house will be glass and the east end of the north house will be glass. The north wall will be double boarded, with building paper between. The houses are protected on the north and west by a hill. There will be four 4½-foot benches in each house, those in the south house being solid, in the north house raised. Using 3-inch pipe for flows and 1½-inch for returns, how many pipes will be needed and how would you run them? We wish to maintain a temperature of 65 to 70 degrees. During the months of November, December and January we intend to grow a crop that requires a cool temperature, about 45 degrees, and the system will have to be arranged so part of the heat in each house can be cut out during that period. How deep will our boiler pit have to be? What size of flue and how high a stack will be needed? G. & F.

To heat houses 25x90 feet to 65 degrees will require two 3-inch flow pipes and twenty-three 1½-inch returns. It would be better, however, to use three 2½-inch flow pipes and eighteen 2-inch returns. This will be for the south house, which has four feet of glass. For the north house, with a wooden wall, two less pipes will suffice.

The flow pipes can either be upon the walls or supported on posts or from the roof. In the house with benches part of the returns can be underneath, but it will probably be better to have all of the returns on the walls in the other house. The highest part of the flow pipes should be near the boiler and they should be given a slight fall to the farther end of the house, where they should connect with the returns. These should be in coils, which should also have a slight fall and should connect with the boiler through a return main of the same size as the flow. The expansion tank should connect with the highest part of the system. When only 45 to 50 degrees are needed, it will be necessary to cut off about one-half of the returns by means of valves.

A boiler rated at 2,800 to 3,000 square feet of radiation will be about large enough for the two houses, and one of 4,000 to 4,200 feet would provide for a third house. In case there is no likelihood that more than three houses will be built, one boiler could be made to answer for all of them, but if there are to be four houses there will be several advantages in having two boilers, even though only three houses are to be built at first. A boiler which will heat two houses to 65 or 70 degrees would provide 45 to 50 degrees in three or four houses, and would be found more economical for that purpose than a larger boiler. This would also leave one boiler in reserve, to be used in case of a breakdown of the other.

Nearly all of the greenhouse boilers in common use will give economical results. The use of the mercury generator makes it possible to heat the water to a point above 212 degrees, and by doing this the amount of radiation required can be considerably reduced. On the other hand, the same or even a little larger boiler capacity will be needed and more fuel will be required to obtain the same results as with an open system.

The size of the flue and stack should be carefully adjusted to the boilers. One rule is to have the area of the flue about one-sixth of the grate area, for boilers of the size that will be needed for three or four houses like the ones described. This would mean a stack about eighteen inches in diameter. The height would depend upon the surroundings, but forty feet would probably answer if this would bring it well above the neighboring buildings.

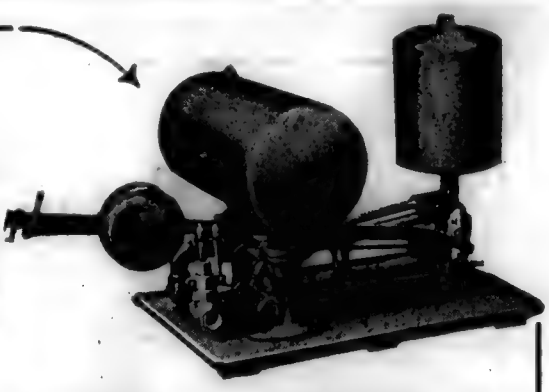
BUFFALO.

The Market.

The summer season is now at hand and it will be a case of vacations for a couple of months. The month ended well, with a number of weddings, and figures show the largest number of licenses ever issued for June. There were no large weddings, but the smaller ones used a lot of stock. Sweet peas, bachelor's buttons and other outdoor stock are most in demand, with indoor stock none too good in quality. Roses are rather plentiful, but fly open so quickly that they are a losing proposition.

Various Notes.

The Crippled Children's Guild held its tag day a few days ago and sold carnations in the place of tags. The sum realized was $2,300. A good day's business, but not for the florist. This, however, is much better than giving the tag, for someone sells the carnations.



The firm of Altman & Cloudsley, styled as the Lenox Flower Shop, has dissolved. Mr. Altman will continue the business under the same name. Mr. Cloudsley has been in the business a number of years and has always taken an interest in the doings of the trade. He was connected with the William Scott Co. before going into business for himself.

James Longley, who has been in the employ of W. J. Palmer & Son, has left to take a position as manager in Erie.

R. A. S.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y.—John Ralph recently put up the most elaborate decoration ever seen at this place. It was for a silver wedding celebration at the mansion of W. L. Hall and called for the use of large quantities of Beauties, roses, peonies and carnations, besides greens. Not only was it a fine order, but it was handled so well that it was an excellent business card for the florist.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

The cut flower market is good for this time of the season. Carnations are not plentiful. Roses are scarce and of poor quality. Sweet peas are plentiful, but sell well. Green goods are in good supply.

Various Notes.

The florists' picnic will be held at Coney Island, Thursday, July 20. Everybody is expecting a good time. Buy your tickets from one of the florists.

E. H. Fries has had an exceptional cut of Harrisii lilies, cutting about 6,000, which brought $1 per dozen, wholesale.

Fred Schumann and his brother, Albert, have gone to Denver, Colo., to start in the florists' business. G. M.

Lake City, Minn.—Work on the greenhouse addition for the Jewell Nursery Co. is well advanced and two of the new houses have already been put into service as propagating houses. The firm has been handicapped by the lack of water and was compelled to await the completion of the laying of the water mains on North Seventh street.

The Market.

We do not care to talk much about business at this time of the year, except to say that stock has been gradually getting scarcer, while trade remains about the same. Vacations are the only things worth thinking about and are the only topic of conversation.

Various Notes.

Miss Katherine Lager and Joe Goth, of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., returned from their vacations Monday.

The employees of the A. W. Smith Co. have started their vacations. Albert Hall is spending four months in England, Scotland and Ireland; Murray King is taking a look at Niagara Falls, and Earl Tipton left Monday for the home of the Altimo Culture Co., Canfield, O., where he will spend the next two months.

The A. W. Smith Co. baseball team played a match game Thursday evening, June 29, with the team of the Zieger Co.

Mrs. E. A. Williams has taken a cottage at Geneva for the summer and expects to entertain her friends in a series of house parties.

Randolph & McClements' employees report business as holding up so well that there has been no opportunity to consider vacations, but they are still hopeful.

Jas. Byerly and John McClements are the champion florist tennis players, and may be seen in the court any evening.

Allen Langhans, of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., together with a friend, left last Saturday for the head waters of the Allegheny river. They will spend their vacation in canoeing down the stream, camping each night and doing their own cooking.

John Jones, president of the Florists' Club, is asking for volunteers who will give their time to managing the picnic this year. Hustle up, boys, and get things going.

John Wyland has just completed a water reservoir with 3,000 barrels capacity on his place at Allison Park. It is situated at the highest point on the farm and commands a fine view of the surrounding country. It is covered with flooring and makes a fine dancing platform. Mr. Wyland dedicated it last Sunday, when he had a fine patriotic service, with speeches by a minister and several prominent attorneys.

The best Labor Saving device on the place

Charles Moebius, West Toledo, Ohio, writes us:

"We find the Skinner System the best labor saving device we have on the place, and in fact we could not do without it. It will water the ground evenly and will not cake the soil. We think the man away out of date that uses a hose, as he will not be able to grow such fine stuff without your watering device."

This is but one of hundreds of similar letters we have gotten from florists all over the country.

Cattle Manure in Bags

Shredded or Pulverized

Pure—dry—uniform and reliable. The best of all manures for the greenhouse. Florists all over the country are using it instead of rough manure.

Pulverized Sheep Manure

Absolutely the best Sheep Manure on the market. Pure manure and nothing else. The best fertilizer for carnations and for liquid top-dressing. Unequaled for all field use. Write for circulars and prices.

Nature's Best Fertilizer is Sheep Manure

Sheep's Head Brand furnishes the valuable organic matter and humus necessary to grow crops. It improves the mechanical conditions of the soil.

Makes compact clay more open and porous, makes light, sandy soils more retentive of moisture, keeps soluble plant foods within reach of rootlets of growing vegetation.

Farmers, orchardists, florists, truck and market gardeners should send for our book "Fertile Facts" to learn how properly and most effectively to fertilize the soil.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

ROCHESTER NOTES.

Edward S. Osborne, of the Charlton Nurseries, is chairman of the entertainment committee of the Shriners' convention, to be held July 12 to 15, and he is a busy man in consequence.

Miss Helen Bishop had the first week of her vacation the last week in June.

E. C. Campbell's gigas are coming in more plentifully now.

Geo. Boucher had another unique display in his window last week. It might be appropriately termed "The Old Garden Gate."

J. B. Keller's Sons are planning a jardiniere sale for early July, to dispose of accumulated stock at one-half price, and to make room for fall stock.

The Hibbard funeral gave the downtown florists one busy day last week.

"Closed Sundays during July, August and September." Thus reads a sign that William Keller has put up in his store. His employees are asking, "Will it be enforced?"

Downtown florists have booked quite a few orders for window displays of business houses during the Shriners' convention.

Peter Hess is keeping up his supply of roses during the warm weather, and the blooms are fairly good.

Roy Ayers is again at work after several weeks' vacation.

E. C. Campbell has put on additional help in his store on North street.

Horace J. Head is studying voice culture this summer. He has the promise of a good baritone voice. E. C. A.

HAIL NEAR SAGINAW, MICH.

The Wm. Roethke Floral Co., of Saginaw, Mich., in speaking of hail storms in the early part of June, says: "The storm of June 4 passed this city about fifteen miles east and south, doing a great deal of damage in the southeastern part of this county and striking Flint, Mich., where considerable damage was done to the establishment of B. Hasselbring. A heavy storm passed over Alma, Mich., thirty miles west of Saginaw, the same day, breaking over half the glass of J. A. Bittner, at that place, while St. Louis, only three miles from Alma, where Kleinhans Bros. have an establishment, escaped entirely. Many smaller hail storms were noted around Saginaw since then, all of them severe enough to break glass used in greenhouses, but, fortunately, all the florists in this city, as well as Bay City, escaped any losses."

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Washington Florists' Club will open a new park at Huntsville, July 12, the annual summer outing of the club having been ordered for that day. The Baltimore & Annapolis railroad has ordered four of its large cars placed at the disposal of the florists, who will take their wives and families with them.

Members and officers of the national society will be present, among these being Philip Breitmeyer, former mayor of Detroit, who is on the executive committee of the S. A. F. Director W. H. Smith, of the Botanic Garden, will deliver a talk on trees, illustrating his points with the vegetation surrounding him at the time.

All sorts of games and sports are scheduled for the day. The greenhouse men will play ball with the retailers, and a tug-of-war is also being arranged. The committee in charge of the outing includes John Robertson, Jr., W. H. Kimmell, Otto Bauer, Edward Schmidt and W. A. Bolinger.

Mr. Schmidt is entertaining the members of the Washington Florists' Club at a crab feast this evening, July 6. The rear of the Gude store has been converted into a grotto and rathskellar for the evening.

Officers of the Washington Florists' Club are: President, Elmer C. Mayberry; vice-president, David Grillbortzer, Alexandria, Va.; treasurer, W. F. Gude; secretary, O. A. C. Oehmler.

Winfield, Kan.—E. H. Gilbert, on East Fourth avenue, has been ill for about a year, but is now able to attend to business again. Trade, he says, has been fairly good.

Emporia, Kan.—James M. Tanner has gone to Cedarville, Mich., where he spends many of his summers.

Jackson, Mich.—Clara Brown & Co. are building another greenhouse, 20x 100 feet. This new house is the first of an additional range to be erected in the near future, possibly before next winter. About 1,000 outdoor roses will also be planted.

STORE FITTING AND REFITTING.

An Average Store.

We are not speaking in this connection of the most expensively fitted stores, with marble finishing and other special features created for an occasional splendid place. Neither are we speaking of the smallest and cheapest stores, but of a good, average shop in an average city, as stores of this class handle the bulk of the trade and their output sets the standard of work.

In selecting a store room, one which has a front room space about twice as long as wide is as well proportioned as can usually be found. Its width will not appear cramped and the length will lend a retreating depth to a fair distance. Having planned for a wall and woodwork finish which includes not a decorated wall, but a neutral background for decorations, let us look to the other features—the entrance, the window, the up and down stairs, the office space, the partition and the permanent cases.

Entrance and Show Window.

The entrance and the window form a good half of the attractiveness or unattractiveness of the store. In the greater percentage of cases the error is made of having the entrance in the center and a window on each side. Frequently these windows are too narrow for any effective display. Have every available foot of floor space in the one window, with the entrance, on one or both sides, flush with the back of the window or what would correspond with the back of the window. With the entrance set back you have additional window space thrown open to the street, and also a more inviting entry. Glass to the floor, in window and door, is now a necessity in tasteful store fronts. In other words, throw your whole store open to view from the street. No more window sills or seats or shelves.

A good front on a poor building is better than a common entrance to a well constructed building. These improvements not only make a more spacious and accessible window, but a more spacious store; and a deep or shallow space may be used for the window display, as occasion requires or whim demands.

The Window Floor—or Floors.

If possible have two floors for the window—one of cement below, with water supply and drainage, for water scenes and for convenience in spraying and watering plants, washing the glass, etc. Plants may be massed in here and no pots will show. The upper floor may be made in sections and easily removed and replaced over the cement floor. The upper floor should bring the window display on a level with the lower edge of the glass.

The only permanent feature in the way of a window accessory should be the mirror, in case one side of the window is against a wall.

Various schemes have been used for the top of the window, but none have proven entirely satisfactory. Each change in the window display should, as a general rule, have its own top decoration, although the same one may often be carried through several decorations.

Stairway and Balcony.

Another permanent feature that should be carefully planned is the stairway or stairways. A cellar entrance, instead of being hidden, ought to be made an attractive feature. If a balcony can be built, it will be found many times worth its cost in the added storage capacity which it will afford, besides its value as a background for decorations. There is scarcely a home that is to be decorated where an open stairway does not present itself, tempting your imagination to employ its best efforts. A stairway, then, in the store can be kept decorated and will serve as a demonstration for customers; the same use, also, can be made of the balcony railing. An extension of the design of the stairway and balcony railing may be used as a railing for the cellar way.

If the stairway affords it, arrange a cozy corner and customers' desk under the balcony or landing. As a rule, the stairway should not occupy a prominent place in the front of the store. It should present a side rather than a front view to the entrance.

A Separate Workroom.

Taking into consideration the advertising advantages gained by doing the making up where customers may see it, over against the appearance of a place where such work is done, it seems the part of better judgment to have a separate workroom. It is true that work in process of making up is something of an attraction to customers, but it is also true that pieces exhibited in a half finished state are shown to a disadvantage, and the consequent litter detracts from the general appearance to a greater extent than the advertising is helpful.

The discussion of this subject will be continued in a future issue of the paper.

G. B.

FLOWER STORE EQUIPMENT.

With increased use of accessories, such as ribbons, baskets, jardinieres, corsage shields and pins, a change in flower store fixtures becomes necessary. The store of yesterday had bare walls, save for the space occupied by ice-box and mirrors. The store of today has wall cases for ribbons and other requisites, and the store of tomorrow doubtless will contain still better provision for their display. Indeed, already in a few flower shops flowers are not the only things sold at a profit. One Chicago florist has fitted up the rooms above his store for the display of the dishes that so assist the sale of plants, and another has used the store adjoining, furnishing it attractively and stocking it with articles in china, pottery and cut glass that appeal so strongly to people with cultured taste and obese pocketbooks. In Boston, more than one flower store is really a setting for the attractive display of Italian pottery—and those who add these lines to flower selling seem to add to them year by year.

The average flower store will for now be content with a moderate stock, such articles as may be sold with

TUESDAY

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Emporia, Kan.—James M. Tanner has gone to Cedarville, Mich., where he spends many of his summers.

Jackson, Mich.—Clara Brown & Co. are building another greenhouse, 20x100 feet. This new house is the first of an additional range to be erected in the near future, possibly before next winter. About 1,000 outdoor roses will also be planted.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

STORE FITTING AND REFITTING.

An Average Store.

We are not speaking in this connection of the most expensively fitted stores, with marble finishing and other special features created for an occasional splendid place. Neither are we speaking of the smallest and cheapest stores, but of a good, average shop in an average city, as stores of this class handle the bulk of the trade and their output sets the standard of work.

In selecting a store room, one which has a front room space about twice as long as wide is as well proportioned as can usually be found. Its width will not appear cramped and the length will lend a retreating depth to a fair distance. Having planned for a wall and woodwork finish which includes not a decorated wall, but a neutral background for decorations, let us look to the other features—the entrance, the window, the up and down stairs, the office space, the partition and the permanent cases.

Entrance and Show Window.

The entrance and the window form a good half of the attractiveness or unattractiveness of the store. In the greater percentage of cases the error is made of having the entrance in the center and a window on each side. Frequently these windows are too narrow for any effective display. Have every available foot of floor space in the one window, with the entrance, on one or both sides, flush with the back of the window or what would correspond with the back of the window. With the entrance set back you have additional window space thrown open to the street, and also a more inviting entry. Glass to the floor, in window and door, is now a necessity in tasteful store fronts. In other words, throw your whole store open to view from the street. No more window sills or seats or shelves.

A good front on a poor building is better than a common entrance to a well constructed building. These improvements not only make a more spacious and accessible window, but a more spacious store; and a deep or shallow space may be used for the window display, as occasion requires or whim demands.

The Window Floor—or Floors.

If possible have two floors for the window—one of cement below, with water supply and drainage, for water scenes and for convenience in spraying and watering plants, washing the glass, etc. Plants may be massed in here and no pots will show. The upper floor may be made in sections and easily removed and replaced over the cement floor. The upper floor should bring the window display on a level with the lower edge of the glass.

The only permanent feature in the way of a window accessory should be the mirror, in case one side of the window is against a wall.

Various schemes have been used for the top of the window, but none have proven entirely satisfactory. Each change in the window display should, as a general rule, have its own top decoration, although the same one may often be carried through several decorations.

Stairway and Balcony.

Another permanent feature that should be carefully planned is the stairway or stairways. A cellar entrance, instead of being hidden, ought to be made an attractive feature. If a balcony can be built, it will be found many times worth its cost in the added storage capacity which it will afford, besides its value as a background for decorations. There is scarcely a home that is to be decorated where an open stairway does not present itself, tempting your imagination to employ its best efforts. A stairway, then, in the store can be kept decorated and will serve as a demonstration for customers; the same use, also, can be made of the balcony railing. An extension of the design of the stairway and balcony railing may be used as a railing for the cellar way.

If the stairway affords it, arrange a cozy corner and customers' desk under the balcony or landing. As a rule, the stairway should not occupy a prominent place in the front of the store. It should present a side rather than a front view to the entrance.

A Separate Workroom.

Taking into consideration the advertising advantages gained by doing the making up where customers may see it, over against the appearance of a place where such work is done, it seems the part of better judgment to have a separate workroom. It is true that work in process of making up is something of an attraction to customers, but it is also true that pieces exhibited in a half finished state are shown to a disadvantage, and the consequent litter detracts from the general appearance to a greater extent than the advertising is helpful.

The discussion of this subject will be continued in a future issue of the paper.

FLOWER STORE EQUIPMENT.

With increased use of accessories, such as ribbons, baskets, jardinieres, corsage shields and pins, a change in flower store fixtures becomes necessary. The store of yesterday had bare walls, save for the space occupied by ice-box and mirrors. The store of today has wall cases for ribbons and other requisites, and the store of tomorrow doubtless will contain still better provision for their display. Indeed, already in a few flower shops flowers are not the only things sold at a profit. One Chicago florist has fitted up the rooms above his store for the display of the dishes that so assist the sale of plants, and another has used the store adjoining, furnishing it attractively and stocking it with articles in china, pottery and cut glass that appeal so strongly to people with cultured taste and obese pocketbooks. In Boston, more than one flower store is really a setting for the attractive display of Italian pottery—and those who add these lines to flower selling seem to add to them year by year.

The average flower store will for now be content with a moderate stock, such articles as may be sold with plants or cut flowers, but it will be found well worth while to bring these to the front. Too many keep the fern dishes, the jardinieres, the baskets and the ribbons hid from view. Is it a custom holding over from the time florists feared to charge for the accessories? Nowadays we add to the price everything we add to the cost, and then some, and would as soon think of donating the flowers as supplying the basket and ribbon without making the charge that represents the usual percentage of profit. If we are selling the accessories, then why not show what we have for sale?

By all means get some attractive cases and display your wares. Others do it, and they find it increases sales.

A GOOD MANTEL.

The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a photograph showing a mantel decoration for a wedding, arranged by R. M. Leavitt, Elmira, N. Y. The materials used were blooming laurel, ferns, phœnix, kentias and other decorative plants.

A LIMIT ON ART?

One of the pet theories of the retail florist of the old school has been that he was not a merchant but an artist; that his prices should be based, like those of any other artist, not on the quantity of his work, but on its merit. But gradually there has grown up a suspicion that art may not be so merchantable as flowers.

There still are many florists in the larger cities who cater only to those who are willing to pay large prices, but several years ago one thoughtful leader of the artistic school of flower retailing concluded that it would be as well to get a part of the trade of those persons who wish merely to buy flowers and not works of art. To that end he opened a branch establishment under another name, and not so far distant but that the two stores would seemingly compete. The venture was a success.

At a still more recent date a high-class retailer in another city determined to try the effect of more popular prices to secure the growth in business which failed to come so long as retailing was conducted on the basis of artistic service and artistic prices. The way the business since has grown has been one of the marvels of the trade.

Other high-class retailers are finding that there is a limit on the business which can be done on the strictly artistic basis; their sales are not increasing in proportion to the general increase in the flower business; they are not getting the natural increase in the consumption of flowers in their neighborhood. As one whose work is of the highest merit phrased it: "Our people come to us when they want something really good—when the name on the box counts for possibly as much as the flowers inside—but when they want flowers for their own use they often stop at some other store—some store that is just winning its reputation, where the service may not be quite so good, but where it still is good enough."

The trouble at these high-class stores is that expenses and volume of sales do not keep step—expenses move fastest. All the costs are higher—rents, supplies, miscellaneous and labor, especially labor. The capable help expects frequent raises in wages, and must have them, for tempting offers are often coming to them from stores that are doing increasing volume and which seek to improve service, to the end that the increase in trade may keep on.

"The old theory of charging for the florists' artistic abilities," said an experienced and thoroughly capable designer, in a discussion the other day, "is like a firecracker on the fifth of July—either exploded or incapable of being turned into money. Nowadays we don't sell art—we sell flowers and throw in the art, along with the box. There are a certain number of people who will pay the cost of exclusiveness, of high-class service and all the incidentals which go to make the measured success of the hightoned store, but it is a fact that the number of this class of flower buyers is increasing nowhere nearly so fast as the number of those who will buy flowers at moderate prices and accept moderately good service. It is a fact, also worthy of careful thought, that the expense of doing business does not increase in proportion to the increase of the volue of business. In other words, when one does only a small trade he must inevitably charge higher prices than where a business of several times the volume is done. Consequently, the store doing the large volume can afford to give first-class service, including all the artistic touches that first-class service implies, and do it without making any appreciable charge for the service.

"More and more each year the flower business is getting away from the idea of selling service and is building upon the theory of selling flowers. When one sells enough flowers the old margins of profit become no longer necessary, and those flower businesses are growing fastest today which are based on the theory of large sales and small profits."

Food for thought in that. Is there a limit on art? Is it sooner reached than the limit on the sale of flowers? Or is there any limit on flower selling?

STORAGE FOR CUT FLOWERS.

We contemplate building an office and salesroom this season and are in a quandary as to which will prove the better method of storage for our cut flowers. We have these two plans in mind: To build a refrigerator of sufficient size in one end of the room, or dig a cellar about eight feet deep and use this instead. Can anyone in the trade who may have had some experience along these lines give us any information as to which plan will prove the more satisfactory the year through? Our experience has been that flowers out of a refrigerator do not keep so long as those from a cool cellar. On the other hand, at this season of the year flowers get soft and rot off sooner in a cellar than in a refrigerator. Could you offer any suggestions as to the best manner of ventilating a deep cellar. Would you suggest a cement bottom in it? L.

The inquiry does not give sufficient information as to the circumstances in the present case to afford a basis for other than a general reply. Usually it is as the correspondent says: the flowers keep better if stored in a cellar, so long as the cellar is cool enough. The trouble lies in that the cellar may not keep sufficiently cool in hot weather; if it does, you can not beat it, either for care of the stock or for cost. As for the concrete floor, it probably will be necessary because of the use of water in the cellar, but I think a concreted cellar always is warmer than one in which there is no concrete—the coolest cellar I ever knew was dug in clay and had earth walls, for the building over it extended far beyond the pit. Unless your situation is peculiar, you ought to get a natural circulation sufficient to keep the air sweet; you don't want a draft. If you require an air change, the American Blower Co., Detroit, makes a little electrically driven affair that will pump the old air out of any room, in which case nature puts fresh air in again without creating a draft.

The reference to a salesroom makes it appear likely that both a cellar and a refrigerator are what would be best in this case. If stock is not on display in the salesroom it isn't likely that customers will ever care to go into the cellar to look at it, and I know by experience that people won't care to wait while the stock is brought up for inspection, one pot at a time. If you are retailing in your salesroom, by all means get a good display refrigerator and keep your best stock in it; the surplus and the seconds can go to the cellar.

A PLEA FOR MORE ROOM.

A common mistake made by planters is to set plants too close together, thus preventing their proper development. Tomatoes, for instance, are frequently planted less than eighteen inches apart, when there should be a space of at least four feet between the plants. And in this city, and many others, there are trees on the public streets, and in private grounds, that have attained a diameter of more than ten inches, that are standing less than eight feet from each other, while the interval should be thirty-five feet or more, which would give them room for symmetrical growth.

The illustration on this page, reproduced from a photograph, shows a plant of Hydrangea paniculata grandiflora that measures eighteen and one-half feet across, while the writer recently noticed a bed six feet in diameter, on a lawn here, in which twenty-three plants of the same variety had been set, no doubt with the expectation that they would grow and do well.

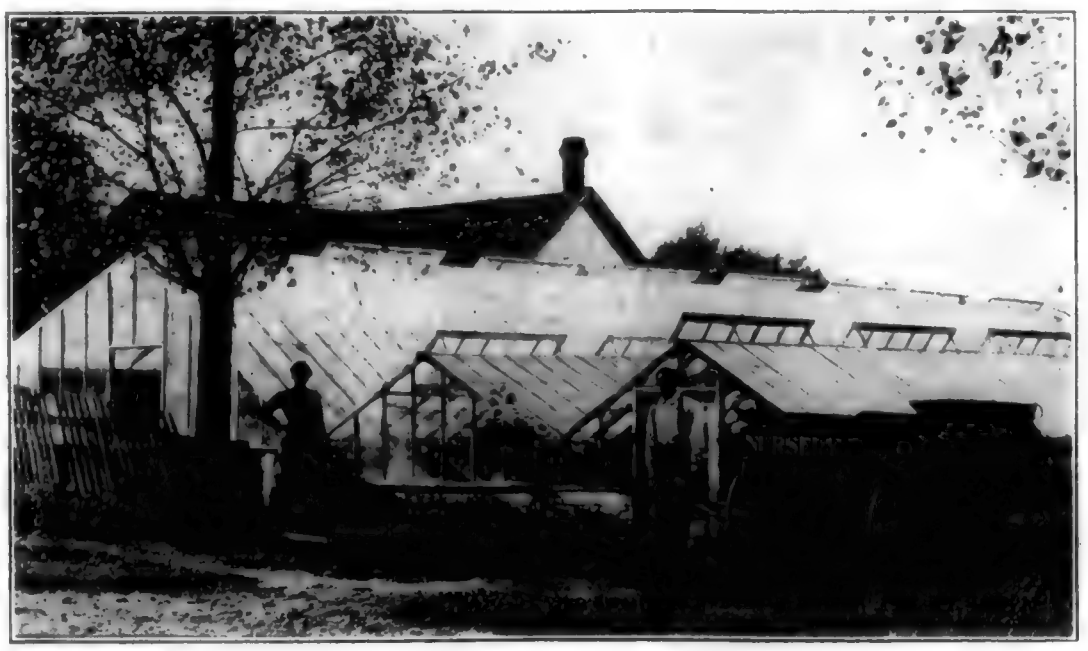
In planting trees and shrubs, it is best to use young and small specimens; but those who do or direct the work should realize that at maturity they will be much larger, and should allow them a liberal amount of room in which to develop. W. T. Bell.

PLANTS FOR FLOODED GROUND.

What tree, vegetable or flower will grow on ground that overflows six or seven feet every two or three years? The water stays on it a week or less. S. G.

Much would depend on whether the flooding occurs in winter or summer. Few trees would be killed or even seriously injured by a flooding in winter and many would not mind a similar flood in summer. Shrubs would be likely to suffer severely from summer floods, but if they come when the plants have no foliage little damage will be likely to result. There are few vegetables which would survive a week's flooding. If in growth at the time, all would probably be destroyed. Few of the hardy herbaceous plants would be killed by even a week's flood if it came in winter and the ground dried out well afterwards. Of course, if the ground after being flooded had a thick deposit of mud left on it, the likelihood of damage would be greatly increased. C. W.

SOIL FOR PALMS AND FERNS.



I am a retail florist and have a small conservatory in the rear of my store. I have quite a few ferns and palms left over from last season and should like to grow them on for next fall. One of Philadelphia's leading growers advised me to use the following compost: Two and one-half barrows of soil, one barrow of cow manure, one bucket of sheep manure, one bucket of bone, one barrow of horse manure and one bucket of blood. I should mush like to know whether these proportions are correct. M. J. C.

Such a compost as that suggested might be used for a top-dressing on palms that are much potbound, but would not be quite a safe preparation to use as a potting soil for palms and ferns, for the reason that the proportion of nitrogen is too large. It would be better to leave out the dried blood entirely and to use half the quantity of the other fertilizers. You would thus have a compost that would be abundantly rich for all ordinary purposes. W. H. T.

THERE ARE MANY LIKE IT.

The accompanying illustration shows the establishment of Henry Daut, at Decatur, Ill., which is typical of a large class of florists' places. Mr. and Mrs. Daut are shown in the picture. They do a large part of the work themselves and a good part of the stock Mr. Daut personally plants on the grounds of his customers. He handles practically everything in the plant line, including nursery stock, and the tree beneath which Mrs. Daut stands is one he planted himself and which he cites as an evidence that his trees grow. The picture is further characteristic of establishments of this class in that at the time the photograph was made there were piled up back of the fence, where just one corner of the stack shows, 3,000 feet of 16x24 glass for use in an addition to the houses.

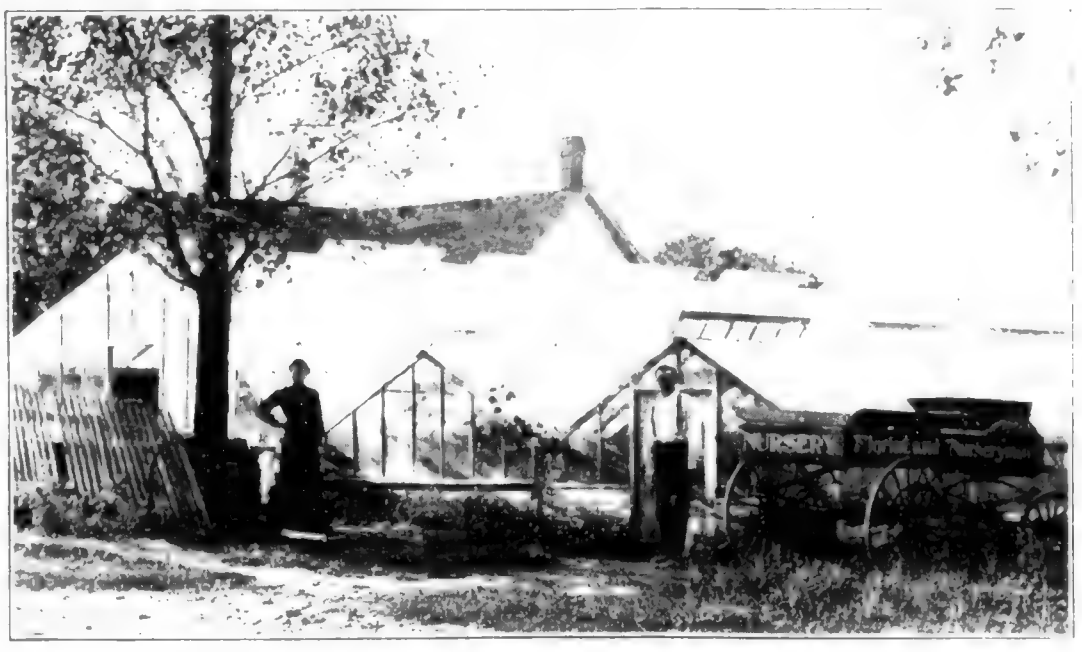
Much would depend on whether the flooding occurs in winter or summer. Few trees would be killed or even seriously injured by a flooding in winter and many would not mind a similar flood in summer. Shrubs would be likely to suffer severely from summer floods, but if they come when the plants have no foliage little damage will be likely to result. There are few vegetables which would survive a week's flooding. If in growth at the time, all would probably be destroyed. Few of the hardy herbaceous plants would be killed by even a week's flood if it came in winter and the ground dried out well afterwards. Of course, if the ground after being flooded had a thick deposit of mud left on it, the likelihood of damage would be greatly increased. C. W.

SOIL FOR PALMS AND FERNS.



I am a retail florist and have a small conservatory in the rear of my store. I have quite a few ferns and palms left over from last season and should like to grow them on for next fall. One of Philadelphia's leading growers advised me to use the following compost: Two and one-half barrows of soil, one barrow of cow manure, one bucket of sheep manure, one bucket of bone, one barrow of horse manure and one bucket of blood. I should much like to know whether these proportions are correct. M. J. C.

Such a compost as that suggested might be used for a top dressing on palms that are much potbound, but would not be quite a safe preparation to use as a potting soil for palms and ferns, for the reason that the proportion of nitrogen is too large. It would be better to leave out the dried blood entirely and to use half the quantity of the other fertilizers. You would thus have a compost that would be abundantly rich for all ordinary purposes. W. H. T.

THERE ARE MANY LIKE IT.

The accompanying illustration shows the establishment of Henry Daut, at Decatur, Ill., which is typical of a large class of florists' places. Mr. and Mrs. Daut are shown in the picture. They do a large part of the work themselves and a good part of the stock Mr. Daut personally plants on the grounds of his customers. He handles practically everything in the plant line, including nursery stock, and the tree beneath which Mrs. Daut stands is one he planted himself and which he cites as an evidence that his trees grow. The picture is further characteristic of establishments of this class in that at the time the photograph was made there were piled up back of the fence, where just one corner of the stack shows, 3,000 feet of 16x24 glass for use in an addition to the houses.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Advantages of Indoor Culture.

The recent hot weather could not by any stretch of imagination be classed as chrysanthemum weather, since the mum, as everyone knows, is a cold-blooded plant. Our indoor system of culture for mums never fails to elicit surprise, if not sarcasm, from the visitors from other countries, who, living under different climatic conditions, cannot conceive why we grow mums indoors when the temperature rises so high in the summer time. This method of culture has, of course, been evolved by the conditions under which the mum grower has been obliged to produce his stock.

It has been found that plants in the restricted space under glass can be kept sprayed and handled much better than they can outdoors. The insect pests also can be much more readily and cheaply controlled in the greenhouse, and this, I learn, is a serious item where the chinch bug is a bad pest. Perhaps the chief reasons why the plants are grown entirely under glass is because they make so much better growth and are not subject to the rust which almost invariably attacks them, at least in the eastern states, when kept outdoors.

It is true that many amateurs still grow their plants outdoors in different states, but the majority of the commercial growers have found that for economical handling the plants must be in the comparatively narrow space of the greenhouse and handy to the water supply.

Treatment in Hot Weather.

Such weather as we have lately been "enjoying" should find the mum houses as widely open as possible, both night and day, and the operator should spray the plants, paths, roofs and every part of the house copiously several times a day. This will reduce the temperature many degrees every time it is done, and the plants will show their appreciation of such treatment by putting out fine, healthy foliage.

A careful grower will soon learn to spray his plants and house frequently without getting the soil in the benches too wet. A nice degree of moisture, of course, should be had at all times in the soil, but do not try to turn the mum into an aquatic, or the foliage will soon begin to turn yellow and run small. Experts all agree that mums, like human beings, keep in better condition when they have to hunt a little for their food and drink.

The growers who still have cuttings in the sand, trying to root them for late planting, have their own troubles at this season of the year. The cuttings must be kept from wilting, and yet if water is used too freely they will rot off; hence, between the two horns of the dilemma, comparatively few growers make a success of late rooted cuttings.

The Early Varieties.

The early varieties should now be making good growth, and if flowers are desired early in September the question of buds will soon begin to be of importance. The varieties that will flower from July buds are, of course, comparatively limited in number, though some few, such as Golden Glow and the new Smith's Advance, will flower at any season. It was my pleasure more than three weeks ago to see a splendid lot of Golden Glow in full bloom with Dailledouze Bros., of Flatbush, L. I. The stems of these, for Golden Glow, were fine, running from four to four and one-half feet high; the flowers also were fine. As a novelty such a sight was appealing, but as a commercial proposition in any great quantity it would not pay, as there is a proper time for everything and June does not seem to be the time for large flowered mums.

Many florists will recall the excellent flowers of Smith's Advance staged at the convention in Rochester last August. They were excellent, but even at that time there is really not much call for them, with the quantity of white asters flooding the market.

My ideal of the early variety is the flower that is ready for market just about the time the first frost hits the pumpkin. Then the market is ready and waiting for a change; business is moving; the heated spell is over and everyone is beginning to take a deeper and more serious interest in life.

Flowers From July Buds.

One can figure from eight to ten weeks for the development of the flower; therefore a bud taken about the middle of July will, all things being agreeable, be ready for market from September 15 to 22, and this, gentle reader, under ordinary conditions, is early enough.

The varieties that will develop perfectly from a bud taken from July 14 onward, so far as my experience goes, are about as follows: In yellow, Golden Glow, Yellow October Frost, Monrovia; pink, Marquis de Montmort, followed shortly afterward by Gloria; white, White October Frost and White Cloud. This list will probably be added to by some growers, but the foregoing may be considered the best in their respective classes for the earliest flowers.

The early varieties should now be tied up, to have the stems perfectly straight, and a sharp lookout should be kept for insects, so that when the flowering period arrives there will be no difficulty. This applies particularly to red spider, which has a habit of weaving a web underneath the foliage and frequently destroying the flowers if it has not been cleaned out before the bud begins to show color.

HARDY ROSES.

The flowering period for the hybrid perpetual section of roses is over now, except in the most northerly latitudes. There are some varieties, including Mrs. John Laing, Mme. Gabriel Luizet, Frau Karl Druschki, Mrs. Sharman Crawford and the old Jacqueminot, which flower more or less all summer, not to the extent of the hybrid teas, but still affording quite a number of nice flowers, especially in August and September. The plants will be improved now if they are looked over, so as to remove any faded flowers and fruits, as well as any Manetti or seedling briar stocks. Rub these latter out clean, so that they will not trouble again. It is indeed surprising how many florists and gardeners do not know these stocks from the roses, and many a vigorous looking rose which never blooms is Manetti stock pure and simple. Own-root stock has the advantage of not being troubled with these weakening shoots, but they lack the vigor of budded plants and are much shorter lived, especially in the colder states.

The hybrid teas have been in fine bloom and they are really the coming roses. There is such an infinite variety of them, in such beautiful colors, and they bloom so persistently that we forget that they are a little less hardy than the hybrid perpetuals, and we are prepared to give them the additional winter protection needed. Fine in June were such varieties as Caroline Testout, Gruss an Teplitz, always loaded with its brilliant scarlet crimson flowers; Bessie Brown; Betty, of a beautiful ruddy gold color; Mrs. Aaron Ward, a fine outdoor variety; Wellesley, fine; Richmond, Edith Gifford, Killarney, White Killarney, the old La France, Mme. A. Chatenay, Viscountess Folkestone, Dorothy Page Roberts and Antoine Rivoire. These hybrid teas do much better in light soil, even if quite sandy.

The hybrid perpetuals like a good water supply and the way they bloom if well treated is almost a revelation. We find that plants worked on the Manetti or seedling briar are much more vigorous and winter vastly better than such as are on their own roots.

UNDRIED BLOOD AS FERTILIZER.

There is a slaughter house near here, where we can get the blood free of cost. Would it be a good idea to take care of it and would it pay? How much would you advise to use? We grow carnations, mums and a few potted plants. G. N. G.

While dried blood is a good plant food, on account of the high percentage of nitrogen it contains, yet I doubt whether it would pay you to save the fresh material. You could hardly expect to prepare it as well as you can buy it, without going to a good deal of trouble and expense. The money you would have to spend in equipping your place, so as to be able to prepare it right, would buy all the dried blood you would dare to use for a good many years. A. F. J. B.

RUST ON FIELD CARNATIONS.

Will you kindly let me know what I can do with my carnations in the field? They are becoming affected with rust. H. S.

There is little you can do to combat rust on carnations in the field. In a normal season, conditions are usually such as to prevent the spreading of this disease, but when they are favorable to the development of the spores you can do but little, because you have no control over the atmospheric conditions. I would advise you to bench your carnations as soon as you can, if you think the rust bad enough to menace the health of the plants, but do not allow a few pustules of rust to stampede you. A. F. J. B.

BUDS FULL OF THRIPS.

I am sending you by mail, under separate cover, a sample of my carnations. This trouble appeared to a small extent two years ago. Last winter, after Christmas, the carnations all became worthless. I pulled most of them up April 1. At that time I sent some samples to Cornell University, but was not informed as to what the disease was. While most of the plants looked healthy, the tip of the leaves would turn brown where the bud should come, and the bud or center of the stem would rot. Many of the buds would form, but would not open; others would open, but be discolored. My young plants in the field appear to be healthy. Will this show on them when I put them in the house? W. C. T.

The specimens forwarded show no other trouble than a horrible case of thrips. The buds were full of them, and I feel sure, from your description, that they are the source of all your trouble.

Next fall, about three weeks after you plant in your carnations, get a compressed air sprayer and a supply of one of the high-grade nicotine extracts. Then start spraying your plants once each week as a preventive, using the nicotine in strength as directed on the label. I think you will find that you will thus get rid of this trouble.

A. F. J. B.

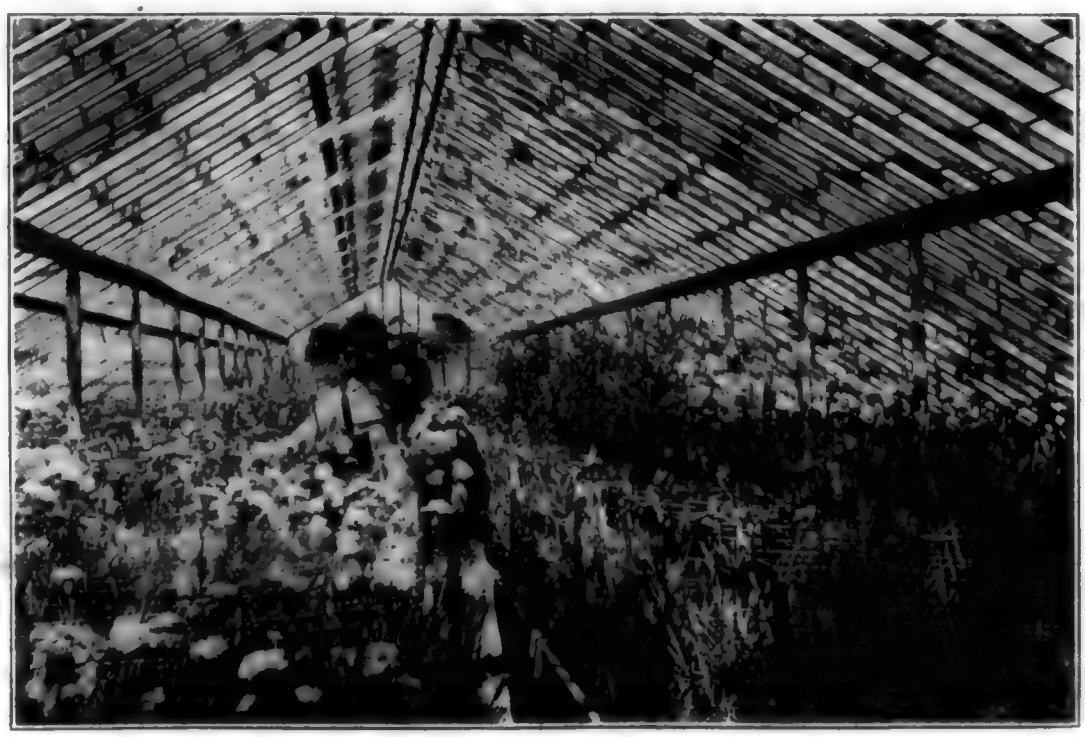
A HOOSIER STATE CROP.

The accompanying illustration shows the spring crop in the carnation house of Bieberich & Weber, Huntington, Ind. The surroundings evidently are congenial, for an excellent season has been had and material is on the ground for an addition to the space to be devoted to carnations next year.

BLOOMS OPEN IMPERFECTLY.

The blooms of my May Day carnations have not been opening right for the last three weeks. As the buds show color and are expanding, the petals have a curled or somewhat withered appearance and the blooms open imperfectly. They are planted in the same house and under the same conditions as Rose-pink Enchantress, Beacon, Fenn, Mrs. Patten, Winsor, etc., which are not affected. My soil is not heavy, but a rich compost, containing both stable and cow manure, and about six weeks ago I used a moderate mulch of pulverized sheep manure. This is not the work of thrips, as I am familiar with their working. Do you think it possible that my soil is too rich with nitrogen, and will May Day stand as much in this line as other varieties? H. F. C.

I have been unable to get any light on the subject of your inquiry. Your description of the trouble would suggest thrips, but, inasmuch as you are positive that it is not caused by that insect, that theory is eliminated. We grew May Day one season, but had no such trouble as yours. I inquired of several growers who have grown it for some seasons, but none could give a different solution than thrips. One grower has suggested, however, that the trouble might be caused by too much overhead watering. A. F. J. B.



SPIRÆAS NOT FLOWERING.

Will you please tell me about the culture of spiræas? I tried to force some for Decoration day, but they turned brown before they were half opened. What should I do with the plants now? A. L. S.

Spiræas are among the easiest of plants to force. For Memorial day, especially, their culture is of the simplest, the main requirements being an abundant water supply, liquid manure occasionally and the necessary heat to flower them on time. They will not stand heavy fumigations. Tobacco smoke will spoil both the foliage and flowers. It is difficult to see how you could fail to bloom them, unless it was owing to an insufficient water supply. There are few plants which require as much moisture at the roots as spiræas when growing.

You can, if you wish, plant the spiræas outside in well enriched ground, but they must be left two years before they can be successfully forced again. You can grow bigger and finer clumps than any you can purchase. C. W.

FERTILIZERS FOR FLORISTS

CHEMISTRY OF FERTILIZERS.

[A paper by W. S. McGee, of the Pulverized Manure Co., read before the Chicago Florists' Club, July 6, 1911.]

It seems to me that every florist should have some knowledge of chemistry. I am convinced, too, that he can easily acquire an amount sufficient to be of practical value. The more he knows of the science of chemistry, the more he will he able to learn from the published reports of investigations carried on at our experiment stations and by other growers. Theoretical knowledge, added to the grower's practical knowledge, will give him a degree of independence of thought and action impossible to the grower who merely follows custom without understanding why.

Two Brands of Bone Meal.

Let us take the case of a florist who wishes to buy a ton of bone meal. He has before him catalogues from two equally reputable supply houses. Catalogue A shows a bone meal containing, let us say, nitrogen 2.50 to 3.30 per cent and phosphoric acid 23 to 26 per cent, while catalogue B shows a bone meal containing, we will assume, 3 to 3.8 per cent nitrogen and 22 to 25 per cent of phosphoric acid. One brand runs higher in nitrogen, while the other runs higher in phosphoric acid, and there would be a natural tendency to choose the one with the higher total content.

To make a fair comparison, however, we should compute the value of the different ingredients of each fertilizer. For this purpose we will use the values assigned by the authorities at the Indiana State Agricultural Experiment Station. These are taken from their bulletin for 1910 and give the following values: Nitrogen, 17½ cents per pound; total phosphoric acid in bone and tankage, 3½ cents per pound; in mixed fertilizers containing nitrogen, insoluble phosphoric acid, 2 cents per pound; in fertilizers not containing nitrogen, no value is placed on insoluble phosphoric acid; soluble potash (K_2O), 6 cents.

A Chemical Comparison.

Using the above prices in our comparison of the two brands of bone meal, we obtain the following results: Brand A, with 2½ per cent nitrogen, has 50 pounds of nitrogen to the ton and this is worth $8.75; the phosphoric acid, 23 per cent, runs 460 pounds per ton and this is worth, at 3½ cents, $16.10, making a total for this brand of $24.85. For the B brand we find the 3 per cent of nitrogen worth $10.50, and the 22 per cent of phosphoric acid worth $15.40, giving a total for brand B of $25.90, a difference of $1.05 per ton in favor of the brand with the lower total content.

Other points, however, must be considered before final choice is made. The 1 per cent of difference in amount of phosphoric acid seems larger than the ½ of 1 per cent of difference in amount of nitrogen, but such is not the case. The one per cent is only 1/22 of the phosphoric acid content, while the ½ of 1 per cent is ⅕ of the nitrogen content. A knowledge of what the soil already contains and what the crop naturally requires would be of value here and should influence the grower's decision.

About Published Analyses.

I find, upon looking over various catalogues, that all do not follow the same plan in giving the analysis of fertilizers. Some analyses give the amount of ammonia, but do not mention nitrogen; some give the amount of nitrogen, but do not mention ammonia, and some give the percentage of both of these ingredients. In order to compare any two fertilizers of the same general character, we must first reduce the analyses to similar terms.

If ammonia is given, we can find the percentage of nitrogen by multiplying by 14/17, or 82.3 per cent. To change from nitrogen to ammonia, multiply by 17/14, or 121.4 per cent. Ammonia is a chemical compound containing nitrogen; hence nitrogen is always present in any fertilizer containing ammonia or ammonia compounds. Ammonia is made up, by weight, of fourteen parts of nitrogen and three parts of hydrogen; hence the above rules for reducing from the one to the other.

In one catalogue I find four different expressions, all referring to phosphoric acid and all on the same page. In one case a fertilizer seems to contain bone phosphate and phosphate acid; in a second case phosphate acid alone is named; a third has bone phosphate alone and the fourth phosphoric acid. This lack of uniformity makes some brands of fertilizers appear at a disadvantage when nothing of the kind was intended. Phosphorus, like nitrogen, is a chemical element incapable of reduction to any simpler form. Some authorities insist that in all published analyses the percentage of the element should be given, rather than that of some chemical compound containing the element.

A Practical Distinction.

In order to show what might happen to an analysis when we apply to it just a little chemistry and just a little arithmetic, let us take the case of a blood and bone fertilizer advertised by a perfectly reliable house and with presumably honest intentions. The analysis shows this article to contain: Ammonia, 6½ to 7 per cent; bone phosphate, 20 to 30 per cent. The ammonia, 6½ to 7 per cent, reduces to nitrogen 5⅓ to 5¾ per cent, and the bone phosphate, 20 to 30 per cent, reduces to phospnoric acid 9 to 13½ per cent, the phosphoric acid constituting usually about 45 per cent of bone phosphate.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Cold Storage Lilies.

During July is the time to secure bulbs of cold storage longiflorum lilies where they are wanted in flower from Thanksgiving to Christmas. As soon as the bulbs are received, pot them. If they are left lying around for even two or three days in hot weather, they will lose much of their vitality. Single bulbs can go in 5-inch or 6-inch pots, according to their size. After potting, place in a cellar or pit, where the sun cannot strike and where the temperature is quite a little lower than outdoors, especially during the day. Give a soaking of water. Then cover with moss or some other light mulch. The bulbs should not need much water until they start to grow and even then it should be applied somewhat sparingly until the pots are well filled with roots. If a cellar is not at disposal, place the pots on a bed of ashes in a coldframe and place board shutters, not glass sashes, over them.

Speciosum lilies in winter are as yet something of a novelty, except in the largest cities. They make a welcome addition to the cut flowers we have at the darkest season of the year. Bulbs of both speciosum album and rubrum are procurable from some specialists during July and August. To have them in bloom for Christmas, start as soon as possible. The crop of speciosum album was last season deficient and they are in short supply this season. Colored varieties are, however, more plentiful. The treatment of these does not differ greatly from that of L. longiflorum, only the speciosums do better grown three to five bulbs in 8-inch pots, rather than singly in smaller pots. They also do better if not subjected to hard forcing like the longiflorums; 55 to 60 degrees at night should not be exceeded in winter.

Freesias.

About the middle of July Freesia bulbs are usually procurable from the growers or dealers, and where a good early batch is wanted they should be started at once in pots or pans. Some growers grow along bulblets and raise their own stock. These bulbs will be well ripened and the largest should be selected for the initial batch. Flats are

EVOLUTION AND POLLINATION.

[A paper by A. C. Beal, of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., read at the Philadelphia convention of the National Sweet Pea Society of America, June 29 and 30, 1911.]

During the first 100 years of the history of the sweet pea only three varieties or colors were known; namely, purple with blue wings, pale red with white wings (Painted Lady), and white. The black and scarlet appeared in the last years of the eighteenth century. It is quite probable that the scarlet was far from what we conceive a scarlet sweet pea should be today. In Martyn's edition of Miller's Gardeners' Dictionary, 1807, we find the white, the Old Painted Lady, the New Painted Lady, the latter with a rose-colored standard and pale rose wings, Old Purple, and a variety having a violet keel and wings and purple standard. Sayers describes the scarlet sweet pea as Lathyrus flore rosea, while the Painted Lady is described as "fleshed" color. From this we may conclude that the New Painted Lady, a rose-colored variety, was sometimes called scarlet.

Improvement in Color.

The first of the striped varieties was offered in 1837 and since that date this group has been augmented until the classification now includes striped and flaked (red and rose, purple and blue). This classification, however, does not express the real range of color in this group, for we have crimson stripes—for instance, America; red and rose stripes on white—Aurora; red and rose stripes on primrose—Jessie Cuthbertson; mauve stripes — Gaiety; blue stripes—Prince Olaf and Hester; maroon-flaked, like Senator. The American growers have introduced the majority of the best varieties of this group, among which are America, Aurora, Columbia, Daybreak, Gray Friar, Juanita, Pink Friar, Ramona and Wawona. Many of these are now procurable in the waved form.

The Blues and Pinks.

The variety Blue Edged, the probable forerunner of the picotee forms, appeared in 1860. This was a white variety with a well-defined blue edge, a probable hybrid between L. Magellanicus and a white variety of L. odoratus. The variety, at all events, was the first to exhibit a distinct blue color among sweet peas. Later it was known as Blue Hybrid, under which name it won an award from the Royal Horticultural Society. Sutton & Son sent out Butterfly in 1878, which somewhat resembled Blue Edged. The so-called blues that followed were Invincible Blue, Madame Carnot or Imperial Blue, and Captain of the Blues, all of which had considerable red in the standard. It was not until 1899 that a good blue, in Navy Blue (Lord Nelson), appeared.

The first of the soft pink varieties was Crown Princess of Prussia, 1868-9. Isa Eckford, Peach Blossom and Lovely are the improved varieties of this color.

Improvement in Form.

The efforts of the breeders of sweet peas have not all been directed toward the development of new shades of color. The form of the flower has also received attention. The earliest representations of sweet pea flowers show a loose, irregular bloom, with the edges of the standard turned back; that is, reflexed. Often, if not always, the standard had the notch in the apex and frequently in the margin. The standard, which is the principal part of the flower, has been improved in substance and the notches have been eliminated. The old type had a narrow base, and with the improvement noted has come a filling out of the lower edges of the standard so that the outline approaches a circle.

In their efforts to secure varieties of the best expanded or open form, many beautiful hooded varieties were originated. While this form was condemned as inartistic by many sweet pea specialists, it nevertheless secured a permanent place. Prima Donna, Lovely and Countess of Radnor are of this form.

The Spencer Type.

When many had reached the conclusion that no further advances in either size or form were to be expected and that the efforts of future breeders would be directed toward securing new colors and more flowers per stem, Nature demonstrated that she had other surprises in store.

In 1901 the Countess Spencer variety was exhibited and caused quite a sensation. The National Sweet Pea Society awarded it the highest honors. This variety was distinct from all preceding introductions, because the standard and wings waved. The flowers were large, and borne in fours on stout stems. It was introduced in 1904.

The parentage of this variety has been given as (Lovely x Triumph, 1898) x Prima Donna, 1899. However, there appeared in 1905 a variety named Gladys Unwin, which was the same color, but smaller and less waved than Countess Spencer, and which was a selection from Prima Donna without known crossing being effected. These varieties, however, were forerunners of the new type which revolutionized sweet pea culture in England and has revived and quickened the interest in America.

Pollination.

We have previously noted that the pistil and stamens are enclosed in the keel formed by the partial coalescing of the two lower petals. A slight pressure upon the base of the keel will cause the pistil to appear suddenly in the tip of the keel. The stigmatic surface is usually covered with pollen, and at the same time the stamens appear to view. If the pressure is released, these organs disappear as suddenly from view.

Process of Self-Fertilization.

Those who are looking for flower adaptations for the promotion of cross-fertilization would say at once that here we have a mechanism which is operated by the weight of a bee alighting on the keel, and the pistil and stamens rise up, striking it upon the body, receiving and giving pollen. Thus, as the insect visits flower after flower, natural cross-fertilization is carried on.

This, however, is not the case. In the first place, if we examine flowers in the bud stage, we find the pollen ripe. The position and condition of the stigma changes, for before the maturation of the pollen the stigma is below the anthers. A day or two later the stigma has risen to a position among the anthers and is viscid enough to hold the pollen grains.

In another day or two it has grown beyond the anthers. Self-fertilization has taken place and the development of the legume begun. This process has taken place before the flower is fully open. Some time later the pistil is pushed out of the protecting keel by the developing pod.

Not Dependent on the Bees.

Such is the normal fertilization of sweet peas, as observed upon examination of the flowers. Attention has been called to the fact that the sweet pea stood practically still for 150 years, and the question is asked how this can be reconciled with natural cross-fertilization.

During the writer's experience in the field last season for three months, studying varieties and recording observations, not a single instance occurred of a bee alighting upon the keel of the flower, nor were any observed crawling between the wings. All the bees observed visiting the flowers alighted on the outside of the wings, and in practically every case thrust the proboscis down between the right wing and the standard. In this connection it may be mentioned that the bees did not show a preference for any particular color, but flew from row to row and from color-section to color-section.

T. H. Dipnall has observed that bees attack sweet pea flowers. The bee, a yellow and white banded species, alighted on the calyx, crawled around to a certain position, and cut a hole through the calyx so that it could thrust its proboscis through and suck the nectar at the base of the pod. The reason is not clear why the insect prefers one side of the flower, since the structure is similar on each side.

It is to be remembered in this discussion that sweet peas grown under glass in winter are not visited by bees, but every flower in sunny weather will set seed if the blooms are not kept cut.

RAILROAD GARDENING

A PROFITABLE INVESTMENT.

[An address by Paul Huebner, landscape gardener for the Reading Railroad System, before the Florists' Club of Philadelphia, July 11, 1911.]

It is a good many years since I last had the honor of addressing you on the subject of railroad gardening. At that time—some eight or ten years ago—there were not so many of the railroad systems of the country that had adopted this policy in which my company was one of the pioneers. A good many more have taken it up since then, and you will no doubt be glad to learn that the Reading has taken no backward step, but has kept steadily along on the same broad and enlightened policy as it first mapped out.

Why Railroads Garden.

You understand, of course, that the hard-headed gentlemen who manage railroads do so from a dollars and cents standpoint—and look on the embellishment of station grounds and approaches from the dollars and cents standpoint only—and not from an æsthetic point of view. They realize that it attracts travel and settlement and by so doing not only helps current revenue but improves the value of their real estate. Nevertheless, these managers are to be commended for their breadth of view and for their far-seeing, good policy—even from those of you who work for the advancement of horticulture in a spirit of altruism for the public good. The community which the Reading serves are given constant pleasure by this policy and are inspired thereby to efforts of their own along horticultural lines. The character of the architecture of the stations has been greatly improved of late years and the surroundings have to conform. Improved grounds and improved stations are two of the best advertisements a road could have and worth far more than their cost in that condition. Safety and convenience come first, of course, but elegance is equally desirable if the cost be not too heavy.

Best Stock for This Use.

I am often asked: "Which is best for work of this kind, shrubbery or bedding plants?" In reply to that I always answer that there is plenty of room for both and I use both freely. When and where depends, of course, on the size of the spaces to be planted—also on the surroundings. Shrubbery is generally most effective when used as a background. When in flower it is very attractive. But for glowing effects and striking pictures that will make the passengers sit up and take notice, and carry with them strong impressions, strong enough to make them talk about it when they go home, be their home near or far, there is nothing like the brilliant cannas and geraniums and other tender plants which make these erstwhile dull and unsightly locations a glory all summer long and carry the fame of the Reading to the ends of the earth. I receive letters from all over the country from passengers who write the company asking as to what canna that was or what geranium that was, etc., showing very clearly the strong impression made, even from a flying train at sixty miles an hour, and the good advertisement the company gets out of it.

While there is no great change in the policy of the road as to my department or in my management and methods during the ten years that have elapsed since I last addressed your club, there is some change in the varieties of plants we use. For instance, in geraniums we used then Mme. Thibaut for pink, La Pilot for scarlet and La Favorite for white. Now these best ones of their day have been superseded by La Glorieuse as pink, John Doyle as scarlet and Mme. Buchner as white. We also use Abbe Schaeffer as a sacrlet and Jean Viaud as a pink. These varieties are not only better flowers than the old ones, but they are also more constant bloomers. Salleroi is still our standby as an edging.

In cannas we are now using Fuerst Bismarck, King Humbert, Mme. Berat, Mme. Poitevine, Philadelphia, Admiral Avellan, Columbia, Robusta and Italia. We still use Florence Vaughan a little, but for a good yellow Richard Wallace is the best of them all.

Some Effective Beds.

We have made recently some effective beds with a combination of ricinus, caladium and abutilon, and of course we still use the coleus largely. A big coleus bed laid out in a design is certainly a gorgeous sight. The big bed at Trenton Junction, for instance, is a good example of what can be done with the coleus. A bed like this will take 3,000 plants, but they are easy to grow and are inexpensive. The shrubbery in the background helps this situation, and of course the lively green of the surrounding lawn is indispensable. Imagine what a dreary, uninteresting place this would be without this blaze of color framed in green and harmoniously toned by its background of shrubbery.

Take again the little triangle at the terminal station in Philadelphia. This is but a little patch, but it is the glimpse of the unexpected which catches the eye and pleases the traveler. This bed is made of coleus, caladiums, achyranthes and alocasia. The cloverleaf bed in the same patch is of geraniums edged with ageratum, with a yucca in the center. The work at Langhorne Station is distinctive, as it has a fine perspective, and has an excellent background of privet hedging. Geranium John Doyle is used freely here in conjunction with coleus beds.

Privet for Hedging.

I am still a strong believer in the privet for hedging. We use the California variety and find little trouble with it winter-killing, about which some complain. It has proven satisfactory with us, being a quick grower, a beautiful glossy green, and absolutely free from all insect pests. We use this largely for windbreaks, to prevent snow drifting in winter, as well as for ornamental purposes. Even when it does freeze it comes up again from the roots.

Railroad Gardening—The Reading Station at Langhorne, Pa.

Railroad Gardening—The Station of the Reading R. R., at Reading, Pa.

I do not use the barberry except in mixed shrubberies. I use the whole shrub family, but the various spiræas and deutzias are our favorites. We also use the hardy hydrangea profusely. Philadelphus, weigelia, hibiscus and Pyrus Japonica are also freely used. In lilacs we like Marie Le Graye best for white, and for a dark one Souvenir de Antoine Spæth. Mme. Lemoine, a double white one, is also fine. I generally mingle evergreens in with the shrubbery, which latter are cut out gradually, leaving the evergreens.

Trees are not largely used, chiefly because they would obstruct signals, an important matter, but where they are permissible the Norway maple is the one preferred. It is the most uniform and is not so apt to break if kept reasonably trimmed.

We trim our hedges twice a season only for outside points, but elsewhere, where they have to be always neat and uniform, three or four times at least.

Evidence That It Pays.

And now, gentlemen, coming back to the title of my story, "Railroad Gardening as a Paying Investment," I think the fact that my company has kept the system up enthusiastically during all the twenty-one years I have been in its employ and is as keen for it as ever is striking evidence that it has found it a paying investment. The territory over which I have direct charge runs from Philadelphia to Williamsport; from Reading to Harrisburg; from Reading to Allentown; from Philadelphia to Chestnut Hill; from Philadelphia to Bound Brook; from Philadelphia to Bethlehem; from Camden to Atlantic City and Cape May, and several other branches. If any of you feel like getting away from the smoke, dust and din of the city and settling down among healthful and pleasant surroundings—and have the price—first take a run along any of those lines any fine day in summer, and if you do not find something that will suit both your desires and your dollars I shall be very much mistaken:

Greetings and welcome you'll find there before you
And the oftener you come the more we'll adore you.

The greetings of the blooming flowers and the welcome of healthy surroundings—with safe and perfect service thrown in—for a very small consideration.

SHADE FROM NEXT DOOR.

What is the law relating to trees and their planting along the boundary line between two properties? Is one permitted to have trees so near the dividing line that the limbs cast a shadow on the glass on the adjoining property and even the roots penetrate, to the detriment of the growth of stock planted out? E. A. G.

The owner of land has a right to use the land, and the space above and below the surface right up to the dividing line. If the eaves of his neighbor's house or the limbs of his neighbor's trees overhang his land he may cut them off even with his boundary. If the roots of his neighbor's trees extend under his land he may dig down and cut off these roots up to his own line. If he had not this power he might not be able to erect a building or dig a cellar within several feet of the boundary of his own land. He need not give, or have, any special reason for wishing the limbs or roots removed. It is sufficient reason that they are encroaching on his property and he does not care to have them do so. The owner of the land should remember that the limbs and roots of the tree are not his property. When he has cut them off he should throw them over upon the land of his neighbor who owns them, or give the latter permission to come upon his land and take them away. An owner of land, however, has no legal ground of complaint, and no legal remedy, if his neighbor's trees simply cast a shadow upon his land. The neighbor may use his own land as he will, even though such use cut off the light and air from another. Attorney.

Dorchester, Mass.—F. W. Holbrow, at 303 Harvard street, is enlarging and improving his greenhouses.

CINCINNATI.

The Market.

Flowers of all kinds are scarce and the wholesale houses are cleaning up every day. Carnations are small, but easily bring $2 per hundred. Roses are scarce and poor, Beauties fair and selling well. A fine lot of plumosus is received.

Society Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held Monday evening, July 10, the guests of the evening being President Philpott and Secretary Pyfer of the Chicago Florists' Club. It was election night. The result was as follows:

President—Gus Adrian.
Vice-President—William Murphy.
Treasurer—Edward Forter.
Secretary—Alex. Ostendarp.
Director—H. Greensmith.

After the business of the evening had been disposed of, both Messrs. Philpott and Pyfer gave entertaining talks.

The outing committee has everything ready for a grand time. Tickets are on sale by the wholesalers and many others. Everybody is expected to come.

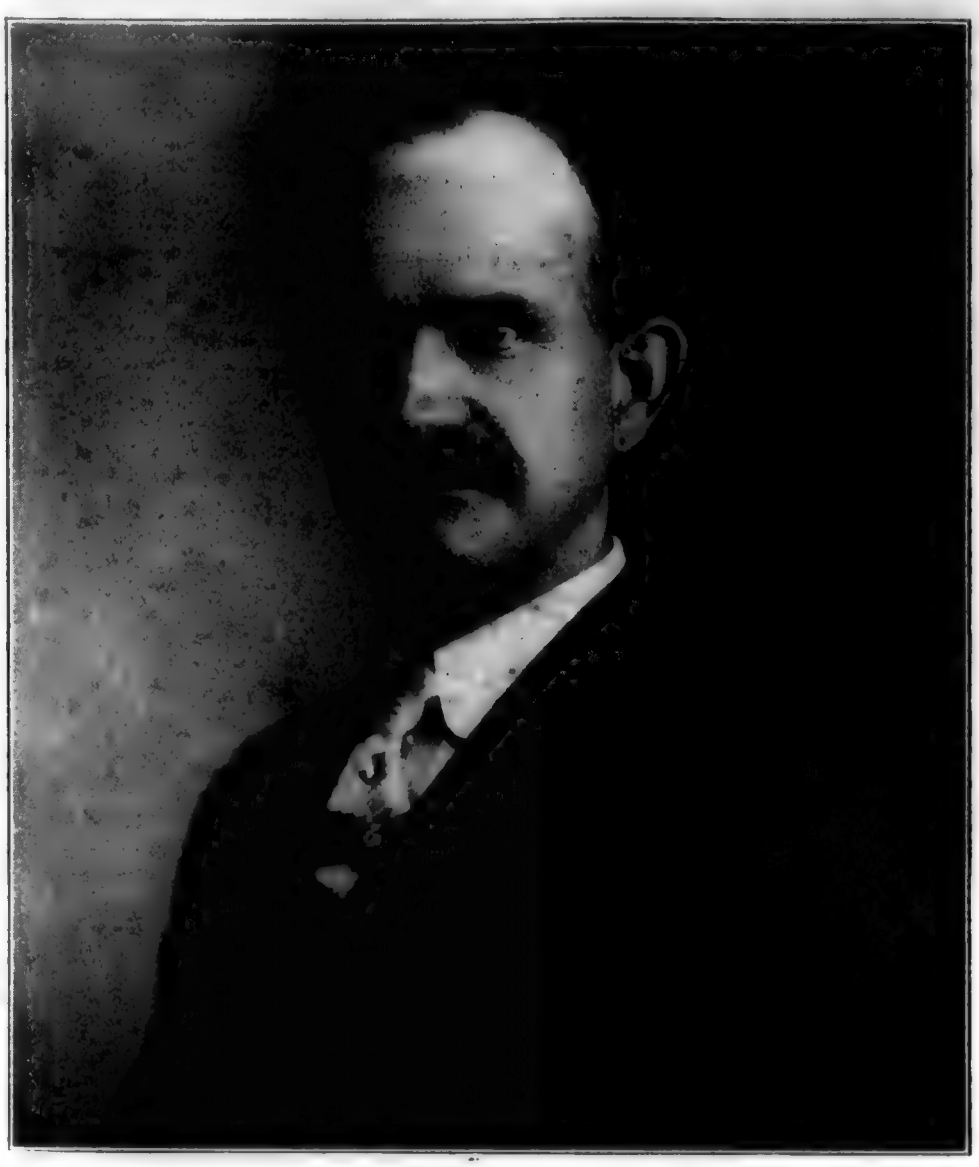
Various Notes.

George Tromey is doing an extensive decoration at Atlantic City, and is using a lot of asparagus from E. G. Gillett, it being grown by C. J. Ohmer, at Palm Beach, Fla.

Mrs. Irene Ehlen and friends visited the Queen City bathing beach July 9 and had a happy time.

Miss Stella Gockel, daughter of Henry Gockel, Ft. Thomas, Ky., died Saturday, July 8, after a lingering illness.

Haddock Warren Hardesty, father of Thomas Hardesty, one of our leading retail florists, died at the home of his daughter, at the age of 78 years.



Ed. H. Fries and wife are leaving for a trip through the west, taking in Denver, Colorado Springs, Omaha, Salt Lake City, Yellowstone park and part of California. G. M.

BOSTON.

The Market.

The protracted and terrible heat wave which ended July 7 was too much for the cut flower business and rarely, if ever, was trade so completely demoralized. Many flowers were valueless when received and even such as arrived fresh were gone soon after unpacking, unless some customer carried them away. All flowers suffered, but roses and sweet peas the most. The latter were almost ruined and even now, with a little cooler weather, their quality is away below par. The heat has caused an abnormal death rate. Florists had difficulty in securing good flowers for design work and in delivering them in presentable condition. With weather only slightly cooler than a week ago, there is little doing and trade is at about its lowest ebb.

Roses are getting much poorer and the Killarneys, Richmond, Ward and Bridesmaid are almost down and out. Some nice Beauties, Prince de Bulgarie, Carnot and Kaiserin are still seen and there is a fair call for these.

Gustave Adrian.
(New President of the Cincinnati Florists' Society.)

Many carnation men have stopped shipping. At 20 cents to 50 cents per hundred it did not pay to send them in. Few good flowers are now seen. There are nice lots of candytuft, gypsophila, sweet sultan, aster, zinnia and other outdoor flowers, but the demand for these is uncertain. There are plenty of the large gladioli, which sell slowly. Some speciosum lilies are a welcome addition to the short variety of flowers arriving at present. Valley has had a hard time of late and growers must have been heavily out of pocket on it. There is but a poor call for all kinds of green stock, adiantum selling slowly.

Various Notes.

William Nicholson, the noted Framingham florist, has retired from business, turning his business over to William R. Nicholson, his son, who has been manager for several years. Mr. Nicholson has been in business at his present stand since 1890 and has always been a hard worker. He surely has earned a rest for his later years. W. R., Jr., is a good grower, and the quality of stock produced at Pleasant Hill Conservatories will remain as high class as ever. Carnation planting is now in active progress here.

The new yellow forcing rose, Lady Hillingdon, as grown by the Waban Rose Conservatories, is fine. In spite of the intense heat which has prevailed of late, the quality of the Kaiserin and other summer roses here, as well as Killarney and Beauties, is unusually good.

July 11 the committee on gardens of the Massachusetts Horticultural Society visited the extensive and finely kept estate of Thomas E. Proctor, in Topsfield. Here hardy trees and shrubs are to be seen in immense numbers and in variety second only to the Arnold Arboretum. Splendid rockeries, tastefully planted, and large ranges of glass containing plants and fruits showing the highest possible culture, showed that the superintendent, James Marlborough, is a grower of the first rank. The committee was well entertained and greatly enjoyed the visit.

William J. Collins sailed for Liverpool on the Franconia's last trip and will visit seed and bulb growers and nursery firms in England, Ireland, Scotland, Holland, Germany and France on behalf of his firm, Joseph Breck & Sons. Mr. Collins is one of the best known of the club athletes and will be much missed at the coming picnic.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Grey left on the steamship Parisian July 7 for a three months' tour in Europe. We hope both will be rejuvenated by the change. Harry Wild, wife and two children, formerly of Boston and now of Greenwich, Conn., were passengers on the same boat.

The executive committee has completed arrangements for the sports to be held in connection with the coming club picnic at Caledonian Grove, West Roxbury, and programs will be ready to mail within a day or two. There are, as usual, some excellent special prizes.

Miss Grey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Grey, was married at her home in Chelsea July 5, to George Martin, of Fall River. The young couple were handsomely remembered by a large circle of friends.

The severe heat wave which terminated July 7 completely ruined the sweet pea crops of a number of local growers. The previous drought had been hard on them, but 100 degrees or more in the shade for five successive days simply burnt them up, and prospects for the annual sweet pea show July 15 and 16 at Horticultural hall are not of the brightest.

William Sim will commence picking sweet corn in quantity this week. He starts many thousands in pots and gets it in the market ahead of all other local growers. The hot weather brought on his tomatoes with a rush and the daily pick has been immense.

William J. Thurston, the genial manager at the Boston Flower Exchange, left July 8 for his annual vacation, which will be spent among the cooling breezes of Maine.

E. J. Rogean, salesman for H. W. Vose and others at the Boston Flower Exchange, is enjoying a vacation with Mrs. Rogean at St. Johns, Newfoundland.

William Sim and John K. M. L. Farquhar, local visitors at the national sweet pea show, were well pleased with it and other sights seen in and around Philadelphia.

The severe heat wave which caused so many deaths did not, so far as can be learned, cause any deaths in the trade, but several prostrations were reported. Employers in many cases stopped all but necessary work during the hottest days. With 90 degrees in the shade now, it is still difficult to keep cool.

Penn's new store on Bromfield street will have a grand opening this week. The addition will give them double the former show window and floor space and make their store one of the finest in the city.

William C. Ward, of Quincy, the noted pansy specialist, is strong on sweet peas at present and in spite of heat and drought sends in thousands of fine flowers daily to Thomas Pegler.

Andrew Christensen, the Stoneham carnation specialist, continues to have an extra heavy pick of fine carnations. Mr. Christensen plants his stock in later than the bulk of growers and will have a heavy pick for some weeks yet. W. N. Craig.

Sterling, Ill.—The Sterling Floral Co. is building two more greenhouses on their property on Seventeenth avenue. Their business has grown fast in the last few years.

San Angelo, Tex.—The Nussbaumer Floral Co. is this year devoting one house, 12x75, to Cattleya Mossiæ, C. Trianæ and C. Percivaliana.

Derry, N. H.—John C. Chase, of the Benj. Chase Co., has returned from a trip to the Pacific coast, on which he attended the convention of the American Association of Nurserymen at St. Louis and the meeting of the Pacific Coast Nurserymen's Association at San Jose, Cal. At the latter meeting he was the only person present from east of Salt Lake City. During his absence Mr. Chase became a grandfather and he thought it fitting that the news should reach him at a nursery meeting.

.....BUSINESS AND OTHER NOTES.....

Litchfield, Conn.—H. P. Streckfur, of the Rosemore Nurseries, had a remarkably fine exhibit of roses and other stock at the annual grange flower show in the town hall.

Rochester, Ind.—J. H. Shelton has secured a lease of the Dunn greenhouses, on Seventh street, and will conduct them in connection with his own houses. He will continue to have his store and general headquarters at the Shelton establishment, Fulton avenue and Eleventh street, as formerly.

Sandy Hill, N. Y.—Watkins & Son report the best business in the memory of the oldest member of the firm. Plans for building on a large scale will be considered while the price of glass is low. Mr. Watkins, Sr., is actively interested in the building of one of the leading institutions in this busy village.

Sedalia, Mo.—L. H. Archias, president of the Archias Floral Co., returned July 8 from St. Joseph and Kansas City, which he visited on business connected with some improvements at the firm's greenhouses. Material has been received for three modern buildings, 18x100 feet, which will be erected at once. The new additions will be up-to-date in every particular.

Murray, Utah.—It is reported that a number of business men of this town, backed by the Murray Commercial Club, are planning to form a company for the purpose of promoting the building of a range of greenhouses, where it is intended flowers shall be grown to supply the Salt Lake market. J. W. McHenry, president of the Murray Commercial Club, with a number of others interested, recently visited various proposed sites for the new range.

Saratoga, N. Y.—The veteran T. J. Totten has just returned from a week's fishing trip to the Thousand Islands. He had good sport, but what is more satisfactory to him is the way this beautiful resort has recovered from the blow given by the anti-racing law. By the action of the state and local authorities in making the springs free and opening the several charming spots abounding here, visitors are pouring in and business has received a real boom, in which the craft is having a good share.

New Hamburg, N. Y.—Henry Osterhoudt, gardener to W. P. Clyde, reports the annual rose show, recently held at Annandale, quite satisfactory, especially when the hot weather is considered. His climbing varieties are now at their best. Hiawatha is the most profuse bloomer and holds its color remarkably well. Specimen chrysanthemums are promising. Preparations are already being made for the annual fall show, which attracts the best stock grown in the Hudson valley. One of the most profitable things growing in the hardy border is the double gypsophila. This is constantly in bloom, a grand flower for design work.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—Conrad C. Gindra says this was a banner year for bedding stock. Geraniums, as usual, sold best, $1 and $1.50 per dozen for any number.

Finleyville, Pa.—Geo. N. Garland, of the Finleyville Floral Co., is boasting of two marriages in his family the last week in June—a son in Philadelphia and a daughter in Washington.

Monroe, Mich.—The Greening Nursery Co. is adding a greenhouse department to its business, starting with a house 32x150, to be used for the propagation of ornamental nursery stock. J. F. Musiel has been engaged as grower and manager for this new department.

Creal Springs, Ill.—Over 6,000 square feet of glass were recently broken by hail at the greenhouses of Geo. C. Beal. Fortunately, the glass was all insured and Mr. Beal is congratulating himself on the prompt and satisfactory manner in which John G. Esler, of the Florists' Hail Association, adjusted the loss.

Lynn, Mass.—E. F. Dwyer & Sons had an especially fine exhibit of hardy flowers and other stock at the annual spring show of the Houghton Horticultural Society. There was also an excellent display of hybrid perpetual roses, tuberous begonias, etc., from Warren F. Scammon, gardener for W. A. Baylies.

York, Pa.—A. H. Schaefer, of 15 West Market street, sailed from Baltimore June 28 on the steamship Frederick der Grosse, for Bremen. He expected to proceed thence to his former home in Germany, and, after spending two or three weeks there, to sail from Bremen July 29 on the steamship Neckar, on the return voyage.

Beaver, Pa.—A hail storm struck this town shortly after 9 o'clock on the night of June 11 and in a few minutes demolished 1,642 lights of glass, each 16x24, in the greenhouses of W. S. Kidd, and a similar amount in the houses of T. M. Fitzgerald. Mr. Kidd was fortunate in having his glass insured in the Florists' Hail Association, which company promptly forwarded its check covering his loss as soon as it received his statement.

Richmond, Ind.—A fishing party from here, consisting of James E. Jones, proprietor of the Advance Co., his son, Raymond, Fred H. Lemon, proprietor of Fred H. Lemon & Co., and two other local friends, motored to Colon, Mich., June 23. The drive to Colon was made on an exceptionally warm day, and some tire trouble was experienced. Mr. Lemon, standing six feet two inches, and wearing borrowed clothes for a fishing costume, represented a typical Ichabod Crane. Regardless of this, his fine disposition and comical jokes kept the party in a merry condition at all times. Several fine fish were caught by the party, including a garfish, which was forty-two inches long. The rushed condition of the two firms mentioned above shortened the stay of the party, and the return was made June 27, without incident.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1911: President, George Asmus, Chicago; vice-president, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18 1911.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them. We both have them.

THE Chicago Florists' Club voted July 6 to invite the S. A. F. to hold its 1912 convention at Chicago.

THOSE who send inquiries should always sign full name and address. Anonymous questions can not be answered.

WHEN you telegraph an order add the code word "Transmit," which means "Mentioned in your advertisement in the Florists' Review."

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE preliminary schedule and subscription lists for the Royal International Horticultural Exhibition to be held at London, England, May 22 to 30, 1912, have been received.

A BOSTON retailer is holding a "grand opening" of a new store in midsummer! Now, what do you think of that? It used to be said that the flower trade was dead in summer, but nowadays progressive people will tell you it never is so hot but waving a fan will raise a breeze.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission has made an order upon the express companies requiring them to desist from the practice of charging for the weight of the ice used in packing shipments of dressed poultry. A few years ago the commission refused a request for a similar order covering shipments of cut flowers, but the times change and another attempt by the S. A. F. might meet with better success.

THE DORNER MEMORIAL.

Acting on a resolution adopted at Boston, introduced by J. A. Valentine, the secretary of the American Carnation Society recently sent out a letter regarding a memorial fund in honor of the late Fred Dorner. This letter was sent to every member of the A. C. S. Secretary Baur now writes:

"So many contributions and letters of approval and encouragement have been received that we feel confident of the success of the movement.

"We are anxious that this movement be endorsed by the entire membership; that it be unanimous. The amount of the contributions was purposely set at the low figure of $2, so that every member could not only feel that he could afford to contribute his share, but that he could feel that he is giving as much as any of the others.

"To fulfill the plans under consideration it will be necessary to raise at least $1,000, and to raise that amount it will be necessary for every member to contribute his share."

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

Following the Boston flower show, the secretary of the American Rose Society suggested the desirability of preparing an accurate list of the roses of American origin for permanent record. One of the roses exhibited at Boston and which has been filed with us is Madison, originated during the year 1906, the parentage being a cross between Pearl, Bride and Meteor.

One new life member has been added to the Rose Society, which adds $50 to the amount of the permanent fund.

There will be a general meeting of the Rose Society at Baltimore at the Society of American Florists' convention in August. There are some matters that want to be settled that cannot be until that meeting, pertaining to the prize awards at Boston.

The certificates of merit have been forwarded to Messrs. A. N. Pierson Co., F. R. Pierson Co., and Robert Scott & Son, at Sharon Hill, Pa.

Benj. Hammond, Sec'y.

PROFITS ON ADVERTISING.

The growers who have advertised chrysanthemum cuttings in The Review in the last few months have written many letters expressing satisfaction with the results. The following is a sample:

Please discontinue our advertisement, as we are sold out; we have been flooded with orders, selling 125,000 chrysanthemum rooted cuttings and having to return many checks.—Hilpert & Hammen, Baltimore, Md.

Just what did this advertiser get and what did it cost? Here are the figures:

Hilpert & Hammen used Classified advertisements exclusively. The first insertion was March 2 and the last June 29, 1911. Part of the time the advertisement occupied four lines, and part of the time five lines. In all eighty-two lines were used. Their bill was $8.20.

The price of the cuttings was $10 per thousand; 125,000 were sold. The returns, therefore, were $1,250 on an expenditure of $8.20. The cost was a trifle less than three-quarters of one per cent of the sales!

Does it pay to advertise in The Review?

We leave it to you.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The business thus far in July has been considerably ahead of last year and the only ones who have complaint to make are those who are cutting no good stock. The weather has continued abnormally hot, but it appears to have little effect upon the demand; there is a call fully equal to the supply of flowers that are good enough to stand a journey. In spite of the great heat, which has now continued for many weeks, the quality of flowers in general is fairly good; it is a great deal better than one would expect in view of the unfavorable conditions.

The feature of the present week is the increase in the demand for gladioli, the advance in the price of Easter lilies, and the fall in the price of smilax. The weather, hot and dry, has been unfavorable for gladioli; they are neither good nor plentiful, but within the last week they have come into strong demand and stock of no better than medium quality has been realizing the prices obtained in other seasons for strictly first-class spikes. The receipts are principally of three

Long-stemmed Fancy
KILLARNEYS
FINEST ROSES YOU CAN FIND THIS SUMMER

We are handling a large cut of Killarneys grown especially for the summer crop. Most of them run to medium and long stems, and you know that the longer the stem the larger and finer the flower is. The Pink Killarneys have the best color we ever have seen on summer roses. If you are not using these roses, order some at once.

Specially strong on the 6c, 8c and 10c grades

BEAUTIES

Special crop—mostly long stems

Year after year we have supplied the trade with the finest Beauties available in summer. Not only has the quality of our summer crop been exceptionally good, but our growers have been able to maintain a steady supply—we have been able to furnish the best Beauties all the time. If you are familiar with this crop, you already are buying of us. If you don't know these Beauties, we shall be glad to have you get acquainted—there will be profit in it for both of us.

GLADIOLI

America, Augusta and Mrs. Francis King are the three colors and varieties most in demand. We have a large supply. Call on us and get what you want. No order too large for us.

Valley

Order Valley of us and you will draw on a never-failing source of supply. We have the best grade.

Daisies

Shastas that are sure to please; big flowers and a big supply. We can furnish in 1000 lots.

EASTER LILIES

You can get here all the Lilies you need. We have a big supply of fine home-grown stock; these are just the thing for funeral work, also decorations.

HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL GREENS

Here you get the best Fancy Ferns, all the Smilax and Asparagus strings you want, Sprengeri and Plumosus bunches, Mexican Ivy and Galax. No order too large for our facilities and no order too small to receive our careful attention.

varieties, for the average grower has learned that the best demand is for light pink, white, and red. A large proportion of the orders for gladioli name the variety wanted, but the small receipts of miscellaneous glads sell quickly.

The arrivals of Easter lilies have fallen off, the demand has increased and prices have advanced. Cattleyas are in light supply, but in even lighter request. Valley is abundant and not in special demand. Shasta daisies are in heavy supply and the long-stemmed flowers are realizing the usual prices. Carnations, though a few nice clean flowers are seen, are generally pretty well done up by the heat and not many are coming in. A few asters are seen, and the buyers take them up quickly, but it is said that most of the growers will be late this year and that no heavy supplies of asters will be available until next month.

Receipts of Beauties continue about equal to the demand. The arrival of crops on the young stock has relieved the shortage of medium and short stems. The Beauties show the heat fully as much as any other roses, but there are, all things considered, many first-class flowers in the market. Killarney holds its color wonderfully well and some of the growers are cutting a good proportion of long stems. These are selling well. Maryland also is excellent in color and substance, but not many are available that have length of stem to their credit. White Killarney also is showing improved form. Richmond is not in special request. Short-stemmed flowers of Mrs. Ward and Prince de Bulgarie are seen in several of the wholesale houses and are selling well, though there is little call for short-stemmed roses outside the city.

The green goods market has eased up, smilax, which has been scarce for months, having fallen to normal prices.

Frese Becomes Manager.

At a meeting of the directors of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association, July 5, a tender of the management of the company's new wholesale establishment was made to O. W. Frese, and within a few days it was accepted. Mr. Frese is a man of wide experience in the wholesaling of cut flowers. For several years he has been with Poehlmann Bros. Co. and before that with George Reinberg. It is said the offer of the new position came to Mr. Frese in spite of a large number of applications received by the association and that the officers feel that they have made a propitious start through securing his services. He took hold of his new duties July 10 and is busily engaged in fitting up the new establishment at 176 North Michigan avenue, where the company has a four-story and basement building. The Orr & Lockett Co. is building an ice-box forty-five feet long, office and other fixtures. The date of opening has been postponed, but it is expected to be in shape to do business by August 1.

Club Meeting.

On motion of A. C. Kohlbrand, the Chicago Florists' Club voted, July 6, to invite the S. A. F. to hold its 1912 convention in Chicago. President Philpott was instructed to present the invitation to the convention at Baltimore.

The club adopted the recommendation of the majority of the transportation committee that the club travel to Baltimore over the Monon railroad to Cincinnati and thence east by the Baltimore & Ohio, one member of the committee standing alone for the direct route.

A. Zech, chairman of the outing committee, reported on the plans for the annual picnic to be held at Erhardt's grove, Park Ridge, July 23. It is to be a basket picnic. The grounds are reached via the Chicago & Northwestern railroad and the tickets are on sale at 50 cents each in all the wholesale houses. A fine list of pastimes has been arranged and enough committees appointed so that nearly every working club member has something to do. It is expected that the attendance will largely exceed that of any other picnic the club ever has given.

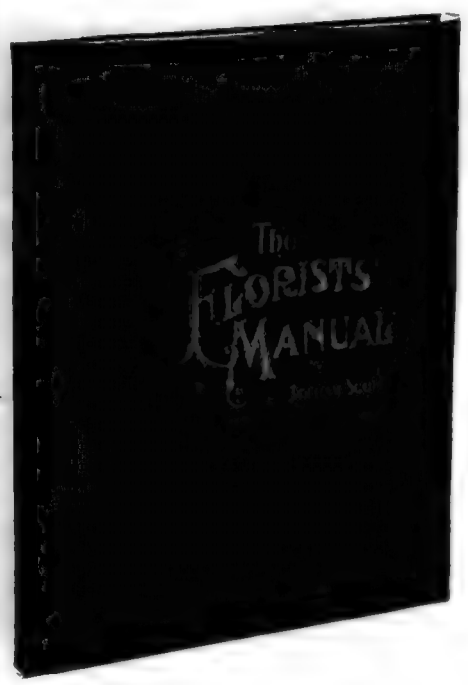
The following new members were elected: Frank E. Gabler, L. Hoeckner, George H. Mohr and W. Langhout.

Various Notes.

W. J. Smyth leaves for California July 15, to be absent a month or more. Mrs. Smyth and family are now on the coast.



John Poehlmann comments on the lightness of the call for short roses; everybody wants medium or long-stemmed stock.

On the second floor of the Atlas block there are now ten wholesale florists' establishments and all are resplendent in new coats of paint and calcimine: Peter Reinberg, Chicago Carnation Co., D. E. Freres, H. V. Tonner, C. W. McKellar, Wietor Bros., George Reinberg, John Kruchten, Zech & Mann, Kyle & Foerster and Hoerber Bros.

H. Van Gelder, manager of the Percy Jones business, is confined to his home with an abscess in the ear.

H. A. Philpott and A. T. Pyfer, president and secretary of the Chicago Florists' Club, attended the meeting of the Cincinnati Florists' Society July 10 and are this week visiting florists in other nearby cities.

Wendland & Keimel point with pride to the Killarneys they are cutting this summer. Next year the output will be more than double, work on the new houses beginning in October.

Moninger Co. for fourth class L. C. L. and special class C. L. rating on shipments of greenhouse materials. The present classifications are such as to impose a penalty on shipments of greenhouse materials, some of the smaller lots in such shipments taking a rating that gives a too high rating for the entire shipment. The Moninger Co. has filed an exhaustive brief and a large amount of evidence, through which it is hoped to secure a change in rating which will result in a considerable reduction in freight rates in this territory.

E. C. Amling Co. says the shipping demand continues steady, all the customers being heard from regularly.

ILLINOIS EXPRESS RATES.

The long looked for and equally long contested reduction of Illinois express rates is again in sight. Acting under the new specific powers conferred by acts of the recent legislature, the Illinois railroad and warehouse commission has issued a call for a hearing July 19, at which the entire question of express rates within the state will be reopened. As the exhaustive evidence covering every aspect of the case which the commission gathered in the hearings which preceded its order of last October reducing the rates is still available, it is not expected that the new inquiry will require extended hearings and it is expected that a substantial affirmation of the previous order, which prescribed reductions averaging about twenty-five per cent, will result.

The original order of the commission was issued on the evidence presented by a number of commercial bodies, including the Illinois State Florists' Association, and was made effective October 15 last year, but was enjoined by the courts at the instance of the express companies on the ground that the railroad act did not confer specific jurisdiction over express rates on the commission. It followed a long series of hearings instituted on the commission's own motion, both in Chicago and the principal downstate cities. It not only reduced rates from ten to forty per cent, but prescribed an entirely new tariff to apply on express shipments within the state, which included a new graduate scale, avoiding many of the alleged "jokers" of the express companies' system.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

The fierce heat has spoiled flowers and increased business. Flowers have become indispensable at funerals, and the death rate has been heavy. Even the down-eastern stock has suffered, for with the thermometer in three figures in and near Boston, they have no advantage in temperature.

The feature of the market is the improvement in the demand for Easter lilies. The supply, which is rather smaller than a week ago, has been consumed at good prices, and on some days there were not enough. The popularity of Easter lilies as a summer white flower is deserved. There is nothing in the market today that gives such good value. Gladioli are rapidly coming to the front. Shipments of 1,000 and 2,000 blooms are arriving. An encouraging sign in these is that named varieties are displacing mixtures. Quantities of fine red and also of one white and of one pink afford opportunity to satisfy the critical buyers who are willing to pay a fair price for a good selection of colors when well grown. Asters, too, are more plentiful, but they are only of minor importance yet, being chiefly suitable for design work and modest bunches of cut flowers.

There are some good roses, notably Kaiserin, Maryland, a few Beauties and some wonderful Killarney, and many poor ones that cause unhappiness to all. Carnations and sweet peas are poor bakers, and the number of good ones are few indeed. Outdoor flowers are playing a more important part.

Greens are in rather better demand. Cattleyas and valley are in fair supply, but most of the demand is for cheaper stock.

The length of this report is due to the changing conditions and is not an indication of any extraordinary boom in business.

The Nephrolepis Family.

Robert A. Craig suggested that a few words about nephrolepis would be timely, and Robert A. Craig is such a thoroughly good fellow that it is a pleasure to do what he suggests.

A little over fifteen years ago Grandpapa Boston came down to this city by way of the Windsor line of boats to save expense in freight charges. The late Lucius H. Foster was a pioneer in this city, growing plants in the benches all summer that he wholesaled in the fall at 25 cents to 33⅓ cents each, that were immediately potted in sixes and as promptly snapped up by the wide-awake retailers at $1 each. When they were gone it was found they would have easily brought $1.25 to $1.50 each. Then the growers found there was a little Klondike in Bostons and everyone could make space under glass as profitable in summer as in winter by growing these ferns. Then came the improved methods. The smart growers found that pot-grown stock was superior to bench-grown. It was more compact and more shapely. Stock was planted out for runners. The runners were potted and shifted and fed. Wonderfully perfect plants resulted. Then there were the new varieties, plain-leaved and crested, children and grandchildren in great numbers. Grandfather Boston kept his place, but many of his children were beauties of grace and symmetry. Then there were cultural improvements in soil and feeding and spacing. Today the Boston fern and its leading type of variation are as popular and as profitable as any plants grown. They are sold in immense numbers and respond read-

MELODY

In selling this rose early in the season we did not recommend it as a summer bloomer, our feeling being that it was an unusually good winter forcer. Now after a month or more of hot weather we find it a splendid summer rose, holding its color and form in fine shape. As a cut flower it has been and is selling extra well and at present we are often unable to take care of all orders that come in to us. Unquestionably we recommend it as the very finest yellow rose and one of the best money makers on the market. For a grower retailing his own cut flowers it hasn't an equal in the rose line today.

The Market.

After a week of the hottest, most humid weather New York has ever known, there is a decidedly dull market. With little stock arriving, the little that comes in is far below top grade. If the hot spell continues through the week there will be little to encourage wholesaler or retailer, and the only way to get comfort or profit out of present conditions is to bow gracefully to the inevitable and make the best of it.

Nearly all the roses arriving are short-stemmed, fully developed, or else the buds remain in statu quo and wilt, from the hot journey from greenhouse to their destination. For carnations 75 cents per hundred seems to be top. The street merchants dispense them at a penny each. A few selected ones touched $1 per hundred July 10, in small lots.

Fine Cattleya gigas were selling at 50 cents top bid July 10. There seems to be a sufficiency. Lilies have improved slightly, getting up to 5 cents for extra quality. Valley holds firm at 2½ cents for the best. The market is flooded with sweet peas, much of the arrivals being of poor quality. These the street men handle and retail at 5 cents a bunch. The best stock sells readily, as always, but at low rates, considering their stems and beauty; $3 per hundred bunches was the top quotation July 11. Gladioli hold firm, waiting for the outdoor competition.

There is little demand for green goods. Smilax was selling at the first of the week at 50 to 75 cents a dozen bunches.

The Greek Outing.

The fifth annual outing of the Greek-American Florists' Association, Thursday, July 6, was an immense success, 651 adults, 84 children and 10 musicians, making a total of 745 in attendance, beating all records of the society. The several committees deserve great credit. The arrangements were perfect and everything was run on schedule time. The prizes were valuable and the contests all enthusiastic. The ladies' races, the fat men, and the two-mile race by professionals were the most interesting. The bowling contest included about everybody and the Greeks carried off the honors in the ball game: Greeks, 7; Americans, 6. Miss Agnes Birnie won a handsome gold bracelet in the ladies' race. Geo. Cotsonas always wins the fat men's race.

In the speech-making after dinner President E. J. Polykranas said:

Friends—and it is in the broadest sense I use the word—I wish to say a few simple words of thanks for the compliment I feel has been paid me in choosing me as the president of this association. First, I wish to thank the guests, whose attendance and liberal support, upon this, and former occasions, has helped the association so much. Secondly, I wish to thank the board of directors and members of this association for their good will toward me, personally, so plainly shown by electing me to the office of president; and last, but not least, I wish to acknowledge the good work already done by George D. Nicholas, our past president, and to thank him in behalf of the association for his energy and untiring efforts. It only remains for me to continue where he left off, instead of having to start at the beginning, as he had to do. I hope when I have finished my term, I may feel as proud of what I have accomplished as he has every right to feel, now that he is retiring from the office.

Success depends as much, sometimes, upon enthusiasm and sincerity as upon ability. I must have some ability, else you would not have elected me president, and I know I am enthusiastic and sincere. It will not be my fault if the association is not more successful than ever.

I hope and trust you have had a good time, ladies and gentlemen, and I wish to draw your attention to our coming ball. Bring your families and friends, as we will give you a jolly good time.

Various Notes.

The early closing in the wholesale section is nearly universal. A few maintain long hours, presumably to receive late shipments, or make them, but the great majority are closed at 5 p. m., some at 4, and many of the principals leave at 1 o'clock and hie them to their bungalows at the seaside or in the mountains. This week finds a goodly number of the employees off to the hills or inland lakes for their fortnight of recuperation.

A. L. Young and Clarence Saltford are doing jury duty. Mr. Young is foreman of the grand jury.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Siebrecht have returned from their two weeks' outing. Mr. Siebrecht is still a carbuncleite.

Mr. Beauplan, manager of the Forster Mansfield Co., was at the Greek outing in his yacht, the Chanticler.

F. H. Traendly, chairman of the Baltimore convention transportation committee, reports the decision to go to the convention by the Baltimore & Ohio R. R., leaving New York at the foot of Liberty street at noon on Monday, August 14, and Twenty-third street at 11:50 a. m., arriving at Baltimore at 4:15 p. m. A special train has been secured and a special dinner will be served at noon. A great crowd is expected. Mr. Traendly desires that all intending to go on the train send in their names by August 10.

J. J. Coan and family are summering at their new home, amid the hills of Westwood, N. J.

The quarterly meeting of the directors of the Growers' Cut Flower Co. was held Saturday, July 8, at its office, 111 West Twenty-eighth street, nine of the officials being present. The report of the company was called very satisfactory and the new location highly commended. Jacob Brackler, of East Williston, L. I., one of the directors, has just returned from a two months' European trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. W. Schenck are in Europe for a two months' vacation.

M. C. Ford has adopted the approved method of spending the week ends with his family at one of the quiet resorts in the mountains or by the "sad sea waves," returning to the grind of the market early Monday mornings.

Arthur T. Boddington is combining business with pleasure at the New England resorts.

The Rickards brothers are both busily engaged in making their summer calls on their gardening friends, and report the outlook encouraging for the fall trade.

Kessler Bros. are busy with greenhouse building and nursery work at Secaucus, and say their new fern is meeting with a large demand for fall delivery.

M. Kakuda, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., left July 8 for a trip to Bermuda.

Among the wholesalers at the Greek outing last week were Messrs. Walter Sheridan, M. C. Ford, J. K. Allen, Charles Millang, P. J. Smith, H. E. Froment and Harry Badgley, also Messrs. Russin, Fellouris, Lecakes and Cotsonas; many growers also from Long Island, including Anton Schultheis and Louis Schmutz.

Geo. V. Nash, of the Bronx park conservatories, with Mrs. Nash, left last week for a two months' trip to the coast, including in their travels Portland and the Yosemite.

John B. Nugent, president of the New York Florists' Club, was married at Baltimore, on Friday, July 7. His bride was Miss Sabery Dorsell, prima donna in the Aborn Opera Co. Miss Dorsell has often sung for the Florists' Club and has a voice of great range and purity. Mr. Nugent received hearty congratulations upon his reappearance in the market July 10.

The New York and New Jersey Plant Growers' Association gave a dinner for eighteen gentlemen at Brighton Beach, July 5, the trip from New York to Coney Island being made by sight-seeing auto.

Bowling.

Many bowlers of the New York club are away from the city. The intense heat of the last week kept some at home. The scores of the faithful were:

DAYTON.

The Market.

It is quite evident on every hand that business has sunk into the same old rut that it usually does during the hot summer months. The supply and varieties of stock are gradually diminishing every day, so that it would be an impossibility to take care of a big demand. Funeral orders seem to be the only thing to keep up trade, with an occasional wedding. On the outside markets are seen chiefly daisies, while sweet peas were a complete failure this year, owing to the continued spell of hot, dry weather. In fact, all outdoor vegetation has been put to the bad. Rain is needed and needed badly. The last good rain that fell in this section was early in May; since then only a few minor showers have visited us, they being too small to be of much value. Naturally, under these conditions one can hardly expect much of stock planted out.

The prospects for asters are no more, as they, like the rest of the outdoor stock, are a failure. Lilies seem to be the queen of the indoor stock and are of good quality. The rose and carnation crops are scant and of poor quality, both being small, but as better cannot be gotten anywhere the demand consumes the greater part of the supply.

Various Notes.

The business year of the Miami Floral Co. ended July 1. It is not necessary to say that they have been quite busy taking their inventory and gathering in old accounts. The last year has proved a satisfactory one for them. They have the most of their summer planting done, and everything looks fine at their plant, especially after taking into consideration the weather conditions. George Bartholomew, who has been manager of the company for the last eight years, will leave for England July 17, accompanied by his wife. They will sail via the Dominion line from Montreal, Canada, on the steamship Lake Manitoba, to be gone on a six weeks' visit to his parents, whom he has not seen in twenty-seven years.

About sixty of the Pleasure Seekers' Club, according to their annual custom, gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Bartholomew July 4 for a jolly time, such as was undoubtedly spent by all. One of the afternoon enjoyments was a clay bird shoot, in which each gentleman took part. Herbert Bartholomew proved to be the best marksman. In the evening there was a display of fireworks, after which music was furnished by C. Feldman and his orchestra, while the other guests danced on the green.

often used for freesias and answer well, but for the best results use pans from eight to ten inches in diameter. The finest freesia is Fischer's Purity. This is larger and purer than refracta alba and, once grown, will be always wanted. A recent issue of The Review stated that a successful eastern grower planted as many as fifty bulbs in a 10-inch pan and secured as fine spikes as when he used half that number. Freesias like a light but moderately rich soil. Any manure used must be well decayed. After placing in the soil, water well and keep out of the sun until growth is started. Then give full light and an abundance of air. When well started, the pans, pots or flats can be stood on a bed of ashes and kept outdoors until the last of September.

Sweet Peas.

Seldom have outdoor sweet peas made better prices than during the present summer. At this season of the year they are easily the most popular flower on the market. Buyers are tired of carnations and indoor roses pall upon them, but sweet peas always seem fresh and welcome. Now, when the plants are flowering heavily, is the time they need some attention if they are to continue to flower profitably. In dry weather it pays to allow the sprinkler to run among them. From sunset to sunrise is the ideal watering time, as loss from condensation is thus avoided. Let the sprinklers stay two and one-half to three hours before moving; then the ground is morally certain to be well soaked. If a mulch of old manure has been given the plants, the waterings will help to carry some food down to the roots. Keep all seed pods removed. Pull up dead plants. After hot, enervating days a good hosing over will freshen the plants wonderfully.

Myosotis.

The various forget-me-nots should be sown at the same time as the pansies. It is well to sow them, like the pansies, under shaded sashes, to insure an excellent germination. These always retain their popularity for spring bedding and the sale for them in baskets from Easter until Memorial day seems to increase each year. Every country florist should raise a good batch of them, as they are of the easiest possible culture. Good varieties are: Alpestris cœrulea; Eliza Fonrobert, deep blue, large flowers, a fine sort; alpestris Victoria, a neat bushy habit, color azure blue, splendid for bedding and an excellent rock plant. There are also pink and pure white varieties of this forget-me-not. Splendid for culture in pots or benches are Royal Blue and dissitiflora. Where a spreading deep blue variety for bedding is needed, sylvatica fills the bill nicely.

Splendid Opportunity!!

WANTED—As working foreman and partner, man of large and practical experience as commercial grower of roses, carnations, all cut flowers and every pot plant; designer and decorator; landscape gardener, forcing and propagating; also must be good truck farmer. Party must have best of references as to honesty, capability, sobriety and steadiness. Married man preferred.

TO SUCH A MAN I CAN OFFER EXCEPTIONAL OPPORTUNITY

of getting into business for himself. I have just purchased Abingdon Place, containing 95 acres and known for thirty years as the handsomest show place and finest residence in north Alabama and am desirous of establishing commercial greenhouses and a truck farm on the place. With the proper man I will enter into a partnership arrangement whereby I will furnish him, free, a new five-room cottage on the place and all the land needed for a large floral business and truck farm—as much as he will undertake to work. The place is already equipped with a greenhouse 25x50 feet, having ventilators operated by turning wheels and heated by Hitchings hot water system. The heater is large enough to heat a greenhouse twice the size of the present one. There is a second greenhouse 14x40 feet, partly under ground and needing little heat. In addition to the greenhouses there is a large quantity of sash and glass for propagating beds.

Abingdon Place is partly within the city limits of Huntsville, Alabama, and three-quarters of a mile from the center of the city, with boulevard and paved sidewalks all the way in. Huntsville has a population of between twenty and twenty-five thousand, located on the Southern R. R. and Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway, and besides being a splendid local market, with practically no competition, is so close to, and has such fine railroad facilities, that the markets of Memphis, Nashville and Chattanooga, Tenn., Birmingham, Ala., and Atlanta, Ga., are all open to this business. Have already been offered contract to raise double violets for one of the largest greenhouses in the south. Huntsville is both a summer and winter resort for northern people and is known as the healthiest place and having the most delightful climate in the south, surrounded by the Cumberland Mountains, 1800 feet above sea level.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

The Market.

There is hardly any change in the market since last report, except that first-class stock has become scarce. There is a lot of roses coming in from out of town, but nothing fancy except a few long Beauties. Carnations are scarce, hardly any coming in at any of the wholesale houses, and the best are bringing 3 cents. One of the wholesalers is receiving a nice lot of asters, which clean up daily. Tuberose stalks are coming in, but they look poor on account of the dry weather. Gladioli sell well, with clean-up sales at $10 per hundred for choice. Extra good valley and lilies are to be had daily.

The weather has been hot and dry for the last ten days and business is dull, with only funeral work to depend on from now on.

Various Notes.

R. A. McPheron, of Litchfield, Ill., spent Saturday, July 8, calling on the trade. He reports a good business season.

Otto Bruening, of Berning's, has the sympathy of the trade in the loss of his young son, Harold, who died July

Charles Schoenle reports that he will make the trip to Kansas City, Mo., this week with the Million Club for the balloon races. He says he will have to miss the club meeting, but will be back for the picnic.

The Ladies' Home Circle had its monthly outing July 10, at Chain of Rocks park, which belongs to the city water department. The ladies received passes from the department for a ride to the park from the end of the car line and they spent a most enjoyable day.

Adolph Fehr, of Belleville, was here July 7, buying supplies. He says he has had a prosperous season in plants and cut flowers.

Mrs. F. C. Weber, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Weber, Jr., and Herman Weber spent a most enjoyable Fourth of July visiting relatives on the Illinois side.

There is little cut stock coming in at present from Kirkwood. The growers say that their violet, carnation and chrysanthemum plants are suffering greatly from the dry weather and a shortage of water.

reports that he has arranged with the Pennsylvania railroad to carry the St. Louis florists to Baltimore to attend the S. A. F. convention. The round trip fare will be $32, with the usual stop-overs. Mr. Weber says he has quite a few names on his list, of those who expect to make the trip. Anyone who is going to attend should be sure to send in his name not later than August 15.

The local florists and those in near-by towns should not forget the Florists' Club's picnic Thursday, July 20, at Ramona park. There are a great many special features this year. The champion Sanders team will again tackle the Bentzen team for a five-inning game, and the wholesalers' and retailers' teams a four-inning game, and there will be games of all kinds for young and old. Max Peletier's band will delight the young in the dance hall, and there will be boating and fishing on the lake. Should the weather be fine, a record-breaking crowd is expected. J. J. B.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; First Vice-Pres., M. H. Duryea, New York City; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

MANY of the pea fields are said to be burning up.

ONION seed is said to be scarce. What develops next need surprise no one.

THE cucumber and vine seed crops of the central section are reported in good shape, considering the weather.

A ROUND-SEEDED corn is asked for by a correspondent in the east. The New England yellow flint is the best of this class that we know of.

THE seed trade in general is feeling the effect of the unusually hot, dry weather. Good general rains would put more life into the demand for seasonable seeds.

LOUISVILLE reports a short crop of onion sets. The harvest is started. The sets are well matured, but the yield is much below the average, and the acreage is less than half of what it was last year.

THE first of the season's crop of lily bulbs were landed from the boat that reached New York, from Bermuda, July 3, two cases consigned to Wells, Fargo & Co., and four cases consigned to order.

A REPORT from Holland states that a good rain in the latter part of June has relieved the drought conditions which had prevailed for weeks in the seed growing section. Since then much planting and replanting has been done.

BEANS are needing rain, according to reports. This crop, however, seems to stand hot, dry weather better than most others, and it is too soon to say much about it. If rain comes in time for the setting period things will be all right.

THE estimate which appeared in The Review two weeks ago covering the Chicago onion set crop needs to be revised downward. The exceedingly hot weather and lack of needed rain make present conditions about as bad as they could be. The sets are ripening up all right, and the quality is likely to be all that could be desired, but most of the fields will not produce better than a three-fifths yield.

THE carrot seed crop of California is reported to be decidedly short. This crop has been quite short in Europe for the last two seasons, and the reports from there this year make it look as though seeds of the popular market garden varieties of carrot will not be sufficient to meet requirements. The field sorts are doing better, but the demand for these stocks is not so large as for the garden varieties.

THE market gardeners and truckers at most of the principal points complain about the weather. No crop seems to be up to expectations. The celery growers find it hard to get the late settings established and there is quite a scarcity of plants. Tomato vines show a drying up at the roots, which makes it look as though this important crop will be light. Onion crops in general are reported poor. Late cabbage is suffering from heat and drought and, on the whole, the outlook is not bright.

per thousand, under paragraph 263 of the tariff act of 1909.

According to a report from Dallas, the seed houses there recently met a large demand for Milo maize, Kaffir corn, June corn and cotton seed to go to the Comanche county section of Oklahoma, where thousands of acres of crops were destroyed by a heavy storm June 28.

The Henry Field Seed Co., Shenandoah, Iowa, held its annual meeting July 1 and declared a dividend of nine per cent, eight per cent having been paid regularly heretofore throughout the company's existence. Directors were reëlected as follows: Henry Field, A. L. P. Thompson, H. E. Eaton, G. C. Mitchell, D. S. Lake and E. S. Welch, and A. M. Eldridge was elected to a vacancy. Henry Field was reëlected president and general manager, A. L. P. Thompson, vice-president, and H. E. Eaton, secretary and trasurer. It was stated that the postage bill for the year was $15,639.91.

PEAS HAVE SUFFERED.

Jackson, Mich., July 7.—Our vine and other crops in Jackson county have started out very nicely, and we do not believe the extreme heat has done any particular harm. It is considerably cooler today and, as we have up to this time been favored with sufficient moisture, we believe no great damage will result. We cannot say the same, however, for peas. In the northern part of the state they have suffered very greatly. Conditions were worse than during the heated spell last summer.

S. M. Isbell & Co.

WISCONSIN PEAS CUT IN HALF?

The following letter has been received from the head of one of the oldest and largest firms operating in the Sturgeon Bay section of Wisconsin:

"The heat is more extreme and prolonged than any similar experience we have had since being in the seed trade, now covering a good many years, and the effect is very damaging to our crops, but more especially to those that were just in blossom or beginning to pod at the time this heat struck the pea belt.

"Some of our most experienced men write us that they expect the crop returns have been cut right into halves on most green wrinkled varieties, by this hot wave, and you will readily understand this makes it impossible for anyone to give reports that can in any way be reliable to the trade."

PEAS AND BEANS.

Grand Rapids, Mich., July 10.—This morning we received a partial report of the crop conditions, which is anything but favorable so far as peas in northern Michigan are concerned. The extremely hot weather, without any rain, has shortened the early varieties of peas so that we can hardly expect any better results than we had a year ago. With late varieties it is still problematical. If we should have rain and cool weather it would help some, but we fear the extremely dry, hot weather has injured them to a considerable extent, so that even under the most favorable conditions we might have from now until harvest, we could not expect to harvest a full crop by any means. On the other hand, should it continue dry and hot, there is little hope of faring better than we did a year ago. This is the fourth consecutive year of short pea crops in northern Michigan and it is most discouraging to the farmer as well as to the pea grower.

Beans so far, in the northern part of the state, are looking fairly good, but need rain badly. In this section beans are looking better, as we have had some very good rains recently, which helped considerably and, should we have continued favorable weather, we would harvest pretty close to a full crop of beans in this section of the state, but it is entirely too early to make any prediction as to what the outcome will be on the bean crop, as there are many contingencies that may arise between now and harvest.

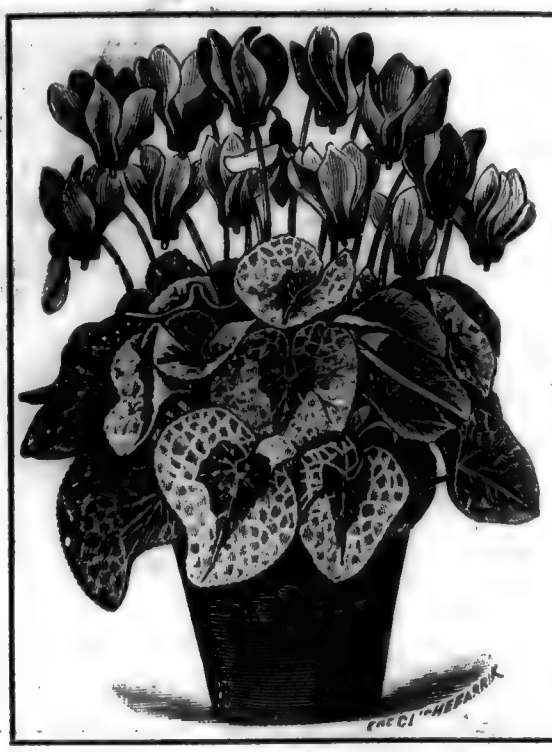
Alfred J. Brown Seed Co.

CRITICAL IN NEBRASKA.

Waterloo, Neb., July 7.—Regarding crop conditions, will say that crops are almost a perfect stand, fields free from weeds, and up to the present time have been doing remarkably well, but the continued hot, dry weather within a few days will doubtless work serious damage unless relieved by rain. It is simply a weather proposition with us. Good general rains will save the situation; without rain conditions will be very serious within a few days.

Our crops being scattered, some sections have had local showers which have been very timely and beneficial, but regard the general situation at present critical.

J. C. Robinson.



IN NEBRASKA AND COLORADO.

Fremont, Neb., July 8.—We have received crop reports from a large number of our growers, the most of whom report from fair to good stands of corn, cucumber, pumpkin and squash. The sweet and field corn are well advanced, clean and free from weeds, and while we believe no serious damage has yet occurred from the hot, dry weather, nearly all of them have been more or less checked and in some cases the leaves were getting quite dry until relieved by the showers of July 5. There is absolutely no subsoil moisture and good general rains or frequent showers will be necessary to pull the crops through the balance of July and the month of August.

The squash and pumpkin crops in Nebraska have nearly all shown a good growth, but have been damaged more or less by the cut worms, squirrels and striped beetles, causing replanting in some cases. These crops also have suffered from the extremely hot weather, wilting during the middle of the day, but we believe the most of them were also relieved by the rains of July 5.

The muskmelon and watermelon crops in the southwest range from poor to fairly good stands, according to their being planted about the time of the early rains or later, the later planted crops showing poor stands or not coming up on account of the dry conditions. We have received some reports stating there were showers the latter part of June and we trust the muskmelon and watermelon crops will show improvement and with sufficient moisture the balance of the season make fair crops.

The cucumber, melon and squash crops being grown under irrigation in the vicinity of Rocky Ford are somewhat late and will average about two-thirds of a stand on account of the cold, backward spring and lack of water early in the season. We understand quite a large acreage being grown for some of the eastern houses has been plowed up and abandoned and planted to other crops for the above reasons. We also understand some of the acreage in that vicinity has been contracted under some of the new ditches, quite a distance from Rocky Ford, where they are apt to be short of water.

Taking everything into consideration, and the fact that we still have the larger part of July and all of August, which are our hottest and driest months, to go through, we cannot anticipate large crops of sweet and field corn, cucumber, melons, pumpkin and squash. We have, however, a good acreage contracted and planted of nearly all varieties in our line and with fairly good growing conditions the balance of the season, hope to fill all orders in full.

IS SEED TRADE LOCALIZING?

In a recent issue of the Michigan Tradesman, Alfred J. Brown, of Grand Rapids, had an interesting article on "The Seed Trade—Some Facts About Its Growth and Development." While written for the planter rather than for the seedsman, the concluding paragraph will be of interest to the trade. It is as follows:

"A word might be said about the mail-order seed trade: While it is true that some large mail-order houses continue to do a thriving business through their catalogues, it is a fact that the seed business has been steadily localizing itself. There is now not so much sending away 500 or 1,000 miles for seeds to be sent by mail as formerly, for the consumer can buy them from his own dealer. He can not only get as good at home, but can get more for his money. Consequently most of the standard seeds that are planted are more or less bought from the local dealer in the community where the sower of the seeds resides. Under such conditions the town, no matter how small it is, usually has one or more dealers who handle vegetable seeds in bulk, as well as all kinds of field seeds for the farm. In this particular respect the evolution of the seed trade has greatly improved."

IMPORTS.

The imports of seed through the port of New York for the week ending July 1 were as follows:

Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.	Kind.	Pkgs.	Val.
Anise	153	$1,474	Cummin	83	$ 866
Canary	752	3,759	Millet	1,005	3,249
Cardamom	59	2,364	Mustard	400	2,781
Celery	200	4,347	Other	...	5,520
Clover	30	7,591

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $1,806.

CATALOGUES RECEIVED.

When you employ a lawyer in matters of importance what do you consider most—his fee or his services? No man knows what his services are worth better than a lawyer, and he seldom asks less than their value. It is better to have a good lawyer and pay the price, than to have a poor one and lose the case. Of course, occasionally a poor lawyer wins a case which you might profit by, but if you strike an average you will invariably find the good lawyer is the most economical to employ by far. In buying lily bulbs or any kind of bulbs it is more economical to buy the best you can in regard to quality. Every grower will realize this if he stops to think. Now is the time to consider lily bulbs from storage for fall flowering. When fall comes you will wish you had them and it is better to have them than to wish you had. Order now. You can have Horseshoe Brand Giganteum, Formosum, Auratum and Magnificum of very good quality for delivery now or later. Prices are very reasonable. Write us.

GARDENERS INCORPORATE.

The National Association of Gardeners took action Monday, July 10, to obtain a charter, meeting for that purpose at Madison, N. J. There were present: Wm. Kleinheinz, Ogontz, Pa.; Thos. W. Logan and Jno. Dodd, Jenkintown, Pa.; Xavier Smith, Philadelphia; E. Trethaway, Tarrytown, N. Y.; H. A. Bunyard and W. E. Maynard, New York city; W. J. Stewart, Boston; M. C. Ebel, Madison.

The charter, as presented by the executive committee, was approved, the following being selected to act as trustees for the ensuing year: Wm. Kleinheinz, Thos. W. Logan, M. C. Ebel, Jno. Tyson and W. E. Tricker.

A committee on by-laws was appointed by President Logan to make necessary amendments to the present by-laws to conform with the new conditions under the charter and report at the next annual meeting. A special meeting of this committee has been called for July 17 at Horticultural hall, Philadelphia.

M. C. Ebel extended an invitation to the association, on behalf of President Dowling, of the Morris County Florists' and Gardeners' Society, to participate with this society at its annual flower show, to be held in Madison, October 26 and 27. He also suggested that the association hold its convention in Madison on that date, and this was favorably acted upon by the executive committee.

The guests were entertained at dinner at the Madison House by Mr. Ebel, after which the company enjoyed a carriage drive to the magnificent Twombley and James estates and to the Florham Farms greenhouse plant of Chas. H. Totty. At the latter place, in the absence of Mr. Totty, who is enjoying an outing at Canandaigua, N. Y., Wm. Tricker, the superintendent, showed the visitors over the extensive plant. At the Twombley estate John Tyson, the superintendent, led the party over many portions of the 2,000-acre tract, including the immense greenhouses and the sunken gardens. Another cordial reception awaited them at the James estate, where Wm. Duckham presides and where the artistic garden effects and the perfection of everything under his care are widely famous. The party was entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Duckham at their home. The visitors also investigated the laboratories of the Aphine Mfg. Co.

J. A. S.

Redlands, Cal.—Sidney Hockridge, of the City Nurseries, reports an excellent season in carnations, with an unusually large percentage of perfect blooms. Though the output was much larger than last year, yet the demand was equal to the supply.

Freesia Purity

From Original Stock—Greenhouse-grown

ALL those who grew our Greenhouse-grown Purity Freesia last year have given it highest praise and have in many cases increased their orders this year, thereby giving their unqualified endorsement to its merit.

Our bulbs have been grown by a Freesia Specialist, under glass, in a temperature of 45° to 50°, especially for us under contract, and are well-matured, fine, plump bulbs. This method of growing ensures stock being absolutely true.

HYDRANGEAS

For Summer Flowering

We have an unusually fine lot of Hydrangeas, which have been held dormant all winter. These plants are now in bud and bloom, and will flower in fine shape during July and August. We have a fine lot of blue Hydrangeas, as well as pink. Plants are in splendid shape for immediate use, and will flower during July and August—at a time of the year when they are in the greatest demand. We can furnish these plants in ordinary butter tubs at $2.00 and $3.00 each. Plants in new cedar tubs, painted green, with handles, as follows: Well budded plants in 14-inch tubs, $3.00 each; 16-inch tubs, $4.00 and $5.00 each.

FERNS

We have an exceptionally fine lot of Boston Ferns of the Harrisii type; also a splendid lot of Pierson Ferns, good, bushy, well-grown plants, in 8-inch pots, that will please the most critical buyer, $1.00 each.

LILIUM HARRISII

(The Bermuda Easter Lily)

We offer a selected and carefully grown stock of the original pure Harrisii. There are only one or two lots of bulbs on the island as good as the stock that we offer. We take pleasure in offering this stock, because it will be found to be very superior to the average stock that is generally offered. This is one of the healthiest and cleanest lots, and will give much better satisfaction than the stock usually obtainable. Our customers who had Harrisii from us last year stated it was the best they had received in years. We have only a limited stock, which we are offering; and when stock is exhausted we shall have no more to offer this season. Fine selected bulbs, 6/7-inch, 350 to the case, $16.00 per case, or full 1000 lots at $45.00 per 1000; 7/9-inch, 200 to the case, $17.00 per case, or full 1000 lots at $80.00 per 1000; 9/11-inch, 100 to the case, $18.00 per case, or full 1000 lots at $175.00 per 1000.

Vegetable Forcing.

FERTILIZER FOR CUCUMBERS.

Can you give me the formula for the ideal soil for cukes? We have been forcing cukes under glass for several years, but, though we fertilize with horse and sheep manure, also using nitrate and phosphate, our soil seems to be exhausted early and does not have the power to last the season out. We use new soil every year. Any information on the subject will be appreciated.

R. C. H.

Horse manure, when good, is fine for cucumbers, but when poor it is worse than nothing. Too often its value is overestimated by figuring it according to the given analysis. I think that if you would use part cattle manure you would get better results.

Even good natural manures, however, are not properly balanced for cucumbers. Some commercial fertilizers should be used also, choosing those high in phosphoric acid and potash, as there is plenty nitrogen in good manure, but not a sufficient percentage of potash and phosphoric acid.

The published analyses of manures have reference to good manures, and cow manure usually runs much the same, but horse manure often has fifty to ninety per cent of straw added to it and is also often ruined by being heated and musty, so that all nitrogen has evaporated. It must be taken care of and turned and wet down occasionally to save it.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

Pittsburg is still in the midst of the hottest weather on record since 1881, and at this writing there are apparently no better prospects in sight. Trade naturally suffers in consequence. Stock is generally poor and there is not any too much of it. Asters have made their appearance, but so far they are not worth much. Beauties, lilies and valley are the best flowers coming in at present.

Various Notes.

E. Ashcraft, of the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co., left Saturday with his family to spend two weeks in the wilds of Butler county.

The Zieger baseball club defeated the A. W. Smith Co. club by a large score and is now out with a challenge to any club of florists in western Pennsylvania. They have as a pitcher Ray Dasbach, the invincible two-handed pitcher, who up to this time has been "unhitable" except by Billy Hall, who managed to hit the ball with his stomach during the last game.

Harry Graves, of the Zieger Co., is spending his vacation at his old home in Beloit, O.

Religious services will be held Sunday evening, July 16, at the pavilion at Uncle John Wyland's. All florists have a special invitation.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston, June, 1912.

It is reported that G. W. Carlson, Ernest Addell, Axel Anderson and A. J. Swanson will engage in the nursery business at Marquette, Kan.

The McKay Bros. Nursery Co. has purchased thirty acres of land at Waterloo, Wis., with the intention, it is said, of establishing its headquarters there.

The Department of Horticulture at Cornell has in hand manuscript for the fourth report on its peony investigations, which Prof. Craig hopes to get through the press before long.

Michael F. Toomey, proprietor of the Oak Hill Nurseries, at Roslindale, Boston, Mass., who filed a petition in bankruptcy June 8, has now filed schedules in which he acknowledges debts aggregating $42,538.57. His assets amount to $7,469.12. Of the liabilities $30,818.57 is unsecured and $10,920 secured. Among the largest creditors are the United States Finance Co., which has a claim for $4,000, secured by two mortgages on Franklin property; Robert H. Bean, $3,700 loan; Margaret E. Toomey, Geneva, N. Y., $2,000 loan; F. E. Watkins, $2,000 loan.

NURSERYMEN'S MAILING LISTS.

[Extract from a paper by A. E. Robinson, Bedford, Mass., read before the American Association of Nurserymen at the St. Louis convention.]

It is during the last few years that the manner of selling nursery stock has developed along mail-order lines, until now nearly all the larger and many of the smaller concerns are issuing catalogues of some description, both wholesale and retail.

It has therefore come to be that the nurseryman's mailing list forms an important factor in his equipment. It represents, in a large measure, the selling power of his business. Its value, of course, depends upon the manner in which it has been built up, and the regularity with which it has been revised and corrected. It is in view of the fact that so many firms are now doing both a wholesale and a retail business, sending their catalogues broadcast throughout the country, that it becomes necessary to emphasize the importance of having our mailing lists properly classified, or so divided as to place the names of wholesale and retail buyers in separate lists.

Now, as I understand it, we have at least three classes of buyers of nursery stock: The nurseryman, or grower; the middleman, or dealer, and the general public. Perhaps we might go a little further and make a separate list of public grounds, parks and cemeteries, though, so far as the mailing list goes, they should be served with the retail catalogue only.

Now, as to the first class, the nurseryman, the grower who buys in large quantities to sell again at wholesale: His margin is necessarily small and he buys not so much to make a lot of money as to complete his assortment. His trade is largely with other nurserymen, and with dealers, whose orders he packs. He is the man who is entitled to the lowest wholesale trade rates. It is to him, and him alone, that surplus lists should be mailed. He is the legitimate nurseryman and is in a class by himself.

Then we have the dealer, the middleman, who buys to sell again at retail. His lists are often long, and for but few of a kind, covering nearly everything listed in the catalogue. He is not a nurseryman and should not be classed as such. He may be a florist, seedsman, landscape gardener or what not, but he is in every sense of the word a dealer, who buys his stock from the nurseryman and sells it to the general public. He is entitled to wholesale prices, but not to the nurseryman's trade rates, nor should he receive the surplus lists sent out by some nurserymen, offering stock at ridiculously low rates.

Then we have the retail buyer, the general public, the planter, or, as other lines would describe him, the consumer. It is to this class that the great mass of our catalogues go, and it is between this and the other two classes I have mentioned that the lines should be sharply drawn. The prices quoted in our retail catalogues should, of course, represent the true value of our stock, and should be high enough to protect the dealer, and to lend dignity to our craft.

Now, I am not to take up the question as to how to make a mailing list, but I do want to say right here that a mailing list, fit to use, is something that can not be bought in the open market. Now, it is not necessary for me to tell you gentlemen, who are doing a general mail-order business, issuing two or more catalogues annually, how important it is to have your mailing lists checked up carefully at the close of each season. Unless this is done and done thoroughly, dead wood is bound to accumulate; names of retail customers will find their way into the wholesale, and names of wholesale buyers into the retail lists, all of which means large and unnecessary expense in mailing catalogues, and confusion in pricing orders.

I am pleased to note that at least three or four of the larger concerns with whom I am acquainted have their mailing lists classified as outlined above, and are issuing trade lists, wholesale price lists, and catalogues accordingly.

PACIFIC COAST.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business conditions are about the same as previously reported. Funeral work constitutes the major part of the business, with a few belated weddings to fill in. Stock is plentiful in all varieties. Sweet peas are in profusion. It is hard to maintain any standard of prices, as some of the smaller stores persist in cutting prices in order to get the business.

Carnations are holding their quality well, regardless of the warm weather. The rose stock has been plentiful. The Maryland rose is useless here as a summer rose, as it frequently goes to pieces over night. New ferns are coming into the market, displacing the old crop. The storing of ferns is not practiced in this section, as the weather permits gathering them the year around. At the greenhouses the forces are busy planting the carnation beds with new stock.

Various Notes.

S. R. Lundy, representing the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, is calling on the local trade.

S. H. Forshaw, of Pendleton, Ore., was in town over the Fourth.

E. R. C.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The weather for the first part of July has been quite cool in this neighborhood. The thermometer has not registered higher than 62 degrees, though it is much warmer in the interior towns. Consequently flowers of all kinds are in splendid shape here for keeping and shipping. Roses and carnations are much better than those usually seen at this season of the year and all sorts of outside stock show the results of the cool summer breezes.

Business is not brisk and would exist in name only were it not for the wedding orders that have been liberally sprinkled around town. Funeral work has not kept pace with decorations for more pleasurable occasions, and much light colored stock has been thrown away. Gladioli and dahlias have not been in as good demand as in former years and it is useless to quote prices on them. Orchids, valley and other choice flowers hold their own fairly well, but flowers of most kinds can be bought for almost anything the retailer chooses to allow.

Various Notes.

H. M. Sanborn, of Oakland, who has been confined to his home for several weeks by a severe injury to his foot, is able to attend to business again.

The Pacific Coast Horticultural Society will give its second annual picnic at San Anselmo, July 23. Coppa's Villa has been secured for the occasion and everyone is looking forward to an enjoyable outing.

H. M. Lichty, well known to the trade, is here from Seattle for a short visit.

C. S. Lansing, of Salem, Ore., and his daughter, who have been in San Francisco for a week, have returned to their home town.

M. McDonald, of Orenco, Ore., and A. W. McDonald, of Toppenish, Wash., both of whom attended the nurserymen's convention in San Jose and spent a few days at its close in town, have departed for the northern country.

George Fitzgerald, who took a flying trip to southern California last week, is back in town again. G.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

With the Fourth of July in the past and summer here in earnest, business shows the dullness here which characterizes the florists' trade all over the country. A great many of the city people have gone to the country, the mountains and the seashore. However, since Rochester is such a cool place, with its numerous parks and its lake shore, a large percentage of its people take only short trips and so remain at home during the greater part of the summer.

As a result of the hot spell last week, all flowers grown under glass are poor in quality and short-lived. Consequently the summer trade has grown tired of roses, carnations and orchids, and a few local florists are making up some attractive baskets filled with garden flowers, arranged in water. These are in great demand because of their uniqueness and their lasting qualities. The baskets are made of birch bark, wicker and glass. Coreopsis and white phlox, arranged in birch bark baskets and tied with yellow gauze ribbons, are also good sellers. Lavender and white Japanese iris, with a few sprays of gypsophila, in wicker baskets, have been in great demand. Late pansies, lavender and yellow, arranged in fancy china dishes and tiny baskets, are fascinating. Pink and white sweet peas, with just a touch of forget-me-nots, in colonial glass baskets, are sold as gifts for the newly arrived babes and their mothers. Dainty hand-painted jars, filled with tiny pink rosebuds and forget-me-nots, are also used for this purpose. Pink ramblers, with coronilla in pink and white or a few sprays of gypsophila, have been used a great deal for centerpieces during the last two weeks.

The wholesale price of Killarney, Maryland, Richmond and Carnot roses has been greatly reduced since July 1, and consequently the retail price is lower. Sweet peas are plentiful. Carnations are sold for a song, for they are extremely small at present. Baby gladioli are past and the summer gladioli have not arrived as yet.

All interest is centered in the decorations for the Shriners' convention, and local florists are planning various decorations for their own windows, such as Shriners' emblems, floral camels crossing the desert, etc. The decoration trade for the week promises to be immense.

Candidum and Harrisii lilies are scarce.

Various Notes.

Half holidays for the employees of nearly all the downtown florists began July 1 and will continue until September.

J. B. Keller's Sons have booked several large orders for the convention week.

Wilfred Keller is spending the summer at Lake Canandaigua.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin C. Armbrust spent last week at Mount Hermon, Mass., and New Britain, Conn., the home of Mrs. Armbrust.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

It seems impossible to define any hardest season of the year in the flower business, or any best season either. When one has business he frequently hasn't the stock, and vice versa. There is a little business, even in July, and even in this July, the hottest in forty years, but how to fill the orders is the question which confronts the retailer today. The grower is doing his best to supply the demand and, considering the severely hot, dry spell of the last few weeks, he is doing well. My Maryland is about the only pink rose that is making a showing just now, and there are a few good Kaiserins to be had. Valley is small, but enough can be obtained to fill the orders. Outdoor sweet peas have been the greatest disappointment, since so many have depended on them. Rubrum lilies are coming in and are good for funeral work, although hard to handle because of their brittleness. Daisies are good to fill up the cooler, but the demand for garden flowers is short.

July business is holding up fine, and there is still much wedding work.

Various Notes.

Fred Witthuhn and John Leuschner left last week for Germany. They expect to be gone six weeks or two months. Karl Witthuhn is in charge of the Witthuhn store.

O. C. Knoble is taking a month's vacation. He will probably make a trip in the east before returning, August 1.

Several florists and their wives spent July 4 at Rockhurst, guests of H. P. Knoble.

Harry Jones, of the Jones-Russell Co., spent last week in Indianapolis.

At the meeting of the Florists' Club Monday night, July 10, it was decided to hold the picnic July 20 at Puritas Springs park, to which every florist in Cleveland and vicinity is cordially invited. A big program has been arranged for the entertainment of those present. All the stores will close at noon, including the wholesale houses.

BEAUTY PLANTS

¶ Note the low prices on both 2½-inch and 3-inch Beauties. These bargain prices are made only because we need the room. The stock is first-class in every respect.

We also have quite a lot of rose plants of other varieties, from 2½-inch and 3-inch pots, that we are anxious to clear because we need the space. This is first-class stock in every way; clean strong, healthy plants. They would be good value at considerably higher prices than those asked. Look over the list. You will find some fine bargains there. Order at once. These roses can't last long at these prices.

COLUMBUS.

The Market.

Trade has been unusually heavy for this time of the year. There have been some large orders in funeral work; on nearly every day in July, so far, there has been a great quantity of that sort of work.

Stock has fallen off considerably and at times it was hard to get enough flowers to go the rounds. Roses are in good supply, but the quality is poor and it is surprising they are even as good as they are, considering the heat and the dry weather. There was a good rain here July 8, but it did not cool the atmosphere in the least. Carnations are quite plentiful, especially white, and they are fairly good stock, as a rule. Though the most of the old stock is thrown out now, what is left and taken care of has proved a winner, as it would be difficult to get along without it.

Valley is somewhat scarce, with the demand light. Sweet peas have gone back greatly since the hot wave struck us and there are few good ones on the market now. There have been quite a few lilies on the market, and they find ready sale. Outdoor gladioli are making their appearance, and they sell well.

Various Notes.

The outlook is good for a good sized crowd at the picnic, July 19, at Buckeye lake. Arrangements have been about completed for a good day's outing. Cars will leave Columbus at 6:45 a. m. and return at 8:30 from the lake.

Sherman Stephens reports good business in funeral work, with other business at a standstill.

The Livingston Seed Co. is cutting some good lilies. Their sweet peas are falling off, owing to the intense heat.

William Graff has had several good funeral orders, which have used up lots of stock.

The Fifth Avenue Floral Co. had about half of its carnations planted ten days ago, and the plants are now looking fine. This firm is cutting some good white carnations from the old stock. J. M.

Saratoga, N. Y.—Christian Dehn is delighted with the show-window conservatory built by Lord & Burnham Co. from his own design. He says there is nothing that catches the eye so quickly as an attractive front.

Springfield, Ill.—Arthur C. Canfield, the florist at State street and Grand avenue, has leased the Capitol Greenhouses, at Capitol avenue and Fourth street, formerly conducted by George Van Horn, and has purchased Mr. Van Horn's entire stock. George Dinkel will be Mr. Canfield's manager at this new branch.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Weather Bureau thermometer at the street kiosk on Pennsylvania avenue has showed but three days between June 20 and July 9 when the temperature was below 90 degrees. Most of the time it was over 100, and on two successive days it was 107 degrees. This will give an idea of what one can expect of stock, also of business. Outside flowers are poor, due almost entirely to the weather. Phlox is dried up and gladioli are scarce and far from satisfactory. Asters are coming in slowly. They are suffering from dryness, are small and have poor stems. Dahlias do not amount to much, but they are in fair supply. Carnations range from $1 to 50 cents, and they seem to hold their own in popular esteem. Mrs. Taft is about the best rose on the local market. The Washington Florists found this rose on its place and named it. Being unable to identify it or learn its origin, it was sent to A. N. Pierson, at Cromwell, Conn., who praised it and has been handling it. It has been identified as Prince de Bulgarie, but locally it is still sold as Mrs. Taft. It is a light pink with deeper center. New Beauties are coming along in pretty good condition for the first summer roses, but the buds are small. Roses, in short, are running a little better than usual for this season. Killarney is clean but not quite up to standard, and Bride is poor. Kaiserin is accounted the best white. Caladiums are shown in the windows and are selling freely.

The Florists' Club outing this week promises to be one of the most agreeable occasions of the kind in many years. A big program of sports and speeches has been prepared. There will be visitors from Baltimore and other cities.

Most of the flower stores have rearranged their show windows and the popular design is composed of water, rocks, lilies and general rustic effects. Marche, Gude, Small, the Washington Florists and others have produced exceptionally attractive windows.

La Salle, Ill.—Ella J. Porter is now nicely established in her new store, at 623 First street. The formal opening was held July 1.

Saratoga, N. Y.—Henry Schrade is entitled to the title of the Broadway florist, having a handsome store on that popular boulevard. Keeping up a good supply taxes the resources of his large plant.

REMEMBER

Araucarias Are Our Specialty

No one can beat us in this line.

WARNING.

DON'T BE DECEIVED! Now, as well as for the last 25 years, we hold the ground as leaders in the importing, growing and shipping of our specialty, the Araucaria.

ARAUCARIAS. 6000 just received per Steamer Marquette from Antwerp, Belgium, more coming by next steamer. Araucaria Excelsa, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, palms, etc. Florists, you know we are leaders for the last 25 years in importing, growing and shipping this so well known evergreen decorative plant. The Araucaria, more in favor now than ever. Almost every florist knows our Araucarias, therefore no argument is needed for our goods. We know what our customers want and need, and have provided for them and set aside special specimen plants of the Spring Importation 1910. These specimen plants will stand the climate everywhere and are especially adapted for decorating lawns, porches, verandas, bungalows, private summer residences, hotels and boarding-houses at the seashore or elsewhere. GERANIUMS

The steady increase in the demand for Geraniums is proving beyond a doubt that they are the universal favorites with the flower buying public, that they are today more popular than ever before; in fact, the demand during the past season nearly exhausted the available supply. We are increasing our stock for propagation to the extent that we shall produce them in enormous quantity next season, and feel confident that we shall be in a position to fill your orders to your entire satisfaction, but would suggest that your order be placed early. We have already booked heavily on some kinds. Good standard sorts at $18.50 per 1000, from 2-inch pots.

A splendid stock in 3-inch pots, ready for immediate shipment, at $3.00 per 100 and up, including Ivy-leaved in such varieties as Rycroft's Surprise, Mme. Thibaut, Mrs. Banks, Alliance, Pierre Crozy, etc. Variegated Foliage: Silver Leaf Nutt, Mrs. Pollock, Sophie Dumaresque, Mt. of Snow, L'Eleganta and Duke of Edinburgh.

Achyranthes Emersoni, Alternantheras, red and yellow, Coleus, Lemon Verbenas, Swainsona Alba, Hardy English Ivy, 2-inch, $2.00 per 100; 3-inch, $3.00 per 100.

CHEMISTRY OF FERTILIZERS.

Various Effects of Fertilizers.

Thus far we have considered fertilizers merely as a source of plant food to be added to the soil. Every experienced grower knows that fertilizers have various other important uses. A fertilizer may be of value in at least six different ways: First, it may contain additional plant food; second, it may act upon the plant food already in the soil to render it more readily available; third, it may operate to make compact soils more porous or open, so that air and water and plant roots may more easily penetrate; fourth, it may add humus to a sandy soil, thus greatly increasing its power to retain water; fifth, it may act as a mulch to prevent the too rapid evaporation of water from the surface, and sixth, it may act as does lime, to counteract the acidity of a soil. Some fertilizers are of value in perhaps one way only, while others are helpful in several ways.

Commercial and Natural Fertilizers.

Commercial fertilizers, such as bone meal, blood and bone, wood ashes, sodium nitrate, etc., are used merely to supply plant food. In selecting from this list it should be remembered that each of the three essential constituents, nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash; has its own peculiar effect on the growing plant. An abundance of one of these three elements can not make up for a lack of another, any more than a strong link in a chain can make up for a weak link somewhere else. It would evidently be a great saving to the grower if he could know what his soil already contains and what each kind of crop requires.

Natural manures seem to serve several purposes. Besides supplying additional plant food, they may improve the so-called physical condition of the soil. As outlined above, they may serve as a mulch; they may render a compact clay soil more open; they may add humus to a sandy soil to enable it to retain water. The humus has another beneficial effect; the presence of humus seems necessary to the growth of certain forms of bacteria which have the peculiar power of rendering many insoluble compounds soluble.

As pointed out by Prof. Dorner in the March 23 issue of The Review, lime is a fertilizer which influences the soil in several different ways. Heavy soils are made more open by it; sandy soils are bound together by it; it neutralizes the acids formed by the decay of organic manure—that is, it keeps the soil sweet; it renders other plant foods available; it supplies needed plant food; it favors bacterial growth and has an effect on insects and fungous growths.

So varied is the composition of soils and of fertilizers, and so diverse are the effects of the great array of fertilizers now in use, that only patient, persistent study can enable the florist so to adapt his soil, his crops and his fertilizers as to secure a proper return for his outlay of hard toil and hard earned money.

EVOLUTION AND POLLINATION.

Trouble in Fixing Varieties.

Since the introduction of the waved type there has been much discussion about the difficulty in fixing varieties and the reasons for it. Some growers, having secured what was to all indications a fixed stock, discovered after sending it out that it was not fixed. Some growers thought it only occurred when the novelty was sent to California to work up a large stock of seed, or after it had passed into the hands of the California growers. One of the theories advanced to explain this was that some insect in California was responsible for some cross-pollination of flowers. In our own trials this past season no differences were observed between English or American grown stock, since we had seeds of novelties direct from the originators and our varieties were from the introducers. Others say that bees visit the flowers and they believe that crossing takes place in the waved type, which, it is maintained, does not produce normal flowers, in that the pistil sometimes projects beyond the keel.

Poor Setting of Seed.

It appears that, if this view is correct, the poor seeding of the waved type would not occur, or at least that the worse the fault of the flowers the greater the crop of seed. Thus the varieties which seeded freely would become cheap and drive out the others. The writer thinks that the results obtained by the seed growers contradict the theory. It appears that the poor setting of seed may be due to the fact that the pistil may grow out beyond the anthers before the latter are mature and thus fertilization be prevented by irregular development of the parts. Otherwise the pollen may be impotent in some varieties, but this does not occur so far as the writer has studied the reports of the sweet pea breeders. The writer did not observe any pistils showing the defect mentioned, but, as our season was extremely dry, our plants did not make an exceptional growth which would be likely to express itself in abnormal flowers. However, it was observed that some varieties seeded more freely than others. We have planted most of the varieties this year from seeds saved in 1910, and, knowing those which were fixed last year as well as those with rogues of certain colors, we think that some light may come upon this matter of cross-fertilization, if any, in the sweet pea.

No. 9. Arthur Cowee, $5 for the best exhibit of 10 spikes each of a red variety, white variety and a pink variety.

Those desiring copies of the rules governing the exhibition should address the secretary, L. Merton Gage, at Orange, Mass.

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Summer is upon us and so is the quiet season. Vacations are about the chief topic of interest at the stores, while business seems to be practically at a standstill.

A general summing up of the whole season puts most of the florists somewhat ahead of last year, in spite of the discouraging times which we hear so much about. General satisfaction is expressed with May and June business, for the returns were surprisingly good.

Supplies are not so heavy as usual at this time of the year. Rose receipts are light, because replanting is generally under way, but more growers than ever have made arrangements for summer crops and there are excellent prospects for plenty of stock shortly. Carnations are holding up surprisingly well. The flowers are quite small, but the quality in many cases, so far as clear stock and bright colors go, is as good as it has been at any time this spring. The demand has not kept up so well as the quality, and values are low.

Already the buyers are calling for asters, but only a limited quantity can be had. The outdoor crop of sweet peas is the heaviest we have had for several years. The quality of the peas is excellent, but the supply is so great that thousands go to waste.

Various Notes.

Mack Richmond, superintendent of the trade exhibit at the convention, is now receiving telegrams from anxious exhibitors asking him to reserve space. They are showing good judgment in this, too, as space is being rapidly taken up. There is still some space left, but do not delay any longer. No one with anything worth exhibiting can afford to be absent from this show. Address all mail to Mack Richmond, 1312 Pulaski street, Baltimore, Md.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each boiler advertised in The Review is a good boiler, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

ONE HOUSE AND ADDITION.

Would three coils of pipe—two coils of four 1½-inch and one coil of four 2-inch pipes—heat a house 25x100, twelve feet to the ridge and six feet to the eaves, with four feet of glass? We are building a 16-foot addition to our present house. Would 1-inch or 1½-inch pipe be preferable? We expect to heat with steam and wish to keep a night temperature of 50 degrees in both houses. Our location is southern Kansas. C. W. R.

There is no reason why the amount of piping you suggest should not keep up your temperature properly. I would prefer the 1½-inch pipe to the smaller size. I would suggest that, instead of bunching your pipes in coils, you distribute them through the house more. Two pipes on each side, with the others about even distances apart, would give you a more uniform heat through the house than is possible with coils placed so far apart. A. F. J. B.

HEATED WITH FLUE AND COIL.

I am seeking information on the heating question. I have one house, 15 x 75, and am heating it with a brick flue. Now, I wish to ascertain whether I can put a coil in the firebox, install an expansion tank, pipe the house from the coil and make it work successfully. The temperature in this part of Washington state rarely, if ever, falls to zero. Please tell me what size and what quantity of pipe will be needed and what will be the best way to arrange it. W. T. J.

The question does not afford such information as would make a definite answer possible, but it is inferred that for some reason the flue does not heat the greenhouse satisfactorily. As a rule, a combination of flue and hot water heating is not recommended, but in cases like this, where it is desired to supplement a flue already constructed, hot water might be introduced, provided the furnace is four feet long and there is a good draft.

For the heating coil in the furnace use three runs of 2-inch pipe, running a 2-inch flow up from the front end of the coil and connecting with an expansion pipe at the highest point. Then run the flow downhill, about two feet below the ridge, to the farther end, and connect with two 2-inch returns to be carried back to the heater, one on each side of the house.

PAINT FOR STEAM PIPES.

We wish to repaint the iron gutters, posts, hot water and steam pipes. Please inform us whether the asphalt paints commonly sold are suitable for this purpose, or is the effect injurious to roses, carnations and other plants when used on steam and hot water pipes? A. F. C.

Great care should be taken in the selection of paints for use on greenhouse boilers and heating pipes, as if they contain tar the house will be rendered practically worthless for growing plants until the paint has been burned off. A heating pipe with a rough surface will give off more heat than one with a smooth, glossy surface; hence the heavy asphaltum paints, though all right for boilers, are not desirable for radiating surfaces. If asphaltum is used, care should be taken that it is of good quality, or serious harm may result.

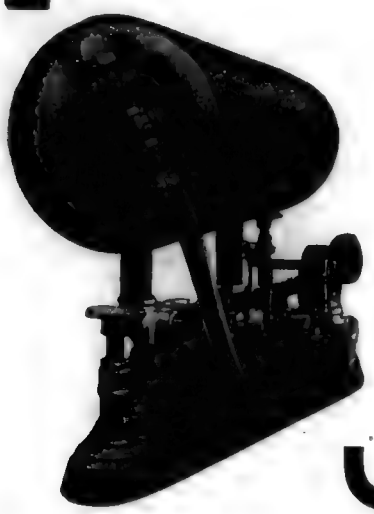
HEATING A PARTITIONED HOUSE



I am building a greenhouse, 22x85 feet, running north and south. The side walls will be four feet high, of boards. The south end will be joined to the boiler-shed. The north end will be glass, except the lower four feet, which will be solid, like the sides. The house will be eleven feet high to the ridge. Will two 2½-inch feed pipes and four 1½-inch returns be about right for a temperature of 50 to 60 degrees? If not, please advise me how to pipe it. I should like to run a glass partition through the house, twenty-two feet back from the boiler-shed, to enclose a room for pot plants. Can I do this and have that end warmer than the other end? I want to use the most of the house for carnations. I shall use a hot water system. I shall have solid beds for the carnations and raised benches for the pot plants. My location is southern Indiana. sired, in a house 22x85 feet, it will be necessary to use two 2½-inch flow pipes and fifteen 1½-inch returns, though only eleven returns will be required if 55 degrees will answer. It will be more satisfactory if 2-inch pipes are used for the returns, in which case twelve will suffice for 60 degrees and only nine will be required to furnish 50 degrees, in addition to the two 2½-inch mains.

If a partition is carried across the house, as proposed, run an additional 2-inch flow from the boiler to the farther end of the room in which 60 degrees is desired, and connect it with two 2-inch returns running back to the boiler. If the boiler is well below the level of the returns, the flows for the main system may be carried upon the plates and the returns on the walls underneath. Give the flow pipes a slight fall and have the expansion tank connected with the highest part of the system. It will be a convenience if valves are placed upon five or six of the return pipes.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

This city has just passed through one of the hottest spells in its history and vegetation of all kinds shows the effects of the drought. Growers on all hands report wells dry and springs low. Everything is burning up and it will take several days of good, steady rain to revive conditions.

Business is at an entire standstill, excepting for funeral work and a little cut flower trade. A number of large funerals have helped to move what stock comes into the market.

Various Notes.

Robert Hunnick, who has been employed as head gardener for William Maxwell, of Rockville, Conn., has resigned and returned to his home at Newport.

William E. Chappell left July 4 for a two weeks' ocean trip and vacation at Norfolk, Va., and vicinity.

There is a possibility that the annual fall show of the Newport Horticultural Society may be abandoned, though nothing definite has yet been done regarding it.

M. F. Pollock, on Franklin street, is making numerous changes and improvements in benching and interior appointments.

O. H. Williams has a large force of men at work finishing the new greenhouses at his place at Pocasset.

Charles H. Hunt was chief of staff to the grand marshal at the firemen's parade, in connection with the municipal celebration of Independence day.

Thomas J. Grey, of Boston and Newport, sailed for Europe on the steamer Parisian from Boston, July 7. Previous to his departure he held a business reunion at the firm's Newport store, at which Arthur F. Barney and J. P. A. Guerineau were present.

HERE IS A BOILER WITH A REASON

IT is the new model 36 steam. Its main reason is economy—greenhouse economy. As we understand it, you are looking for a boiler that is quick to "come up"—easy to "hold back," one that will not boil over and fill your pipes with water—one that you can enlarge if you want to—one that is not an experiment, but a boiler that proves itself not because of what we have said it would do, but because of what it has done. What it has done, is the reason. It is the only reasonable reason to listen to when you are spending your hard dollars. Write us today. Better do it today, because before you know it today will be yesterday.

THE KROESCHELL GREENHOUSE BOILER

Here is the boiler that is making the most wonderful greenhouse heating record in the world. Florists and gardeners who have used other makes are constantly giving the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler the highest praise.

10,788,000 square feet of glass was equipped with the Kroeschell Boiler during the past five years. You will find the new 1910 model Kroeschell Hot Water Boiler in every state in the Union and Canada.

Our Eastern business has been exceedingly heavy the past season.

Kroeschell vs. Cast Iron Boilers

Over 1500 Cast Iron Boilers were replaced by the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler during the past six years. It is a common occurrence for a Kroeschell to replace two to four cast iron boilers at a single place; this is the CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM PLAN, and has saved many florists hundreds of dollars per season in fuel alone, besides a big saving in labor.

OUR HEATING ENGINEER has probably had more practical experience in this line than any other greenhouse man, and we place his experience at your service.

What the Users Say

KROESCHELL BOILER DURABLE In 1894 we bought one of your No. 12 Boilers to take the place of four smaller boilers of another make. Your boiler has done the entire work to the highest satisfaction, saving labor and about one-third of the fuel we used to burn before. We had that boiler up to 1906, that is 12 years, having no repairs on it whatever, except one set of flues we put in in 1900. Last fall we installed one of your No. 14 Boilers, having enlarged our plant. It takes care of 35,000 sq. ft. of glass very easily. When firing we keep the ash door open only about one inch. We think your No. 14 Boiler could carry 40,000 sq. ft. of glass.

A huge arbor of Dorothy Perkins rambler roses, which spread a mass of pink blossoms in front of the Museum building at Roger Williams park, is one of the principal attractions these days. This arbor is one of the many ideas in landscape gardening that are being carried out by the superintendent, Frederick C. Green.

During the last week the city and town councils throughout the state have been drawing jurors for the fall term of the courts and a number of florists and gardeners have been caught in the panels. Among these are George C. Kelley, Charles H. Hunt, Willis S. Pino and George Johnson, of this city; James S. Cowles, Axel F. Svenson, Martin Murphy, James E. Johnson, August Erickson, Albert Beakhurst and Richard Gardner, all of Newport. W. H. M.

Ballston Spa, N. Y.—Henry Bensell, manager of the Schafer estate, is putting in the hottest time of his life building an addition to the plant, using cement for walls and base work.

Hudson, N. Y.—R. W. Allen says the cement company has done its best to cover his plant a la Pompeii, but they will have a hard time to bury him. He is making the fight of his life to get some redress from the corporation.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y.—The W. G. Saltford establishment is one of the show commercial places in the valley, the deep frontage being taken advantage of to give a parklike effect. Three generations of Georges are in line of succession to carry along this successful business. George, Jr., is a sufferer from hay fever and has just submitted to an operation to help overcome it. George III is a lusty youngster, the pride of grandpa.

Support Your Carnation Plants Properly and They Will Support You

Now is the time to put in some of our Carnation Supports, to show you how much more practical, economical and serviceable they are above other makes. Note our reasons.

They are easily put up and just as easily taken down, no tangled mess of wire to store away.

They pay for themselves quickly by the additional and superior blooms gained with the proper support of your plants.

Our No. 1 needs no overhead wires or strings except one thin wire which locks on the clamp in the support, holding it upright and in place.

Our No. 2 Support acts as a stool for your plants, allows no sagging. With this support you use overhead wires or strings to keep blooms growing erect. It opens on both sides so all side shoots can be put in easily at all times. Note the low prices.

The Market.

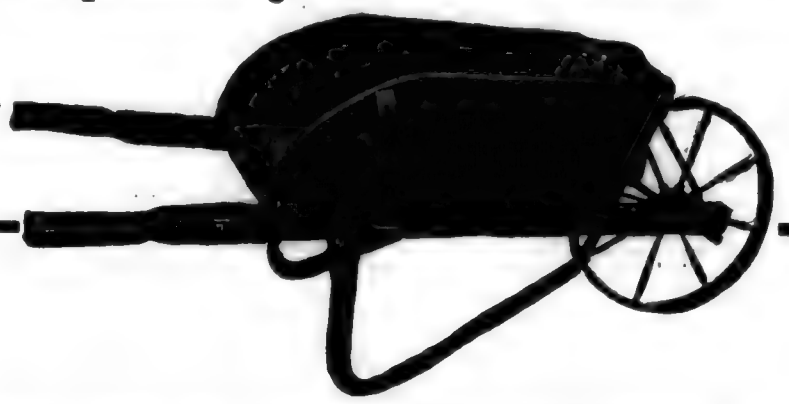
The summer season is now at hand and vacations are in order. Last week brought considerable funeral work, but outside of that business is quiet. Good stock, owing to the extremely hot weather, is scarce.

Various Notes.

Fred Stolti, with A. Wiegand & Sons, Geo. Wiegand and Ed. Bertermann are taking their vacations this week.

A sad accident happened to the two boys of August Duderstadt last week. Carl, aged 9, and Victor, aged 11, were drowned while wading in Fall creek. Mr. Duderstadt has the sympathy of the craft.

The regular monthly meeting of the State Florists' Association was held July 11 at the State House, with a fair attendance. One of the main topics was the much talked of picnic. After much discussion it was decided to give a basket picnic at Fair View park, Thursday, July 20. A chicken supper is to be provided for those not wishing to bring baskets. Anyone wishing a chicken supper should notify the committee at least four days before the picnic.



Bertermann Bros. have traded a number of their East Washington street lots for a strip of ground north of Broad Ripple.

John Heidenreich, wife and daughter left this week for a trip to Europe. They expect to visit Germany, France, England and Holland. They will return about the middle of September.

The Market.

With the thermometer hovering between 90 and 102 degrees every day this month, business has been slack, but there are indications of rain and cooler weather. Roses and carnations are plentiful, but of poor quality. Sweet peas are about gone. Asters will soon be on the market.

Various Notes.

The Wm. Blackman Floral Co. reports business as excellent. The firm is cutting lots of roses and carnations, and some carnations are being cut from the field.

Ben Kramer had a large number of funeral pieces one day recently, amounting to $160.

Julius Niednagel & Sons' roses are looking fine. The usual summer work is in full evidence here.

Louis Fritsch is in Chicago for a few weeks.

Paul Halbrooks, of the Columbus Floral Co., Columbus, O., was here and spent the Fourth of July with his folks. He made the journey in his automobile, without any accidents. He passed through Dayton, O., Richmond, Ind., Indianapolis, Terre Haute and Evansville, and returned home through Kentucky, calling at Louisville and Cincinnati. He had banners on his machine, bearing the names of the principal cities passed through.

Royston & Fenton are still cutting considerable quantities of short roses and will soon be cutting from the dried-off stock.

Karl Zeidler is doing some repairing on his greenhouses. E. L. F.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

The Market.

Considering the season, business is good. We have been spared the heat to which our eastern friends have been subjected, and stock continues to arrive in good condition. Carnations are not so plentiful, especially red, as most of the plants have been thrown out. It is said that the aster crop will be a total failure this year. Some disease has attacked the asters for the last two or three years, and no one seems able to escape it. Sweet peas are readily salable, for they are not to be had in quantities as yet. Some elegant young stock of Beauties and teas is seen. The stems are not extra long, but the color and form make up for the lack of stems.

Various Notes.

The wholesale cut flower department of A. C. Sinram was discontinued July 1. Hereafter he will sell at retail only.

J. A. Valentine left July 1 in his Ford touring car on a trip to Portland and Seattle, intending to go from there down through California. He expects to be gone at least two months. Mrs. Valentine will leave in a few days and will meet Mr. Valentine at Portland.

W. L. White, of Goodland, Kan., is in the city. He is in poor health, and as soon as he gets the strength will go to a hospital to be operated upon. Mrs. White is with him.

Mrs. Irene S. Scott has taken a position in the Elitch-Long Flower Store.

A few days ago an automobile ran into a horse belonging to Ben Boldt, seriously injuring the animal, but he was given attention at once and is now on the road to recovery.

E. P. Neiman is entertaining his brother, O. D. Neiman. They are now at Granby, Colo., on a fishing trip.

SLINGERLANDS, N. Y.

The annual visit of the Albany Florists' Club to Ex-President Fred Goldring was made July 5. About 100 braved the terrific heat and showed their appreciation of the good cheer placed before them. One of the sights of this well kept plant was the rambler roses in almost every variety. They fairly luxuriate here and may tempt Mr. Goldring to grow them in quantity for the trade.

It was the first visit of J. G. Barrett, of the Trojan City. After partaking of the famous Icicle radish, he said he could understand why the club appreciated these outings and felt so neighborly toward each other. The next meeting will be held at the home of President Fred A. Danker and a good time is assured. M.

Glens Falls, N. Y.—H. L. Crandell says the pretty store he opened in the center of town at Easter has proved so profitable that he will continue it. He grows enough stock to supply the demand at both places. A. J. Binley is rebuilding and, regardless of the heated spell, kept at it, being anxious to have the place shipshape before planting time. He reports constantly increasing sales for the packing strip put on the market recently.

Syracuse Red Pots

"A little pot is soon hot"; so is a thin pot. Our pots are much thinner and tougher than others. It's the quality of the clay. Write for our latest price list if you did not get one.

The Weekly Florists' Review

CAXTON BUILDING

508 South Dearborn Street

CHICAGO

Advertising forms close

TUESDAY

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Kirksville, Mo.—H. J. Allen has bought out the flower store conducted at 206 Franklin street by A. P. Howells.

Tulsa, Okla.—Perry N. De Haven, the Elwood avenue florist, is building another greenhouse, at a cost of about $1,000.

Greenville, S. C.—The property at Augusta and McKay streets, formerly used for greenhouse purposes by the late F. B. Holland, was recently sold at auction to R. G. Stone, an attorney, for $2,200. The ground has a frontage of 117 feet on Augusta street and 177 feet on McKay street. The business was discontinued soon after the death of Mr. Holland. The sale of the property was the occasion for many remarks among the people present, to the effect that the business might be a profitable one for somebody, as there are no greenhouses now in operation in this city and none nearer than Spartanburg.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

ICE-BOXES FOR DISPLAY.

The good old summer time is when the retail florist does his housecleaning, or his rebuilding and refurnishing in anticipation of the busy season that comes with the approach of frost. And, like the housewife, summer is the time the retail florist is interested in ice-boxes, though for a different reason. An ice-box is an all-the-year-around necessity in a flower store, but summer is the time when most of the better ones are bought by florists. Every flower store must have a handsome display case, though it is said by the concern which builds more florists' refrigerators than are sold by any other manufacturer in America that the popular stock size and style sells for only slightly over $100. While it is possible to buy a first-class box from stock, many florists have boxes built to order to fit in with some special need. The illustration shows the display refrigerator in the new store of C. L. Baum, 317 West Clinch street, Knoxville, Tenn. It was built to order by the Memphis Refrigerator & B. S. Co., for icing from a secret door opening on an alley, so that the store is free from the muss usually made by this necessary operation. The box is nine feet high, four feet deep and ten feet long. The ice chamber will hold 1,500 pounds.

It is interesting to note that the Baums put their ice-box right next to the front window, possibly on the theory that the quicker a customer can be served, the better. But a good many florists, noting that practically every customer goes to the display refrigerator for a look at the flowers, no matter where the refrigerator may stand, have located the box far enough back to draw the customer away from the door—where he can't get out so easily. You know the department store special sale is almost always in the farthest corner of the place; they figure that if they can only get the people in, it will be the manager's own fault if anyone gets out without buying something.

STORE FITTING AND REFITTING.

Ice-box and Wall Cases.

Having planned the room proper, with its plain, rich finishing, as suggested in a previous article, let us proceed to discuss the few fittings which will be necessary to the care of the displays. The ice-box or cooling plant should be finished to correspond with the interior of the store and placed prominently toward the front, but far enough back to leave a good sized open space behind the window for a possible increase of window depth for special decorations and a permanent floor room for plants in vases, etc.

Adjoining the cooler, but more retired, can be the wall cases for ribbons, baskets, ferneries, jardinieres and art accessories. Many people consider these cases indispensable, while a few of the more advanced prefer to display the goods only as used with plants and flowers, considering the wall space which the cases would occupy more valuable as a background for the filled plant baskets and the vases with flowers. The extra basket and crockery stock can be stored in roomy cases on the wall of the balcony. A ribbon case is the least desirable of all for a salesroom.

Plain, But Handsome.

Where such cases are to be provided in the salesroom, let them be plain, as handsome as means will allow, and roomy enough to hold the largest and tallest baskets, with a smaller compartment for the little novelties. Have hooks on the under parts of the shelves and on the sides for suspending baskets. It is prudent to keep all basket stock, except that in actual use, under cover from dust. Fit the store, therefore, with few cases. Have no floor cases at all. Keep as much floor space as can be used for special displays. Reserve one side wall for demonstrations of decorative designs, to be changed frequently according to the kind of flowers to be shown, varying with the seasons, etc. Other fittings should all be movable.

Among other conveniences are low tables on casters; also plenty of bark pedestals, large and small, some slender, some to hold a group of palms and ferns. Have these on casters, too, so that they may be pulled anywhere about the store without unloading. The tables just mentioned should not be over two feet tall. They are convenient for small blooming plants.

Cozy Corner and Office.

No store is complete nowadays without a cozy corner or half-screened seat, with a desk, where a salesman may retire with customers and discuss decorative plans, look over photos and take orders. Here the surroundings should be suggested by your best taste—a well ordered group of plants, some comfortable seats, a desk, with cards, note paper and envelopes, a clock, a calendar, a vase of dainty flowers, etc.

A flower shop should resemble neither a parlor nor a store. An ideal one is a cross between a patch of woods and an art gallery.

The office should be accessible, but not prominent. Those who have business with the office will look about for it, but what one has for sale must be thrust upon the customers at every available turn, from one end of the salesroom to the other.

No store should be without a rear or side entrance, for shipping, receiving stock, removing trash, etc.

One small wrapping counter or table is permissible in the show room for the every-day trade. Let it be convenient, but retired.

A Handsome Display Refrigerator is an Essential.

THE WEEKLY FLORISTS' REVIEW

CAXTON BUILDING

508 South Dearborn Street

CHICAGO

TUESDAY

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Kirksville, Mo.—H. J. Allen has bought out the flower store conducted at 206 Franklin street by A. P. Howells.

Tulsa, Okla. Perry N. De Haven, the Elwood avenue florist, is building another greenhouse, at a cost of about $1,000.

Greenville, S. C.—The property at Augusta and McKay streets, formerly used for greenhouse purposes by the late F. B. Holland, was recently sold at auction to R. G. Stone, an attorney, for $2,200. The ground has a frontage of 117 feet on Augusta street and 177 feet on McKay street. The business was discontinued soon after the death of Mr. Holland. The sale of the property was the occasion for many remarks among the people present, to the effect that the business might be a profitable one for somebody, as there are no greenhouses now in operation in this city and none nearer than Spartanburg.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

ICE-BOXES FOR DISPLAY.

The good old summer time is when the retail florist does his housecleaning, or his rebuilding and refurnishing in anticipation of the busy season that comes with the approach of frost. And, like the housewife, summer is the time the retail florist is interested in ice-boxes, though for a different reason. An ice-box is an all-the-year-around necessity in a flower store, but summer is the time when most of the better ones are bought by florists. Every flower store must have a handsome display case, though it is said by the concern which builds more florists' refrigerators than are sold by any other manufacturer in America that the popular stock size and style sells for only slightly over $100. While it is possible to buy a first-class box from stock, many florists have boxes built to order to fit in with some special need. The illustration shows the display refrigerator in the new store of C. L. Baum, 317 West Clinch street, Knoxville, Tenn. It was built to order by the Memphis Refrigerator & B. S. Co., for icing from a secret door opening on an alley, so that the store is free from the muss usually made by this necessary operation. The box is nine feet high, four feet deep and ten feet long. The ice chamber will hold 1,500 pounds.

It is interesting to note that the Baums put their ice-box right next to the front window, possibly on the theory that the quicker a customer can be served, the better. But a good many florists, noting that practically every customer goes to the display refrigerator for a look at the flowers, no matter where the refrigerator may stand, have located the box far enough back to draw the customer away from the door—where he can't get out so easily. You know the department store special sale is almost always in the farthest corner of the place; they figure that if they can only get the people in, it will be the manager's own fault if anyone gets out without buying something.

STORE FITTING AND REFITTING.

Ice-box and Wall Cases.

Having planned the room proper, with its plain, rich finishing, as suggested in a previous article, let us proceed to discuss the few fittings which will be necessary to the care of the displays. The ice-box or cooling plant should be finished to correspond with the interior of the store and placed prominently toward the front, but far enough back to leave a good sized open space behind the window for a possible increase of window depth for special decorations and a permanent floor room for plants in vases, etc.

Adjoining the cooler, but more retired, can be the wall cases for ribbons, baskets, ferneries, jardinieres and art accessories. Many people consider these cases indispensable, while a few of the more advanced prefer to display the goods only as used with plants and flowers, considering the wall space which the cases would occupy more valuable as a background for the filled plant baskets and the vases with flowers. The extra basket and crockery stock can be stored in roomy cases on the wall of the balcony. A ribbon case is the least desirable of all for a salesroom.

Plain, But Handsome.

Where such cases are to be provided in the salesroom, let them be plain, as handsome as means will allow, and roomy enough to hold the largest and tallest baskets, with a smaller compartment for the little novelties. Have hooks on the under parts of the shelves and on the sides for suspending baskets. It is prudent to keep all basket stock, except that in actual use, under cover from dust. Fit the store, therefore, with few cases. Have no floor cases at all. Keep as much floor space as can be used for special displays. Reserve one side wall for demonstrations of decorative designs, to be changed frequently according to the kind of flowers to be shown, varying with the seasons, etc. Other fittings should all be movable.

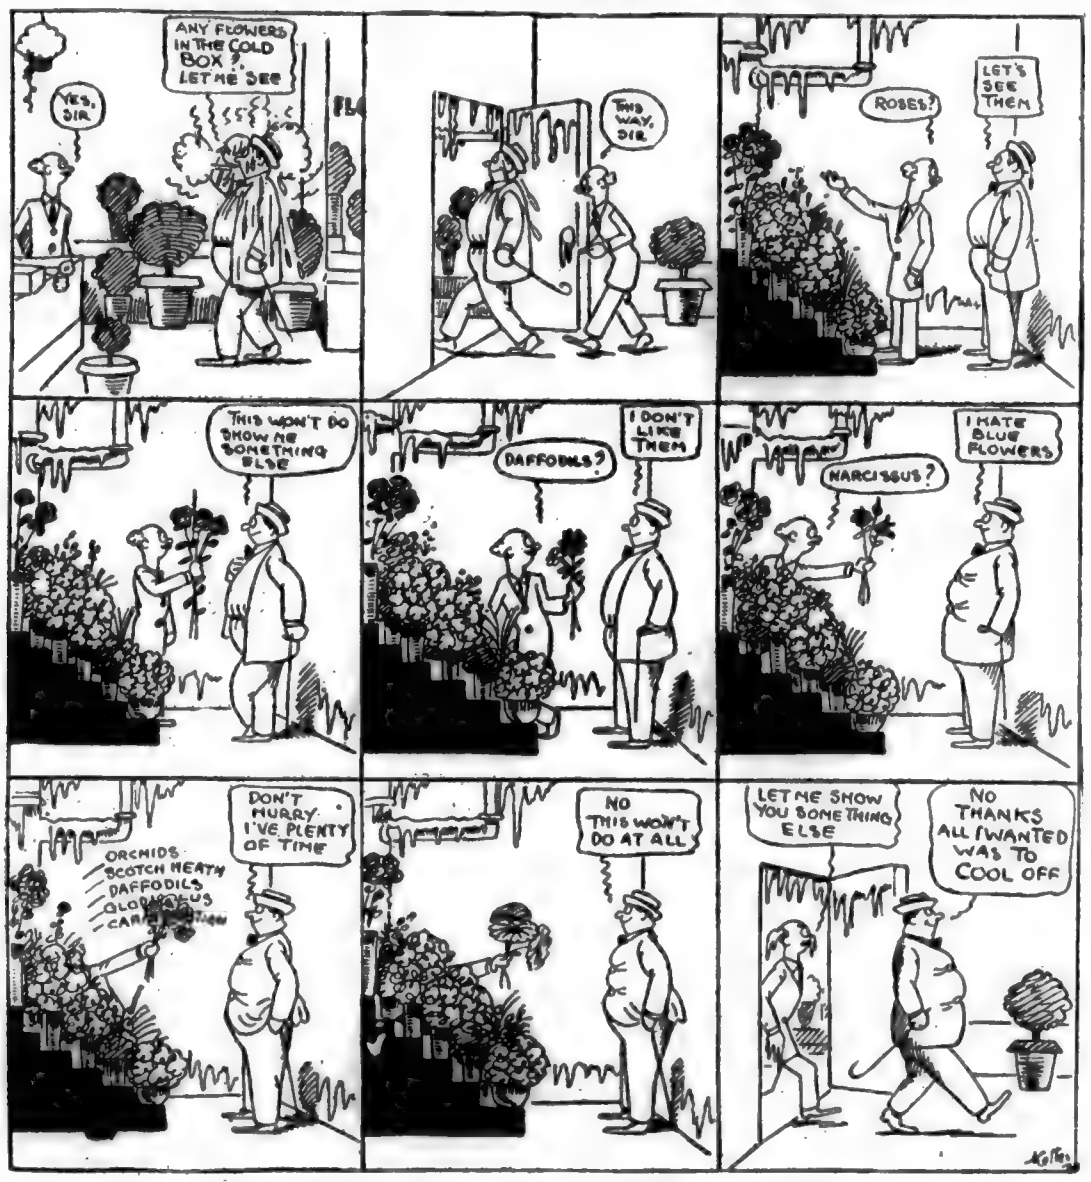
Among other conveniences are low tables on casters; also plenty of bark pedestals, large and small, some slender, some to hold a group of palms and ferns. Have these on casters, too, so that they may be pulled anywhere about the store without unloading. The tables just mentioned should not be over two feet tall. They are convenient for small blooming plants.

Cozy Corner and Office.

No store is complete nowadays without a cozy corner or half-screened seat, with a desk, where a salesman may retire with customers and discuss decorative plans, look over photos and take orders. Here the surroundings should be suggested by your best taste—a well ordered group of plants, some comfortable seats, a desk, with cards, note paper and envelopes, a clock, a calendar, a vase of dainty flowers, etc.

A flower shop should resemble neither a parlor nor a store. An ideal one is a cross between a patch of woods and an art gallery.

The office should be accessible, but not prominent. Those who have business with the office will look about for it, but what one has for sale must be thrust upon the customers at every available turn, from one end of the salesroom to the other.



No store should be without a rear or side entrance, for shipping, receiving stock, removing trash, etc.

One small wrapping counter or table is permissible in the show room for the every-day trade. Let it be convenient, but retired.

A Handsome Display Refrigerator is an Essential.

A VISIT TO THE FLORIST

A Hot Weather Cartoon in a Pittsburg Daily Paper.

The Workroom.

It is a mistake to think that the salesroom must be beautifully and conveniently fitted and the workroom little more than a receptacle for junk. It may be plain—so much the better—but let it be well ventilated, sanitary and convenient, with a proper depository or trap door for waste. Have it as large as possible and in such a condition that, if necessary, a customer may be ushered in without embarrassment to anybody. Often a workroom must be used for storing extra supplies. These should be so classified and labeled as to be instantly available. As strict cleanness, neatness and order should be required here as in the office letter file.

The workroom ought to be a room separated from the rest of the store, where packing, unpacking, sorting and preparing stock, as well as order work, may go on without interruption.

General Hints.

The less gingerbread, grill work and other fancy ornamentation you have about your store, the better. Have the best material your purse will allow, but make it plain and let the decoration consist of your own work, changed often.

At least two signs in front of the store seem necessary—one to be read as a person looks toward the front of the store or from across the street, and one which can be read a block or two away, from up or down the street.

As to the lighting plans, a room of ordinary size is best lighted with ceiling lights and side brackets. Chandeliers are permissible only in large rooms. Window lights ought to be out of sight to the casual observer and he must be conscious only of the illumination from soft, shaded globes.

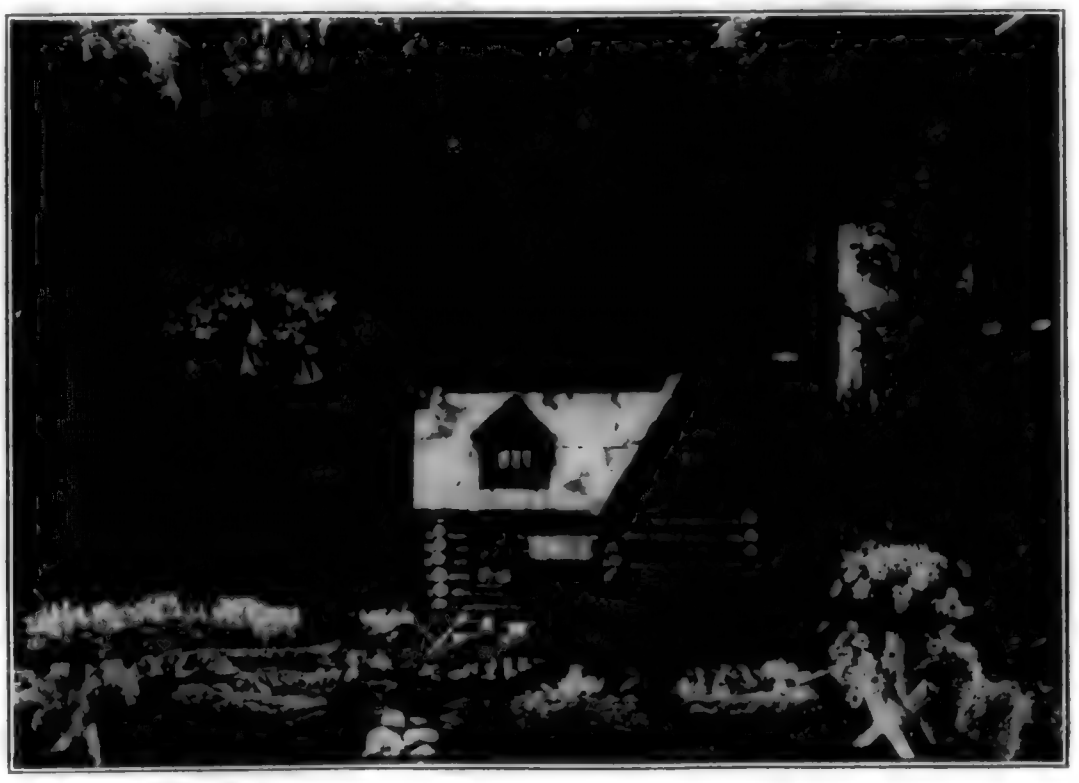
I used to see a flower store with a marble fountain surrounded with easy chairs—a poor mixture, to say the least. Better have plain severity than disjointed elegance.

Wherever the proportions of the room are at fault, place your mirrors. They will deepen a shallow space and broaden a narrow space. G. B.

A COOL WINDOW.

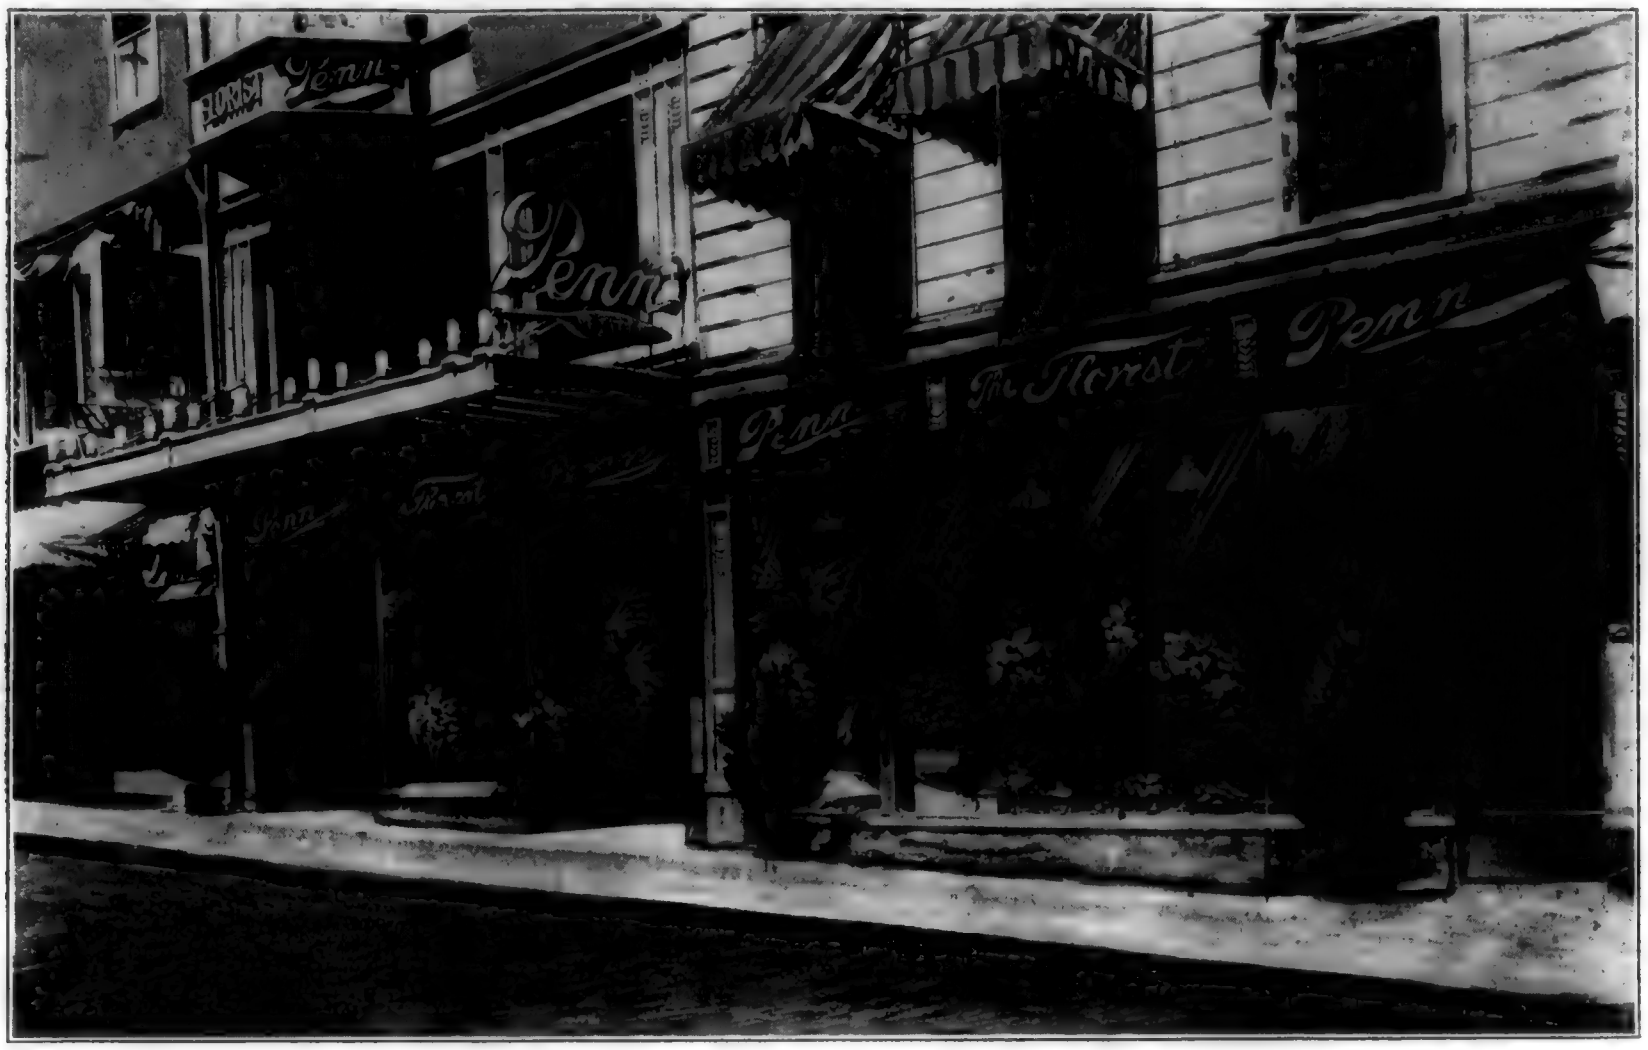
The Review has from time to time featured many of the special window displays of W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, the accompanying illustration showing one which attracted much attention during the recent heated spell. Palmer & Son always have made a hit with their special seasonable window decorations, but this old mill, with its pond of water lilies and live turtles, attracted enough attention so that one of the Buffalo daily papers devoted nearly a column to a dissertation on it, calling the window "a boon to the public," and concluding that "it wouldn't hurt some other firms who pride themselves on appropriate and beautiful window decorations to cool off the people in these sweltering days in as delightful a fashion."

FORCED TO THE WALL—



And Through It!

People who didn't know what they were talking about have said one never can tell what the results of advertising will be. You often hear it quoted. But the fact is one can pretty nearly always tell what will happen to the well advertised business. It will grow. A man who knew how to reach the public ear once started a small clothing store. It wasn't long before passers-by were startled to find across the front of the building a sign with great letters: "FORCED TO THE WALL"; and underneath in not nearly so large print: "And through it." Advertising had resulted in taking in the store next door.



The same thing has happened to Penn, Boston's advertising florist.

Growth of the Penn Business.

Henry Penn, with a small boy as his only assistant, built the foundations of his present prosperous business when he started twelve years ago in a small store on Chapman place, opposite City hall. Afterwards he was joined by his brother William, and for three years they continued in that place, until the number of their patrons had so largely increased that a larger store became a necessity. Then they located at 43 Bromfield street, in a store which seemed ample for their needs. Pursuing the progressive methods which brought them success in the smaller place, their business continued to grow to such an extent that in nine years twenty people and three teams were required to handle the trade. In the last two or three years the business has grown with greater rapidity than ever before, as constantly increasing sums have been expended in advertising.

Refreshing Scene in the Window of W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo.

The Enlarged Store.

The accompanying illustration shows the new Penn store front, now that the growth of the demand has pushed them through the wall, annexing the building numbered 35, 37 and 39 Bromfield street as an addition to the old store that they remodeled only about a year ago, giving them a frontage of forty-eight feet, a floor space of 1,890 feet and a basement floor space of 1,600 feet.

The new addition is finished in white, with dark green trimmings, to correspond with the old store. The floor is laid with a dark green battleship linoleum. The posts are upholstered in a dark green velvet. On the first or front post there is a heavy leather seat for the comfort of customers, while on the second post there is an octagonal writing desk, containing blank cards, tags, envelopes, writing material, etc.

Large Showcase Facilities.

The refrigerator in the new addition measures sixteen feet long, six feet deep and nine feet high. It is built entirely of glass, and can be seen through the window from the outside, being built directly adjoining the window. The back of the box is covered with a plate mirror sixteen feet long. In the rear of the store there is a smaller refrigerator, for short-stemmed flowers, such as gardenias, orchids, sweet peas, valley, etc. They also are completing a refrigerator in the new basement, making a total of five refrigerators in both stores, three on the first floor and two in the basement, for the old store contains a refrigerator twelve feet long, four feet deep and eight feet high, as well as a wall case six feet long in which to display ribbons. The refrigerators in the store are floored with dark green mosaic tiles and are lighted with reflector lights.

The new addition contains a large wall case, eighteen feet long, for the display of novelties and fancy ware, a cashier's office and six aluminum-framed work benches covered with Carrara marble. The lighting scheme includes five electric cluster lamps, the fixtures being of a dull gold finish, corresponding with the fixtures in the old store.

The window is finished in gold and green. The ceiling in the window is a gilt latticework, the flooring of green mosaic tiles, and the center is occupied by an aquarium with a fountain in the center.

The basements of both stores are used for storerooms for stock, such as supplies, etc. In the rear of the old store one finds Mr. Penn's private office and the bookkeeper's department. The stores have two entrances and are connected on the inside by an archway in the center of the building.

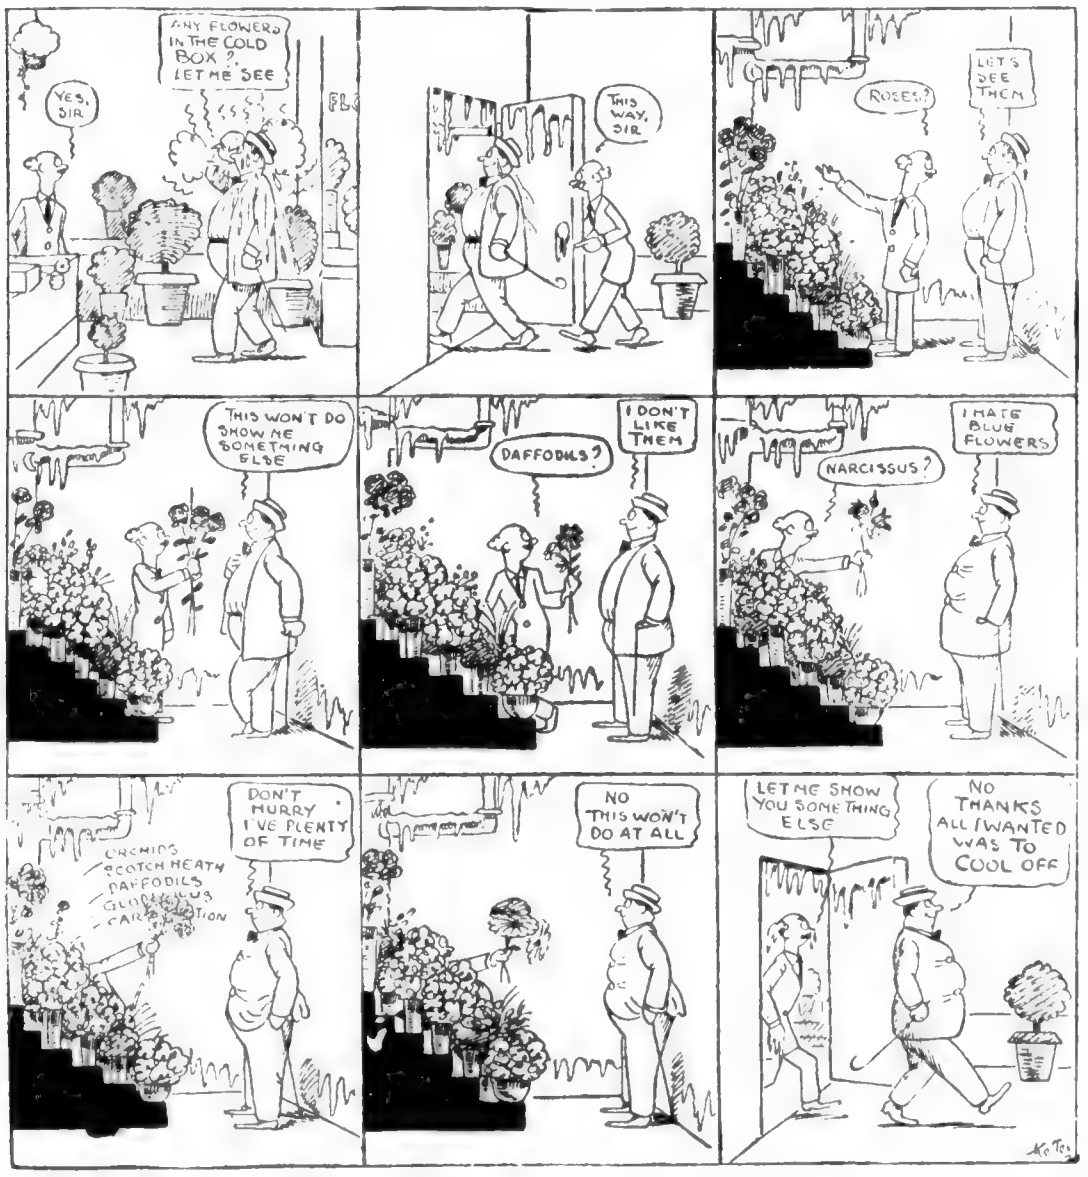
LEAF MINERS ON ASTERS.

Please find enclosed some leaves of our asters. There is a worm working on the leaves and it looks like a maggot. The plants are full of them. Will you kindly tell me what they are and what I can do to get rid of them?



C. & W.

The aster leaves were received in a perfectly fresh condition. They are badly attacked by leaf miners, which work on the inner tissues of the foliage and are one of the most difficult of pests to fight. During the present warm season I have noted these or similar pests on spinach, beets, plantains, marguerites, hawthorns, elms and several other flowering shrubs. I have not hitherto seen aster leaves affected in this way. To kill the pests at the present stage will be difficult, but I would advise spraying with Paris green at the rate of one pound to 200 gallons of water, and on the plants most badly affected use in addition a nicotine solution of moderate strength, made from one of the several reliable nicotine extracts on the market. This has proved helpful on marguerite plants and may help your asters. One who has been using Aphine claims that it also will rid plants of leaf miners. If poisons of any kind can be placed on the foliage before the eggs hatch, the miners will do little damage, especially if the poison is, like arsenate of lead, of an adhesive nature.

A VISIT TO THE FLORIST

A Hot Weather Cartoon in a Pittsburg Daily Paper.

The Workroom.

It is a mistake to think that the salesroom must be beautifully and conveniently fitted and the workroom little more than a receptacle for junk. It may be plain- so much the better—but let it be well ventilated, sanitary and convenient, with a proper depository or trap door for waste. Have it as large as possible and in such a condition that, if necessary, a customer may be ushered in without embarrassment to anybody. Often a workroom must be used for storing extra supplies. These should be so classified and labeled as to be instantly available. As strict cleanness, neatness and order should be required here as in the office letter file.

The workroom ought to be a room separated from the rest of the store, where packing, unpacking, sorting and preparing stock, as well as order work, may go on without interruption.

General Hints.

The less gingerbread, grill work and other fancy ornamentation you have about your store, the better. Have the best material your purse will allow, but make it plain and let the decoration consist of your own work, changed often.

At least two signs in front of the store seem necessary—one to be read as a person looks toward the front of the store or from across the street, and one which can be read a block or two away, from up or down the street.

As to the lighting plans, a room of ordinary size is best lighted with ceiling lights and side brackets. Chandeliers are permissible only in large rooms. Window lights ought to be out of sight to the casual observer and he must be conscious only of the illumination from soft, shaded globes.

I used to see a flower store with a marble fountain surrounded with easy chairs—a poor mixture, to say the least. Better have plain severity than disjointed elegance.

Wherever the proportions of the room are at fault, place your mirrors. They will deepen a shallow space and broaden a narrow space. G. B.

A COOL WINDOW.

The Review has from time to time featured many of the special window displays of W. J. Palmer & Son, Buffalo, the accompanying illustration showing one which attracted much attention during the recent heated spell. Palmer & Son always have made a hit with their special seasonable window decorations, but this old mill, with its pond of water lilies and live turtles, attracted enough attention so that one of the Buffalo daily papers devoted nearly a column to a dissertation on it, calling the window "a boon to the public," and concluding that "it wouldn't hurt some other firms who pride themselves on appropriate and beautiful window decorations to cool off the people in these sweltering days in as delightful a fashion."

FORCED TO THE WALL—

And Through It!

People who didn't know what they were talking about have said one never can tell what the results of advertising will be. You often hear it quoted. But the fact is one can pretty nearly always tell what will happen to the well advertised business. It will grow. A man who knew how to reach the public ear once started a small clothing store. It wasn't long before passers-by were startled to find across the front of the building a sign with great letters: "FORCED TO THE WALL"; and underneath in not nearly so large print: "And through it." Advertising had resulted in taking in the store next door.

The same thing has happened to Penn, Boston's advertising florist.

CARNATIONS

BUILDING A PROPAGATING BED.

I have solid beds in my houses and wish to make a propagating bed. What is the best way to do it? I want it on a side bed and will use it for carnation cuttings. The bed is three and one-half feet wide. What number and size of pipes should I use for bottom heat? Should I build the bed and rest it on the hot water pipes? My solid beds are two and one-half feet high. Please state the size and number of flows and returns for a bed sixty feet long. W. C. P. & C.

While it is not essential to have bottom heat to root carnation cuttings, a slight increase in the temperature under the propagating bench will cause them to root a little more quickly, which is desirable, of course, where large quantities are rooted each season. Do not overdo it, however, as too strong bottom heat will cause your carnation cuttings to come out of the sand in a soft condition, which is far worse than to have to wait a week or two longer for the roots to strike.

If you want to build a permanent propagating bed, tear out the solid bed and build a raised bench of pecky cypress, with cedar posts. Run two 2x4 scantlings lengthwise, one at the front and the other at the back of the bench. Saw your bottom boards into short lengths, to lie crosswise of the bench. We find this better than to run the boards the long way, as repairing is done so much more easily and the drainage is better.

Two or three 2-inch hot water pipes are enough for all the bottom heat you will need under this bench. These pipes should be at least ten inches away from the bottom of the bench. Let the bench be whatever height from the ground will be most convenient for you in working at it. Sticking cuttings is an arduous task at best, and one does not want to be in an uncomfortable position while doing the work. A. F. J. B.

CARNATIONS AT WILL BROS.

Will Bros., Minneapolis, planted 63,000 carnations in their houses during the first week in June. The accompanying illustration shows one of these houses, the front bench containing the new Dorner variety, White Wonder. It has made splendid growth and promises an early crop of good blooms. Other varieties grown in quantity are Enchantress, White Enchantress, Victory, Gloriosa, Dorothy Gordon and White Perfection. While the season has been somewhat dry, Will Bros., by planting early, were able to have good stock for benching. They had 150,000 carnation plants in the field.

In connection with their range of 160,000 square feet of glass, Will Bros. have a farm of 200 acres, on which there are several springs that never fail, giving them a constant supply of good water. They are at present busy clearing away a hill where they will put up another section of houses for violets next season, having now 40,000 plants ready for benching.

One of the illustrations shows a house planted early with Killarney roses and the third picture shows the residence of the Will brothers, on the farm. The shadow of one of the new greenhouses shows in the corner of the picture. Hugh Will is the active head of the concern, assisted by his brother Charles. Both the Will brothers are single and reside with their mother and a sister. A. M.

WORMS IN COMPOST.

Can I use enough lime safely to rid my compost of cutworms and wireworms for another season? C. A. P.

A dusting of lime through the compost where cutworms are numerous will help to clear them out. Some soft coal soot can also be used with advantage, or you can kill these and all other larvæ by boring holes in the compost, pouring a teaspoonful of carbon bisulphide into each hole and at once closing the holes. Make the holes eighteen inches apart each way. The carbon fumes are more penetrating when the soil is damp. Do not use any naked light, as the carbon is of an explosive nature. C. W.

EUROPEAN NOTES.

Great Flower Show in London.

The summer flower show of the R. H. S., held in London in the first week of July, was the largest ever held under one roof in London. Its leading features were Japanese gardens, rose gardens, rock gardens, sweet peas, roses and carnations.

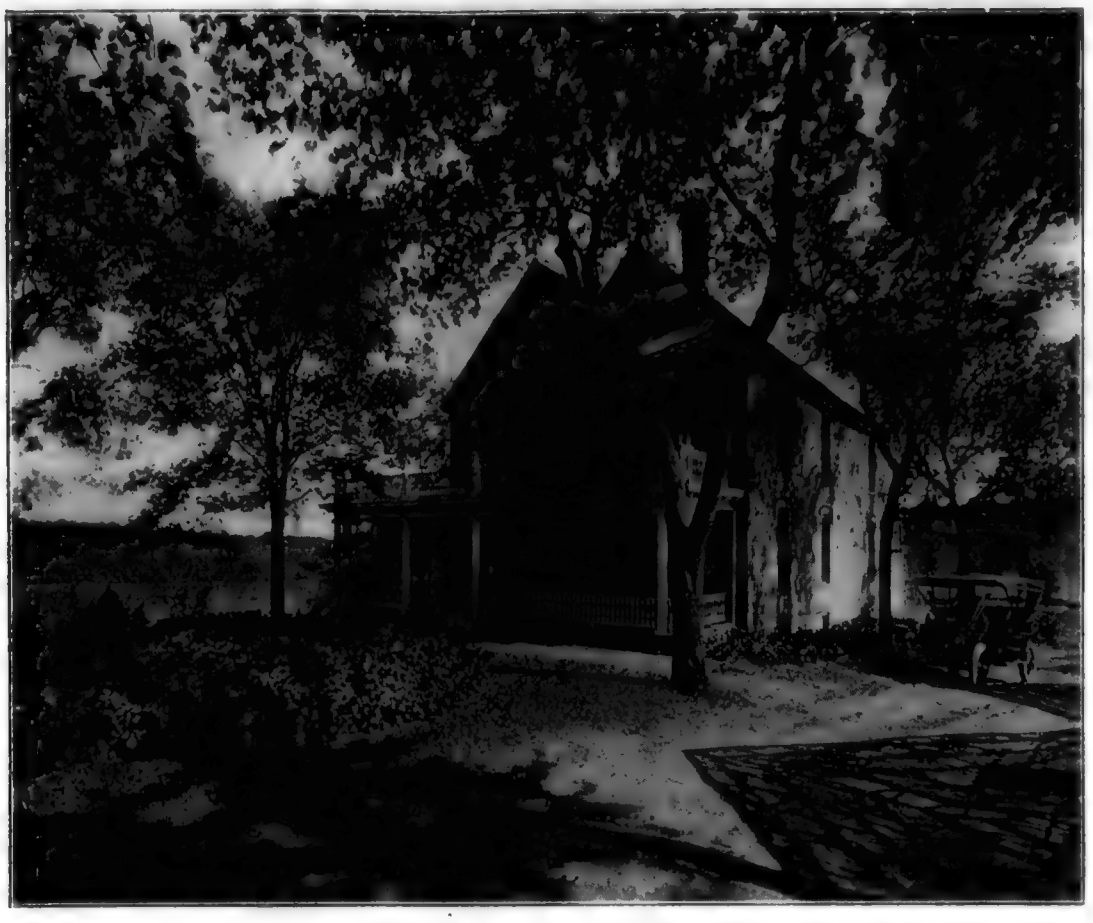
The coronation cup, for the exhibit of greatest merit, was awarded to H. B. May & Sons, Edmonton, for a great bank of tropical ferns. It included specimens of gigantic proportions, down to tiny seedlings in endless variety, effectively arranged, and created a great deal of interest.

The Olympia cup, for the best group of roses, was won by William Paul & Son, Waltham Cross, who arranged a garden of roses of exceptional merit. Hugh Dickson, Belfast, was awarded a gold medal for roses.

Japanese and Rock Gardens.

J. Carter & Co., London, delighted everyone with a charmingly designed Japanese garden, for which they received a gold medal. Visitors never tired of admiring its natural beauty, and slowly wended their way over stone bridges spanning tiny streams, and along winding paths among bamboos, water lilies, irises, etc. R. Wallace & Co., Colchester, were also awarded a gold medal for a rock garden, nicely designed and skillfully carried out.

James Veitch & Son, London, excelled in store and greenhouse plants, exhibiting marvelous specimens of unsurpassable beauty in crotons, dracænas, alocasias, anthuriums, etc.; gold medal.



Orchids, Sweet Peas, Carnations.

The finest collection of orchids was that from Charlesworth & Co., Haywards Heath. Orchid specialists say they never saw its equal in July; gold medal.

Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh, were in the front rank with sweet peas, for which a gold medal was awarded. Their new variety, Melba, was a great attraction. Sutton & Sons, Reading; E. W. King & Co., Coggeshall, and W. Deal, Kelvedon, were also strong in sweet peas.

Many fine groups of carnations were shown, notably from Bell, of Guernsey; from Burnett, of Guernsey, who has a sure winner in R. F. Felton, and from C. Engelmann, Saffron Walden.

Miscellaneous Groups.

Among the large number of excellent exhibits it is difficult to specialize, but a few of the groups that specially arrested attention were a marvelous display of orchids, roses and carnations from Stuart Low & Co., Bush Hill Park; a temple and pergolas of roses from Hobbies, Ltd., Dereham; Carnation White House from W. Wells & Co., Merstham; an immense array of delphinium spikes in all shades of blue from Amos Perry, Enfield—no one could possibly miss the blue of that great bank of stately spikes; a pretty and most effective piece of gardening by M. Prichard, Christchurch, in which Japanese irises, astilbes, lilies and other water-loving plants seemed quite at home and permanently established; sensational tuberous begonias from the begonia specialists, Blackmore & Langdon, Bath, and T. S. Ware, Ltd., Feltham—great, big blooms, single and double, on well cultivated plants, which held visitors spellbound by their wonderful size, rich color and general refinement, probably the finest ever seen; clematis in variety from Jackman & Son, Woking; phloxes from Gunn & Sons, Birmingham—huge masses of color in Coquelicot, Etna, Esperance, Tapis Blanc, etc.; new zonal pelargoniums from H. Jones, Lewisham, who has a fine strain of seedlings of the Paul Crampel type, in several shades of color; a new fuchsia of good promise, Frau H. Ernst, from Gebruder Teupel, Quedlinburg, Germany. Bee.

ANTIRRHINUMS FOR WINTER.

Will snapdragons force in a house with carnations? What kinds are best for forcing? When should they be housed for winter flowering and would it be possible to get plants from seed now? What kind of soil is best for them? J. R. S.

Snapdragons will succeed well in a house with carnations. They like an average winter minimum temperature of 48 to 50 degrees. They can be grown 5 degrees cooler and make strong but slower growth in a colder house, but will not flower much until spring. The tall varieties are the best for growing under glass, as they can be cut with much longer spikes. Do not purchase mixed seed, but separate packets each of pure white, yellow and bright pink. These are the best selling colors, the pink shades going particularly well. There is also some call for scarlet, but none for the dark crimson or dull shades.

For Christmas flowering the plants should be benched early in September; for blooming later in the season, during November and December will do. Many growers use them as a succession crop to chrysanthemums. Plants can still be raised from seed and grown on in pots, but would have been stronger if started early in July. You can also get good plants from cuttings. Keep the plants pinched back until benched and allow four or five of the best shoots to come up on each plant, to produce fine spikes. Staking must be done to keep the stems straight and the side growths must be rubbed off the flowering stem.

Soil which suits mums, roses or carnations will answer admirably for snapdragons. They enjoy a moderately rich compost, and when in active growth they can be fed freely. C. W.

STANDARD BAYS.

What is the best way to manage standard bay trees in tubs that have made a growth of three inches? They are quite healthy. J. M.

When the bay trees have completed their growth, which should be now, any necessary shearing or pinching should be done. This trimming should be an annual affair. When the plants are small it may be done by simply pinching the shoots before they get too hard, but as a general rule a pair of shears is the best to use. Do not shear the plants as you would a hedge. Trim the shoots separately, as the leaves when cut through are greatly disfigured. C. W.

PANSIES AND VIOLAS

WAXING IN POPULARITY.

Time to Sow Pansies for Winter.

While it is yet somewhat early to sow pansies for spring flowering, except in the most northerly districts, if any are wanted for winter blooming they should be sown at once, except from New Jersey southwards, where perhaps a date a few days later will be better.

Pansies are being more appreciated each year as winter flowers. They will never equal the violet in popularity in this respect, but are worthy of more attention than they have yet received and are quite a profitable crop. Like the violets, they do not flower as freely in the dark winter months as toward spring, when they give a great crop of flowers, and they bloom freely for many weeks after violets are gone. Their requirements are a cool house with a winter minimum of 40 to 42 degrees, a rich soil and an abundant water supply. Some shade on the glass is a benefit after March, as it helps to keep the plants cool. In funeral designs, and also for wearing and for table decorations, pansies are becoming of more importance, being particularly adaptable to successful culture in the colder states, where they are always found at their best. Pansies love a cool, moist climate and in such they will flower from early spring until winter. Only in a few favored seaside places in the most northerly states, particularly in Maine, are they, however, really satisfactory summer bloomers, the heat and drought in other sections being too much for them.

Good Varieties.

There are many choice strains of large flowering pansies on the market. Many are selections from or improvements on Trimardeau, which remains one of the best all-around varieties in commerce today. The trouble is that what some dealers call Trimardeau is merely a hotchpotch mixture, but if the true strain is got from one of the reliable dealers, many of whom advertise in The Review, the seed will give satisfactory results. The bulk of purchasers accept or prefer mixed pansies, but for bedding effects and bunching separate colors are vastly better. Emperor William, ultramarine blue; Lord Beaconsfield, violet, upper petals fading white; Queen of Blues, pale lavender blue; Golden Gem, golden yellow, and Snow Queen, pure white, are all good Trimardeau sorts, which are good for bedding-out purposes and produce fine mass effects. Some people admire the red shades. Cardinal, bright red, will please them, while the Mme. Perret, giant strain, though somewhat more tender, produces immense flowers which are chiefly of rich red and wine shades.

Get the Best.

Now is a good time to buy pansy seed. It is well not to wait until the last moment before ordering it. Do not purchase cheap seed, as it will only give a big proportion of small, miserable flowers, which no one will want to buy. The best seed is always the cheapest and at the same time most profitable in the long run. Unless many thousands of plants are to be raised, a coldframe is the best place in which to sow the seed. Make the soil light and moderately rich, and pulverize it well. Sow the seed broadcast. Cover lightly. Keep well watered and germination will take place in eight or ten days. Once the seed is up, avoid coddling and remove the sashes. A covering of cheesecloth for a few days is, however, beneficial. If sown outdoors, beds three feet wide, slightly raised, are good. After sowing, water and give a light mulch of dry moss, leaves or even newspaper, to prevent too rapid drying out. Of course, this must be removed as the seedlings appear. A cheesecloth or lath shading, raised a little above the ground, also answers well in assisting to keep the soil moist.

Viola Cornuta.

The true Viola cornuta, blue and white, rarely gives more than a small proportion of true plants from seed. Cuttings are the best method of propagation, taking these in late fall and planting them quite thickly in sandy loam in a coldframe, where they can be wintered. The larger violas, such as Papilio, violet lilac; Admiration, dark blue; Mauve Queen, pale blue; White Perfection, white, and grandiflora lutea, golden yellow, are splendid bedders and are specially good for using as a base for tulips and other bulbous plants, making an effective show when the bulbs are gone also. In Europe there is a great assortment of named varieties of these violas and they occupy an important place as bedders, flowering in profusion all summer long.

WINTERING PANSY PLANTS.

I expect to grow about 15,000 pansy plants for spring sales, but last season about one-half my plants winter-killed, although on dry, sandy ground with a good slope, while those on wet, clayey soil did not winter-kill, though not protected. Is there any sure protection against winter-killing here, in the southern part of Maine? C. A. P.

Last winter in your state was an abnormally dry one and to this must be attributed the dying out, not only of pansies, but of many perennial flowering plants, trees and shrubs. During the average winter, pansies on ground with a gentle slope will winter much better than those on lower land, but we had little rain last year for several months and even plants like pansies could not stand it.

You ask whether there is any sure way to carry over pansies. The best plan, were you growing 1,500 or so, would be to transplant into coldframes and leave them there. Or, give them a good soaking of water before the ground freezes up; then, when the frost has tightened up the soil well, give a light mulch of dry leaves and stand sashes over them. If they are treated thus, you will not lose any plants. If perchance you have no sashes, the plants will winter without them. Remove the mulch early in April in your latitude. C. W.

SWEET PEAS FOR WINTER.

Will you kindly give us some information on the growing of sweet peas for winter? When do you plant the seed? Will they do best in solid or raised benches? What temperature do they require? What are the best varieties in pink, white and lavender? Any information on this subject will be appreciated. H. G.

Sweet peas for an early winter crop should be sown from the middle to the end of August. They can be sown in small pots, in flats, or directly in the rows where they are to flower. I prefer to transplant from flats. Flowers can be secured a little earlier from raised benches, but the quality is never so good or the flowering season so prolonged as from solid benches.

Sweet peas want a generous compost; good loam, with plenty of well decayed cow or sheep manure spaded in, is what they like. The drainage, of course, should be good. They require copious waterings when in active growth and flowering, and need ample head room, not less than six feet, and ten to twelve feet would be better. Wide, lofty houses are now used by all the specialists and the rows are run lengthwise of the houses, four to six feet apart. When the wider distance is given, a crop of violets can be taken out between them.

Sweet peas, when flowering, like an average winter minimum temperature of 48 to 50 degrees; earlier in the season 5 degrees lower will do. The best forcing varieties are: Christmas White or Florence Denzer, each pure white; Christmas Pink, pink and white; Wallacea, lavender; Mrs. W. W. Smalley, satin pink; Mrs. W. Sim, salmon pink; Mrs. Alexander Wallace, lavender. Later sowings for early spring flowering can be made in October, while for Easter you can sow about the middle of November. There will be frequent cultural notes on winter sweet peas in later issues of The Review, which may interest you. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Double Daisies.

The double pink, red and white daisies, Bellis perennis fl. pl., are useful and easily raised spring bedding plants. They also sell well in baskets, put up in the same way as forget-me-nots, pansies and violas. As they germinate quickly and grow rapidly, it is better to sow them a few days later than the pansies, August 1 being a good date for the latitude of New York. They are also useful for groundwork in bulb beds and can be used to good advantage in rockeries. They stand bright sunshine better than pansies or myosotis. As the seed is small, be sure to cover it lightly.

Hollyhocks.

Now, while hollyhocks are in bloom, is the time to make a sowing of them in order to secure strong flowering plants for next season. They will germinate satisfactorily either in coldframes or in drills in the open, but, as we get long spells of droughty weather in July and August, germination is hastened and is more satisfactory if they can be shaded and watered for at least a few days. The true Chateris strain of hollyhock is still the best. These are practically all double and can be secured either in mixture or separate colors. To those liking single and semi-double flowers the Allegheny strain, which carries large fringed flowers, can be recommended. Wherever hardy perennial borders exist, they lack one of their most telling subjects if hollyhocks are absent.

Rockets.

The old-fashioned white and purple rockets, Hesperis matronalis, are fine for cutting and are useful border plants. In many places they flower just right for Memorial day. There is also a dwarf white variety, which is fine for massing effects in perennial borders. Sow the seeds of these early in August. They germinate quickly and should be transplanted to nursery rows a foot apart during moist, cloudy weather. They are hardy in nearly all sections if given a mulch of leaves or straw over winter. Dampness will kill them out more quickly than cold. Planted thickly over winter in a coldframe and given a coating of leaves, they can be carried over easily.

Coreopsis Grandiflora.

Coreopsis grandiflora is a fine June flowering plant outdoors and, if the seeds are kept cut off, will flower all summer. While classed as a perennial, it is better treated as a biennial. Seed sown now will give flowering plants for next June. They should be transplanted a foot apart, as they grow quite rapidly and vigorously. As they are not reliably hardy in many sections, even when protected, it is better to winter at least a good portion in coldframes, planting them outdoors early in April. This plant is fine for cutting. It makes a good pot plant. It can also be grown in benches and, treated thus, is specially useful for bouquet work at Memorial day. The variety grandiflora is much better than the old lanceolata. The Californian form, Eldorado, has extra large flowers.

Honesty.

Surely all florists should be willing to sow a few seeds of honesty, not because the bulk of them are lacking in this excellent virtue, but because Lunaria biennis, as honesty is botanically called, is an interesting plant. The purple and white flowers are not the real attraction, but the silvery, round seed vessels are splendid for winter ornamentation. Sow the seeds now. They germinate quickly. The plants are perfectly hardy and no old-fashioned garden is complete without a few patches of this interesting old-time favorite.

Asters.

Early asters, owing to heat and drought, are hardly up to the average this season, except in special cases, where it has been possible to water them. These early asters really net as good money as the later and larger ones. There is usually a glut in August and September, with the flowers selling at 25 cents to 40 cents per hundred, whereas in July poor flowers easily make $1 and those of better quality double that price, being decidedly preferable to the undersized and spidery carnations usually offered at that season. The present summer has been hot and deficient in moisture in many sections. In some cases artificial watering in some form can be applied, but in nine cases out of ten the moisture must come from the skies, and this being the case we must assist nature in every possible way if we want fine flowers. Moderately low land, with a good depth of soil, will produce superb asters in a dry season. It is really surprising how much drought the plants will stand if the surface soil is kept constantly stirred with the cultivator. Do not water unless you can do it thoroughly; it is far better to keep the surface tickled. With a nice, loose mulch a severe drought can be overcome satisfactorily.

Look out for the black aster beetle, which usually makes its initial appearance at this season. Hand picking may answer where a few plants only are grown, but is utterly out of the question when thousands are cultivated. Arsenate of lead will poison them, but it whitens the foliage and renders the flowers less salable. Paris green, used at the rate of one pound to 200 gallons of water and applied through a fine, misty sprayer, will not hurt the plants and will speedily clean out the beetles.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

ARSENATE OF LEAD.

Can you inform us where we can buy lead of arsenic, or any other chemical that can be used in destroying the "green wigglers" on mums?

L. C. F. C.

L. C. F. C. should be able to buy arsenate of lead at any drug or paint store. Though he speaks of it as lead of arsenic, he undoubtedly means arsenate of lead. Arsenic is one of the most deadly of poisons to plant life. This is proved in using Paris green that is not strictly pure, as the smallest proportion of it will burn the foliage of potatoes or any other plant that is sprayed with it. Arsenate of lead, however, seems harmless to plant life, if used in any reasonable proportion. It is a valuable insecticide when rightly handled. It discolors the foliage somewhat and should not be used too late on that account, but may be used with perfect safety at this time of year.

Chas. H. Totty.

FOR CHRISTMAS FLOWERING.

We have a house that will be empty until about January or February. Would it be too late now to buy plants of chrysanthemums that would come in about Christmas? If not too late, could you advise us as to variety and culture?

P. W. C.

There is still ample time to plant a house with late mums for Thanksgiving to Christmas flowering, though the plants should be procured as soon as possible. The best varieties to plant would be White Chadwick, Yellow Chadwick, Jeanne Nonin, W. R. Brock, Nagoya and Bonnaffon. These will all come in and give good results and may be depended on to give satisfaction.

Chas. H. Totty.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

The week opens with a recurrence of extreme heat and humidity, followed by refreshing showers. The general verdict seems to be, "No stock and no business," for so several of the critics express the situation. The hot wave left many deaths in its wake, and the only demand during the last week was for funeral flowers. The scarcity of white roses and carnations was marked, but prices did not advance and evidently the long summer stagnation has begun. Dullness has prevailed in the society resorts, but some improvement is now noted. Newport has been decidedly dull, but the boom there seldom materializes before August.

Few roses from the new planting are arriving of any quality or length of stem. Those which are worth while are few and far between, and sell readily to the leading stores. There are few good Beauties, and 25 cents is top for them. A few excellent Kaiserin are offered and Maryland and Killarney will again arrive before the week is over, up to usual standard of bud and stem. There is no change to report in the orchid market. Some fine gigas are constantly on tap. They seldom rise above 50 cents. Carnations were somewhat firmer at the close of the week, owing to the limited shipments of good blooms, but $1 per hundred would buy the best of them. Gladioli are abundant and values retrograding. Soon the local growers will flood the market and the price will drop to 50 cents per hundred.

The heat affected the lilies badly, many arriving wilted and almost unsalable; $5 per hundred was easily obtainable for the selected. Valley holds at prevailing prices, $2.50 per hundred being the top grade quotation.

Asters have begun their invasion. Smilax drags and large quantities have been disposed of as low as 50 cents per dozen strings. Prepared oak and magnolia leaves prove as popular as ever and every retailer keeps his stock of wreaths replenished daily.

There is no diminution in the sweet pea supply, but little of it is of the high grade the market will encourage.

The philosophers have all accepted cheerfully the inevitable conditions of the "good old summer time" and are waiting patiently for the business boom that is assuredly coming this fall and winter, unless all signs fail.

Various Notes.

Secretary Fellouris, of the Greek-American Florists' Association, reports final results of the outing last week as away ahead of all records of the society to date.

It is said the contemplated outing of the N. Y. and N. J. Growers' Association will include a trip to Glen Island and one of the famous shore dinners of that resort, so pleasantly remembered by all who attended the S. A. F. convention at New York some years ago.

Meyer, of Badgley, Riedel & Meyer, Inc., left July 16 for a two weeks' sojourn in the Catskills. Mr. Riedel and family are at the seashore for the summer, and Mr. Badgley says life at Summit is a perpetual holiday. He already is sending in some fine new stock of Killarney and White Killarney.

Lord & Burnham Co. has just completed the engagement to erect for Thomas Roland, of Nahant, Mass., an iron-frame greenhouse 50x600 feet.

Jos. J. Levy and family are enjoying their summer outing at one of the cool resorts in the Catskills.

It is reported that Alexander J. Guttman contemplates returning to his first love and reëntering the ranks of the wholesale florists of Twenty-eighth street this fall.

A. Moltz and family are in the country. Mr. Moltz is rapidly improving in health.

Nicholas Lecakes is spending his week ends with his family at his Connecticut farm.

Mr. Moore, of Moore, Hentz & Nash, finds a growing demand from the western metropolis for his orchids, and ships daily grand cattleyas to his Chicago agents. Mr. Moore celebrates soon the thirty-third anniversary of his marriage.

John Kral and wife have been enjoying a holiday up state and are now motor-boating in their own ship on Long Island sound. E. Hanft, also a salesman for Moore, Hentz & Nash, is back from his vacation.

H. E. Froment is leading the strenuous life with his bookkeeper, lieutenant and several employees away for their resting spell.

Wm. P. Ford is enjoying his annual rest on his farm at Chadds Ford, Pa., a healthful and charming elevation.

Every wholesaler is now taking advantage of the summer lull and making things bright and beautiful for the fall openings.

Early closing is more and more popular.

J. K. Allen and Mrs. Allen left July 15 for a two weeks' outing at Oxford, N. Y.

The lily shipments reach into the thousands daily at P. J. Smith's, as usual, but the hot spell deteriorated many of them.

Wm. H. Kuebler, Brooklyn, is back from the Shriners' convention at Rochester.

Some impressive fish stories are coming in from Asbury Park and the Highlands, where Joseph A. Fenrich and Clarence Saltford are sojourning.

Geo. A. Kuhl, of Pekin, Ill., and Mrs. Kuhl are to spend their summer at Asbury Park, N. J., motoring from there to the Baltimore convention.

O. V. Zangen, Hoboken, N. J., has added to his force of canvassers J. M. Fischer, formerly with Thorburn & Co.

A. M. Henshaw left England for home July 13.

W. H. Siebrecht's stand in the Coogan building is again open, with Joseph Vocke in charge as usual.

The Long Island Florists' Bowling Association, of Astoria, sent over some of its crack bowlers to the New York alleys Friday evening, July 14. This club will have its own team at Baltimore. The bowling average competition for Mr. Pierson's balls has closed, with few competitors, only half a dozen maintaining their interest every night during the long season, Messrs. Chadwick, Manda, Nugent, Shaw, Scott and Kakuda having seldom been absent. The scores Friday were:

Player.	1st	2d	3d	4th
Donaldson	169	173	191	179
Miesem	181	178	194	186
Cook	134	122	129	143
Chadwick	179	189	190	201
Scott	114	146	139	144
Kakuda	156	153	148	153
Manda	167	165	177	175

J. Austin Shaw.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

The market conditions last week were bad and little can be added to what was reported in the last issue. The weather conditions have had a great deal to do with this, the temperatures playing from 90 to 100 degrees in the shade all of the week, with no rain to amount to anything for the last six weeks. Really first-class cut stock is by no means easy to obtain and a good deal of hustling is necessary to secure enough to fill orders.

There are a few roses coming in that are of the first grade. Carnations are scarce and the best now are usually classed as second grades. Sweet peas have succumbed to the heat. Asters are coming in and the best clean up at once. Gladioli are more plentiful and down in price. Extra good valley and lilies can be had daily. All outdoor stock comes in poor, showing the effect of the dry weather.

Club Meeting.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' Club took place Thursday afternoon, July 13, at 2 o'clock. There was a great deal of interest displayed by the members in all matters that came before the meeting. The attendance was encouraging to the officers, as thirty-five members braved the hot afternoon and took part in three hours of interesting business matters.

Chairman Guy of the trustees reported that everything was in readiness for the club's annual picnic. A telegram was read from Secretary Pyfer of the Chicago Florists' Club asking the members who will go to the S. A. F. meeting to join them in their special at Cincinnati on their way to Baltimore. This was placed in the hands of State Vice-president Weber, who has the transportation in charge.

A letter was read from the Retail Florists' Association asking coöperation with them on bill No. 13, now in the hands of the House of Delegates, to eliminate the crepe pullers, as the city counselor has put his O. K. on it, making the bill constitutional.

David Geddes was elected to membership and H. Werner, a grower at Clayton, made application. The nomination of officers resulted as follows: President, Robert J. Windler; vice-president, C. E. De Wever and Frank Vennemann; secretary, J. J. Beneke; treasurer, William C. Smith. A. J. Bentzen having resigned as trustee, the nominations for his one-year term were William C. Young and C. C. Sanders; for the three-year term, J. F. Ammann and Frank A. Weber were nominated.

Election of officers will take place at the next meeting of the club, Thursday afternoon, August 10.

Various Notes.

Maurice F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill., has bought the flower establishment of Ammann & Johann at East St. Louis, Ill. He took charge July 15.

Ludwig Zimmer, the Biddle market florist, has closed his store for the summer and left July 13 for New York. From there he will take the steamer for a visit to his old home in Hamburg, to return September 1.

Messrs. Kuehn, Angermueller, Berning and Smith, our wholesalers, have each donated $5 for prizes for the florists' picnic, Thursday, July 20.

W. C. Young, vice-president of the C. Young & Sons Co., will take a two weeks' vacation trip to Atlantic City, N. J. Miss Frances Kling, his head clerk, starts this week for a two weeks' vacation trip to Colorado Springs, Colo.

The florists on South Grand avenue have agreed to close their stores every other evening at 6 p. m. R. J. Windler, C. Bergstermann and Charles Beyer have been quite busy the last week with a lot of funeral work.

Alexander Geranios, of the Metropolitan Floral Co., at Grand and Olive streets, is making plans for enlarging the present quarters. Mr. Geranios says more room is badly needed.

J. F. Ammann reports that his place at Edwardsville, Ill., is now in the hands of the J. F. Ammann Co., and that the company will be in great shape the coming season. His east side store was sold to M. F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill., but for the present Mr. Ammann will retain his Alton, Ill., store.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Halstead, of Belleville, Ill., and Mr. and Mrs. John M. Connon, of Webster Groves, will make the trip to Baltimore to attend the S. A. F. convention next month.

W. C. Smith, Will Ossick, F. Windler and B. Patton, of the W. C. Smith Wholesale Floral Co., paid a visit to Hugo Gross at Kirkwood, Saturday, July 15, for an afternoon's fishing. The quartet sang a few of their songs and that night it rained. They are now known as "rain makers."

Tower Florist is moving this week from Florissant and Grand avenues to 2024 East Grand avenue.

Bert Heley, representative of the Routledge Seed Co., of Portland, Ore., was a caller last week.

Gus Eggeling, wife and daughter left for a two weeks' outing among the northern lakes.

B. Eschner, of M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, is here this week, and as usual each year, comes in time for a day's outing at the florists' picnic.

C. Young & Sons Co. held a stockholders' meeting last week at the office, 1406 Olive street. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, James Young; vice-president and general manager at greenhouses, W. C. Young; secretary, Miss Edna Young, daughter of the late John Young; treasurer and general manager of the cut flower department, Charles Young.

There are many alterations and much building going on among the Kirkwood florists. This and hauling water from nearby ponds keeps them busy daily. They are still badly in need of a good, soaking rain. The plants in the field are suffering greatly.

Charles Schoenle, of the Schoenle Floral Co., returned home from a few days' trip to Kansas City. While there he made the rounds of the trade and all seem prosperous.

The following visitors were here last week: J. Johann, of Collinsville, Ill.; J. F. Ammann, of Edwardsville, Ill.; A. S. Halstead, E. W. Guy, Gus. Grossart, H. Emunds, W. E. Ogle, A. G. Fehr, of Belleville, Ill.; Edwin Denker, of St. Charles, Mo., and M. F. Widmer, of Highland, Ill. The majority of them called Thursday and spent the afternoon at the meeting of the Florists' Club. J. J. B.

BOSTON.

The Market.

There is no great amount of business, but, while orders are not numerous, flowers are far from abundant. Many growers are sending in nothing at all. Most of the carnation specialists are busy replanting. Some have already completed this work and flowers from the new crop will appear sometime in August. Many of the carnations seen are hardly worth picking, and price fluctuations are almost as wide as the poles. For some, 25 cents per hundred would be a high figure. Good flowers, however, make $1 to $1.50 and some fine whites as much as $3. The call for white flowers has been good for July, owing to the high death rate consequent on the hot wave.

Roses are holding up fairly well, considering the intense heat, and Killarney, Carnot, Mrs. Aaron Ward and Beauty are leaders. Some fair Richmond and quite good Rhea Reid are also seen. Sweet peas are of poor quality. The heat ruined the crops of many growers. Asters have also suffered from heat and are not yet plentiful. The second planting will come in this week and relieve the scarcity. There is a good supply of cornflowers, gypsophila and candytuft. A few snapdragons still come in. Valley has been selling better. Longiflorum lilies are selling quite well. Candidums are done, but a few speciosum are arriving. Callas are still good from one or two growers. Cattleyas are in small supply. C. Harrisoniæ is now a useful variety. There is no great call for either adiantum or asparagus and some growers of these are not cutting, unless ordered.

Summer Exhibition.

The long heat wave, added to excessive drought, proved too much for sweet peas and what is usually an interesting and representative show was, from force of circumstances, of quite small proportions July 15 and 16. Sweet peas were neither of quality nor in the quantity usually seen. W. J. Clemson, J. D. Christensen, gardener, was the largest and most successful exhibitor. Col. F. Mason, E. L. Lewis, gardener, also showed creditably. R. & J. Farquhar & Co. had a splendid array of hardy flowers. One table was entirely filled with the beautiful new Chinese Lilium myriophyllum, all of outdoor culture. Several other new Wilson lilies were also shown for the first time. In addition they had a fine collection of hemerocallis, Iris Kempferi, delphiniums and other seasonable perennials. Mrs. E. M. Gill was, as usual, on hand with an interesting display. There were fine displays of fruits and vegetables.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. received a silver medal for group of Lilium myriophyllum, certificate of merit for Lathyrus latifolius White Pearl, and honorable mention for new unnamed Chinese lilies and Japanese iris. Dr. H. Kennedy received honorable mention for Japanese iris.

Various Notes.

Arrangements are all completed and programs issued for the annual picnic of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club in Caledonian grove, West Roxbury, July 26. The sporting events number nineteen and it is desired to start the Commercial vs. Private baseball game as soon after 10 a. m. as possible. A fine array of prizes has been secured and only fair weather is needed to make the affair the best ever. To reach Caledonian grove take an elevated train to Forest Hills; from there a Charles River car direct to the grove. The fare is only 5 cents from any part of the Boston elevated system.

Many of the leading salesmen and growers have chartered a steamer for a fishing excursion to Swampscott July 21. This annual outing always attracts a large attendance and those attending have one of the times of their lives.

N. F. Comley, wife and family are enjoying a vacation at their summer cottage at Bastins Island, near Portland, Me. Robert Montgomery will go to his cottage on the same island early in August.

Gustave Olsen, of Woburn, who was married two weeks ago, has returned from his wedding trip spent at Caribou, Me., and has reappeared at the Boston Cooperative Market.

H. W. Vose, of Hyde Park, is at present once of the leading shippers of asters, candytuft, gypsophila and bachelor's buttons, for all of which he finds a ready sale.

A. F. Scott, of the Willow Hill Greenhouses, West Roxbury, has a fine summer crop of Bouvardia Humboldtii, in addition to his other specialties.

The King Construction Co. is finishing work on an addition 60x150 for the Montrose Greenhouses. Eber Holmes is still busy constructing new concrete benches and doing a lot of repair work. Roses grown here still hold up well for the season.

William H. Elliott, wife and family are now at their summer home in Madbury, N. H. Mr. Elliott hopes to be on hand for the S. A. F. convention, however.

H. W. Field, of Northampton, is at present one of the leading shippers of longiflorum lilies to the Boston Flower Exchange. He is also sending in some excellent roses.

Aubrey A. Pembroke, of Beverly, continues to send in quantities of fine carnations. While ordinary flowers have been hard to move at any price, he has had no trouble in securing $3 per hundred for his White Enchantress.

William McAlpine is enjoying his vacation at his farm in Exeter, N. H., having left for there July 15.

The Lord & Burnham Co. has secured the contract for one of Thomas Roland's new houses at Revere, the dimensions of which will be 50x600.

N. F. Comley picked sixty-two and one-half bushels of tomatoes July 14, his largest pick of the season. He has 800 boxes of glass bought for a new house at Lexington.

H. M. Robinson & Co. are receiving among other flowers a fine grade of Beauties, cattleyas, gardenias and valley. They report something doing all the time and July business ahead of a year ago.

S. S. Greene, of Southworth & Greene, West Stoughton, is spending his vacation at Scituate, Mass. His firm specializes in double violets and sweet peas, which they grow splendidly. They do not handle tomatoes or cucumbers, as some violet growers do.

H. F. Calder, of Norwood, is one of the few growers who is getting a fine grade of sweet peas at present. Mr. Calder is one of our leading double violet growers.

Peter Fisher says that the intense heat delayed the planting of his carnations somewhat, but he is now pushing the work to completion as rapidly as possible. Stock benched early is looking well.

Daniel Hay, formerly of North Easton and Waverly, Pa., is now head gardener to Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt, Harbor View, Newport, R. I.

Robert Hutchins, of Stoughton, is one of the few fortunates who are getting a splendid picking of sweet peas just now.

John McKenzie, of North Cambridge, one of our leading bedding plant specialists, left July 8 for a trip to Scotland.

W. B. Goodenow, of Stoughton, has a heavy pick of tomatoes of the Comet type. Leonard Cousins, of Concord Junction, is also picking from six large houses.

Peirce Bros. have nearly all their old carnations thrown out and are rushing the planting of new stock as rapidly as possible. W. N. Craig.

PITTSBURG.

The Market.

About one hour in the morning cleans up everything that comes in, and during the rest of the day the wholesale salesmen put in their time answering the 'phones, saying, "Not a thing in the house." There is not much more doing among the retailers, but they always need a little something and they are having their own trouble in getting that.

Carnations and sweet peas almost dropped out of sight last week. Asters are not here, and the reports from the aster growers are not encouraging. There are some good lilies, Beauties and valley, with a few good gladioli and roses, but they are only a drop in the bucket—not nearly enough to take care of the trade.

Various Notes.

The Zieger Co. baseball club defeated the A. W. Smith Co. club, with a score of 19 to 3. The A. W. Smith Co. club defeated the Randolph & McClements club, 10 to 2. The Randolph & McClements club played the Zieger Co. club on Tuesday evening, July 18. They say Billy Hall is a fine coacher, but does not have much success as a batter.

A committee consisting of E. C. Reineman, T. P. Langhans and W. Q. Potter has been appointed to arrange for the annual club picnic. While the date has not been set, the members of the committee say they will arrange for a grand day, with everything that goes with it.

No decided arrangement has been made for attending the convention. The extremely hot weather had the boys "bluffed," but, now that it is getting cooler, the usual crowd will undoubtedly be falling into line. If those going will call up the Pittsburg Cut Flower Co. they can get information regarding the fare, etc. It is also important to know how many are going, so that a car may be secured for the party.

There is a rumor that W. S. Kidd, of Beaver, Pa., lost all his glass by hail during the storm a week ago.

Hoo-Hoo.

PROVIDENCE.

The Market.

This city and vicinity has just passed through one of the hottest spells of weather, lasting for more than a fortnight, that has ever been experienced here, the thermometer day and night during the entire period averaging higher than 90 degrees and going above 100 day after day. This, with the fact that there has not been any rainfall of any consequence in two months, has brought about a condition that bodes ill for the florist.

So severe has the weather been that in almost every instance where outdoor work was in progress it was necessary to call the men off. This has been detrimental in cases where greenhouse construction was going on and the growers have been set back several weeks in actual work as well as in conditions for fall work.

Seldom has there been such a large demand at this season of the year for flowers for funeral work, but flowers have been unusually scarce, there being comparatively no carnations, sweet peas and asters, while roses have not been up to standing either in quality or quantity. Prices, however, have shown no advance.

Various Notes.

John Burke, of the Burke Rose Co., was a visitor in Worcester and Northbridge, Mass., last week.

Robert Shoch, representing M. Rice & Co., of Philadelphia, was a caller on the trade in this city the last of the week. He was in Westerly on the occasion of the fatal freight wreck and was also at Bridgeport when the Federal Express was wrecked, with more than a dozen killed.

C. H. Greaton, 1333 North Main street, is furnishing the privet plants for the hedge around the new State Armory. Nearly 10,000 plants are being used.

John J. Dunn, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, is receiving congratulations on the birth of his first son last week at his home in Westerly.

James J. Karins has been calling on the trade in this vicinity in the interests of H. A. Dreer, of Philadelphia.

Several of the downtown florists have commenced to close their stores on Friday afternoons at 1 o'clock.

T. J. Johnston & Co. had two wedding decorations last week.

W. Appleton & Sons are driven to their capacity with landscape work. They have nearly fifty large estates to take care of during the season.

William Chappell has returned from a ten days' southern trip. It is amusing to hear him tell his experiences.

The annual field day of the Rhode Island State Grange will be held at Seaconnet Point August 10.

Lawrence Hay, Sr., father of William and Lawrence, has entered the employ of the Burke Rose Co. to take charge of the roses.

J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., of Auburn, are preparing for nearly double the business they did last year. They are completely rearranging the interior of their large range of houses.

A. Brandt, of 22 Van Zandt avenue, Newport, has been having a big demand for hydrangeas in tubs, which he sells or rents for the season.

The Edgewood Greenhouses, 1860 Broad street, are looking for an experienced man for lawn and grading work.

Joseph Kopelman is contemplating the erection of several more new houses at Oaklawn. He has three new ones under construction at present.

It was so hot last week that men working on the new greenhouses of Albert Holscher, in Johnston, and J. Kopelman, at Oaklawn, as well as upon the construction work for Timothy O'Connor, on Blackstone boulevard, and Lawrence Hay, in East Providence, had to quit work.

William H. Luther, of South Providence, has returned from a three months' recreation trip in Europe.

The Burke Rose Co. is making extensive repairs in its range of houses and is already cutting some fine Maryland and Killarney roses from the new benchings.

Alex Macrae, of F. Macrae's Sons, has been on a fishing trip. He is telling some interesting stories of how the largest one got away. W. H. M.

PHILPOTT AND PYFER EN ROUTE.

H. A. Philpott and A. T. Pyfer, president and secretary of the Chicago Florists' Club, visited Cincinnati and neighboring cities last week. When asked for some account of the trip Mr. Pyfer said:

"Arriving at Cincinnati, we were met by the president of the Florists' Society, C. E. Critchell, Vice-president William Murphy, Treasurer Forter, J. A. Peterson and R. Witterstaetter, who gave us a cordial welcome and kept us in hand until after the club meeting, which was full of interest. As it was election night, there was a good attendance. On account of so many of the florists planning their vacations at the same time as the S. A. F. convention, there will not be a large attendance from Cincinnati.

"July 11 we accepted a cordial invitation from J. A. Peterson, the well known begonia grower, to have dinner with him. He was the first one in that vicinity to have fresh tomatoes and corn from his own garden, and you can rely on our judgment that they were fine, as was the spring chicken. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson left for Europe July 14. After taking us for a drive through the park and various points of the city, we called on the new club president, Gus. Adrian, whom we found to be an exceedingly busy man. Trade in general is quiet, with little stock in the market.

"At Louisville we were met by George Schulz, son of Jacob Schulz, the leading florist of that city, and from the time we landed there until our departure we were given a demonstration of real Kentucky hospitality. There was nothing left undone. After spending the afternoon seeing the city parks and other points of interest by automobile, we were joined by his family and others and enjoyed a supper in Shawnee park. Mr. Schulz has something in the way of a novelty in a huge electric sign just across the street from his store, which can not but attract everyone's attention. One feature of the electric sign is a rose. First the stem and leaves of the rose appear in green, then the pink bud, which afterwards bursts into an American Beauty in full bloom. Louisville is strong for the S. A. F. convention in 1912, and it surely is a beautiful place, and from the number of new hotels there should be no trouble for all visitors to find accommodation.

"At Dayton, O., we found W. G. Matthews busy as usual at his greenhouses, but he was not too busy by any means to give us a warm welcome as well as an automobile trip around the city most of Friday afternoon. We called on George Bartholomew, of the Miami Floral Co., who sailed for Europe July 17. Mr. Matthews is a man who believes in thorough advertising. We found he had on hand caps, of all sizes and quantity for workmen, as well as palm leaf fans, drinking cups and, in fact, anything useful he could find room to put his name on. These are distributed freely, not only among his patrons, but to anyone who can use such an article.

"We find the sentiment quite strongly in favor of having the next S. A. F. convention at Louisville, and there will be a good delegation from all these cities. I think Louisville will have enough for a special car, which will join the Chicago special at Cincinnati. We think that enough more will join at Cincinnati and surrounding territory to make up another car, therefore making the President's special leaving Chicago a grand train to the convention at Baltimore."

OBITUARY.

David Kalisher.

The sudden death, July 11, of David Kalisher is reported. He had for some time represented the New York ribbon house of Lion & Co. in the central west and was known to most of the florists in that section. Mr. Kalisher was 41 years of age. He leaves a widow.

The Market.

Business is fairly good, with hardly enough flowers to do business with. Carnations are scarce and of poor quality. Roses are short of the demand, though some growers are cutting from young stock, which is fairly good. Some fine gladioli are coming in.

Various Notes.

Miss Cora Pherson, bookkeeper for William Murphy, is away on her vacation at Winchester, Ky.

The new quarters of P. J. Olinger and Charles Jones, his partner, are fine and commodious; situated in the Lafayette Bank building, 118 and 120 East Third street.

J. Herdigen, of Aurora, Ind.; Ralph Deans, connected with W. A. Hollingsworth, of Atlanta, Ga., and Ben Eschner, representing M. Rice & Co., were callers last week. G. M.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

OUT AUGUST 17

Even larger and finer than in other years. It marks the opening of the new season. Reserve your space now.

"Every one in the Trade reads The Review; the replies to my small advertisement prove it."—W. Bay.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1911: President, George Asmus, Chicago; vice-president, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18 1911.

Results bring advertising.
The Review brings results.

MUM plants were scarce this season. Even yet there is an unsatisfied demand.

CUT flowers have become scarce all over the eastern half of the United States, the section affected by the recent heat and present drought.

WHEN you telegraph an order add the code word "Transmit," which means "Mentioned in your advertisement in the Florists' Review."

THE dry weather is costing the trade a great deal of money. Asters and gladioli are suffering severely and in most localities sweet peas were quickly finished off.

IF the dry weather keeps up, carnations will go into the houses under none too favorable conditions and a little later there will be a scarcity of field-grown plants.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

PRESIDENT ASMUS says the campaign for new members of the S. A. F. is producing good results and that there will be a large addition to the roll before the opening day of the convention.

THE man who has to be shown before he will grant credit, and the one who wants his money the day it is due, are taking their summer vacations together, while the men of lax methods swelter on the job.

THE express companies are being attacked in Congress by the Interstate Commerce Commission, by the parcels post people, by the States, and from many other angles. Pity 'tis the pressure can not all be put on one spot—then something would give way at once.

NOT always, but nearly always, you can tell which houses are most strict on credits and collections by noting which do the largest business. The firm that is lax on credits seldom gains a place at the head, and still less frequently holds a lead for any length of time unless methods change.

LONSDALE WANTS TO KNOW.

If the National Educational Association can hold a convention in San Francisco in 1911, which is now in session, 15,000 strong, why can not the Society of American Florists hold its convention in the same city in 1915? It would be educational to the fullest extent, if only the members could see what is being done horticulturally on the Pacific coast. It would be beneficial to all concerned, no doubt about that.

Edwin Lonsdale.

GETTING TOGETHER.

One of the pleasantest features of the S. A. F. convention is the getting together in parties at the principal centers for the journey to the convention city. Whenever these parties foregather everyone who can do so always is expected to join in. Here are the routes of the principal parties for the trip to Baltimore:

New York to Baltimore.

Via B. & O. R. R., leaving West Twenty-third street, New York, at 11:50 a. m., Monday, August 14, arriving at Baltimore 4:15 p. m. Address F. H. Traendly, 131 West Twenty-eighth street.

Boston to Baltimore.

Via Fall River line to New York, leaving south terminal at 6 p. m. August 13, joining the New York special train via the B. & O. Fare $8.65 round trip. Address W. A. Hastings, C Park street, Boston.

Chicago to Baltimore.

Via Monon railroad to Cincinnati, and via B. & O. Cincinnati to Baltimore. Leave Chicago 11:30 p. m. August 13; leave Cincinnati 8 a. m. August 14, arriving at Baltimore at 11 p. m. This will be the President's Special. Low fares on summer excursion tickets. Address Herbert Wiley, G. A., 104 South Clark street, Chicago.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Business is taking a modest little boom. The oldest inhabitants never have seen a better July market than the one Chicago has been having since July 14; indeed, the demand is just a little too good, for it has been necessary for some wholesalers to turn down orders, while many other orders have been cut.

The change in the strength of the market appears to be the result of weather conditions. The extreme heat earlier in the season put a lot of crops to the bad, and the cooler weather which prevailed early this week had the effect of retarding the crops under glass. The result has been a light supply, not only in Chicago, but apparently all through the central west. Wholesalers in other cities have been wiring to Chicago for stock, where a few weeks ago they were shipping their surplus here. The orders are as numerous as in winter, though naturally they are not so large. Practically everything is selling. Quality cuts little figure; everything goes, and at prices which should be thoroughly satisfactory to the producers.

The Beauty crops are lighter and there has been an advance in prices. Not a great deal can be said for the quality, as in most cases it is hardly up to standard. Still, the buyers are not

No limit now to our supply of

GLADIOLI

Big quantities in the three colors

There are just three varieties of Gladioli that the retailers really want—America, Augusta and Mrs. Francis King—the best light pink, white and red. Our local outdoor crop of these now is on (the same stock you got of us last summer) and we can furnish these three varieties in thousand lots.

We have these cut tight for shipping, so Retailers can carry them in stock without losing a single spike—it takes several days for all the flowers to open.

4c, 5c, 6c, 8c, 10c, according to variety.

KILLARNEYS

You can't beat these anywhere.

We are handling a large cut of Killarneys grown especially for the summer crop. Most of them run to medium and long stems, and you know that the longer the stem the larger and finer the flower is The Pink Killarneys have the best color we ever have seen on summer roses. If you are not using these roses, order some at once.

Specially strong on the 6c, 8c and 10c grades.

BEAUTIES

From young plants—mostly medium stems.

Year after year we have supplied the trade with the finest Beauties available in summer. Not only has the quality of our summer crop been exceptionally good, but our growers have been able to maintain a steady supply—we have been able to furnish the best Beauties all the time. All lengths of stem.

EASTER LILIES

You can get here all the Lilies you need. We have a big supply of fine home-grown stock; these are just the thing for funeral work, also decorations. Order some today, and every day—always can supply.

Valley

Order Valley of us and you will draw on a never-failing source of supply. We have the best grade.

Orchids

You can get the finest Cattleyas here. Daily shipments. Can furnish any ordinary quantity without notice. Wire your needs.

HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL GREENS

Here you get the best Fancy Ferns, all the Smilax and Asparagus strings you want, Sprengeri and Plumosus bunches, Mexican Ivy and Galax. No order too large for our facilities and no order too small to receive our careful attention.

critical and are paying gladly fully as much as the same Beauties would realize in winter. One of the features of the market in the last six days has been the increase in the demand for short roses. Previous to the middle of the month there were plenty of the short grade, the demand being largely for the medium and long stems. This week everything is selling, the short roses being in active request for funeral work, which seems to be heavy. Long roses now are scarce, most of the stock being medium to short, cut from young plants. Killarney continues to show splendid color. The novelties among roses are selling well.

Carnations are becoming less plentiful day by day and it will not be long until all the old plants under glass are thrown out to make room for the new stock. Such as are now being received are of fair summer quality, the growers having naturally thrown out the poorest houses first. Anything that is at all good in carnations is in active demand, for the dry weather has resulted in asters being later than usual. Few are received and these few are mostly short and small, but they sell well nevertheless. The outdoor crop of gladioli is coming in much stronger this week and prices in this department are lower than they were a week ago, in spite of a considerable improvement in the quality of the stock offered. Even valley has been short of the demand this week. There is little call for cattleyas and no heavy receipts. Sweet peas have been burned up, though a few still come in. The list of flowers is about at the lowest of the year.

Why It Pays.

One thoughtful large producer of roses for this market doubts if there is any profit in summer roses. He says the chief advantage is in making it possible to keep up his advertising and fill his orders, thereby holding his customers so that "the other fellow" cannot win them away during a time when good stock is scarce.

Club Picnic.

Ollie Zech, of Zech & Mann, who is chairman of the Florists' Club's pastimes committee, says that all arrangements have been completed for the biggest picnic the club has yet given. The date is Sunday, July 23, and the place is Ehrhardt's grove, at Park Ridge, Ill. There will be a baseball game between Wholesalers and Retailers, racing, dancing, a pie-eating contest and, as the posters say, other "athletic" sports. It is to be a basket picnic, but refreshments will be sold on the grounds. Tickets are on sale in all the wholesale houses at 50 cents each person. This includes transportation on the Northwestern railroad on the trains leaving at 11 a. m. and 12:45 p. m., returning leaving Park Ridge at 8:27 p. m. and 9:28 p. m. Hayracks are provided from the depot to the grove. Those who come by their own conveyances will buy tickets at the gate at 25 cents each. Nothing is needed but the crowd to make the picnic a success.

Various Notes.

A decided kick, delivered by Frank Oechslin's automobile engine, when he was cranking it recently, resulted in a broken right arm. Mr. Oechslin hopes to be able to remove the splints in a couple of weeks and is meanwhile attending to business as usual. He says that the new range, when completed, will be filled with Bostons, palms and dracænas. His poinsettias are especially good this season.

Announcement is made of the marriage of Joseph Schreiber and Miss Lynn Neuman. The wedding took place in the St. Henry's church, Wednesday evening, July 12. The groom is a brother of Mrs. J. A. Schneider, the carnation grower on Ridge avenue. Mrs. Schneider acted as matron of honor and served a wedding supper at her home. C. M. Dickinson was the only one present outside of the family.

Nic Miller has recovered from the effects of his recent fall and has taken hold with Kennicott Bros. Co. E. E. Pieser states that the company has made a profit-sharing arrangement with Mr. Miller and Michael Fink.

At Niles, in the center of a florists' colony, there is a justice of the peace who delights in getting something on the automobilists who pass through the town. One of his prizes July 16 was George Reinberg, who was stopped because of a missing license number, which he had dropped several miles back. Accompanied by an officer, the car retraced its course, and the missing number was found, thus establishing an alibi strong enough for the test of Niles justice.

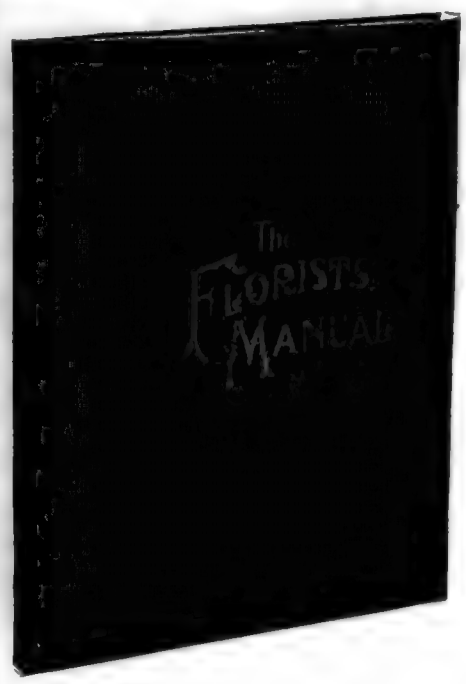
July 14 P. L. McKee made a second trip to Milwaukee to appear before the Western Classification Committee in support of the petition for a change in classification of greenhouse material filed by the John C. Moninger Co. Mr. McKee took a model greenhouse with him, to show the committee just what articles enter into the construction and how, under the present classification, some of the articles that constitute no large part of the whole affect the classification and raise the freight rate when all the materials go forward as one shipment.

Mrs. Percy Jones states that a specialist was called in last week to advise in the case of H. Van Gelder, whose illness was diagnosed as inflammation of the inner tube of the ear, threatening spinal meningitis. His condition then was serious, but he has improved rapidly and hopes to be back at business in a few days.



Frank Johnson says the July business thus far has been much the best in the history of the A. L. Randall Co.

Robert Northam and family are visiting relatives at Montague, Mich.

Charles Drissler, of the store staff of Wietor Bros., with his wife and daughter, is vacationing at Clear Lake, Wis.

Fred Liebermann won't be at the club picnic to pitch for the Retailers, as he has a regular Sunday engagement as hurler for the winning Napperday team.

John Poehlmann says that Poehlmann Bros. Co. is handling as many orders per day as in the middle of the winter, the only difference between January and July being that now the orders do not run quite so large.

MORTON GROVE, ILL.

Doings at Poehlmannville.

Poehlmann Brothers Co. reports receiving 265 cases of orchids this spring. This gives them six houses of cattleyas to cut from. The new houses, twenty-six in number, each 27x250 feet, all cement construction, are almost completed and planted and will give large additional cuts from October on. This company has gone extensively into the new varieties of roses, anticipating a heavy call for young stock next season. Carnation plants to the number of 320,000 will be benched this year, 180,000 being already housed and growing on. The young benched rose plants are exceptionally fine and promise large cuts. The selling department force will be added to as soon as cuts increase. Stock now is moving out fast.

August Poehlmann desires to make clear the fact that the cold storage rooms at the greenhouses are not built for the purpose of holding stock back or pickling it, but to extract the greenhouse heat from the cut flowers before packing, and that seldom are cut flowers held in these rooms over twelve hours. The average length of time would probably be two and a half to three hours. This is an important factor, especially when flowers are shipped direct from the greenhouses to the customer. For filling standing orders this method is hard to improve on. In consequence of the increase in shipping at the greenhouses, it was found necessary to make their own ice, as the regular supply ran short. They now have ice to sell.

NEW BEDFORD.

There has not been much business doing the last week. We have been in the midst of a hot spell; everything is drying up, and flowers do not look anything too grand. Carnations are small and poor. They are retailing at 35 cents per dozen. Roses are of poor quality; just now $1 per dozen retail is the general price. Sweet peas are not doing well. The stems are rather short; 40 cents and 50 cents per hundred blooms is the general retail price. Asters are beginning to bloom, but the stems do not come up to the usual standard on account of the dry weather. Flowers out of doors are in full bloom.

Early closing is the rule just now, with a half holiday Wednesdays. Funeral work is about the only thing doing now. Lawns are all burnt up. It is now almost a month since we

The Rising Eastern Market.

The cut flower market has been active during the week ending July 19. The activity is that of the mill race, rather than the mighty river. The supply of flowers is unusually small, proving quite inadequate to meet the demand. This was especially evident Saturday, July 15, when, with many funeral orders to fill, the local retailers bought nearly everything obtainable without satisfactorily filling all their orders. Conditions promise to improve under the influence of fruitful showers and cooler weather. Asters are increasing slowly in numbers. They bring excellent prices, some nice Queen of the Market realizing $3 per hundred, a good price made possible by the absence of all save a few carnations. Gladioli are abundant; they sell well. The small white flowers, outdoor grown, such as candytuft, pyrethrum, achillea and petunia, have realized surprisingly good figures. Most of the roses are not what can be called nice, but there are some excellent Kaiserin, with Beauties, Maryland and Killarney in smaller numbers. Easter lilies have had a great run. The crops are light with nearly all the growers. Valley has had an off week. The principal forcers have had some mean pips of the California pear kind; they look hearty outside, but inside they are gone. Greens are abundant. The demand for them is light.

Various Notes.

The Robert Craig Co. has closed a contract with the Lord & Burnham Co. for four greenhouses, 44x150 feet each, to be erected at Norwood, Delaware county, Pa. The material is expected to be on the ground early in August. The building will then be pushed rapidly to completion. The houses are intended for crotons, dracænas and other Craig specialties.

CREPE FLOWERS?

They are true to nature, durable and a most showy form of advertising, making your window rich and gay and making you gay and rich.

CREPE ROSES in all colors, lifelike in their colors and in form. They are admirable in every respect.
CREPE SWEET PEAS—possess that fairy-like charm and variety of color that make them fashion-favored flowers.
CREPE ORCHIDS—reproduce the rich, tropical effect of the orchid with startling fidelity.
CREPE WISTARIA—afford a grace and color not found in any other flower. The clusters are extremely effective.
PREPARED ADIANTUM FRONDS are used for green; they are perfect and durable.

The annual outing of the employees of Henry A. Dreer was held July 15 at Riverview, with a ball game as the main feature, the Nursery Department defeating the Store Department 22 to 2 in six innings. Refreshments were served in the large service building, followed by a few short speeches from J. Otto Thilow and others, all enjoying themselves immensely.

July 15 the Michell baseball team was scheduled to cross bats with Robert Craig Co. team, but the Craig boys canceled the game. The Michells say it was a case of frigidus feetii. The Michell manager took on the Andalusia town team, playing at Torresdale, Pa. The score:

The extremely dry weather has played havoc with the stock. Peas have dried up and all outdoor stock is affected to such an extent as to make flowers scarce. Asters, which in other years have been good in flower and stem, are poor and scarce. Candytuft is drying up and the water supply, where wells are depended on, is so short that no water is spared for outdoor stock. Indoor carnations are small and fast disappearing, so the situation is becoming serious. Roses are poor and fly open in a few hours. Rain has been threatening for some days, but

The Market.

Stock is becoming scarcer right along, while the condition of trade remains about the same, which is to say, not very brisk. The supply of carnations is much reduced, owing to the fact that most of the old plants have been torn out to be replaced by the new ones. Roses, of all varieties, are plentiful and while the quality is nothing to brag about, at the same time they are as good as can be expected under the circumstances and the demand is fairly good. Album and rubrum lilies are now to be seen on the market, and first-class giganteum is in good supply.

STEM-ROT OF BEANS.

I am sending you by mail a small box containing some soil and a few beans. Please notice the stems on the beans; they seem to have stem-rot. Will you please tell me what the trouble is and how to remedy it? Please let me know, also, what is wrong with the soil. I grew a good crop of beans on this soil several times, but this year the beans have all acted like the sample sent you. J. M. T.

The beans are affected with a kind of stem-rot which is quite common in some localities. I would advise you not to grow beans on that same spot again for at least two years. Use the ground for some other crop next season and starve out the bean disease.

If you have had beans on the same soil for several seasons it should be rich in nitrogen now, but badly in need of potash and phosphoric acid. I would suggest that you use about 400 pounds of sulphate or muriate of potash and 800 pounds of acid phosphate per acre early next spring. Sow it broadcast after plowing and drag it in well. If you plow this fall, apply the fertilizer then and the results will be still better. Another similar dose might be used next year, but a heavy manuring then would be preferable and would put your soil in good condition for beans or almost anything else.

You might get a good crop of beans again next season if you were to plant them again, but it would be rather risky after having a diseased crop now. A good, liberal dusting of air-slaked lime before you plow it again would also do much good. H. G.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

While our colleagues up north were suffering for some weeks from the intense heat, the florists here enjoyed the cool breezes from the Gulf. Everything is growing fast, on account of the real tropical rains we have had of late, but the landscape gardeners and growers of outdoor stock encountered some difficulties in keeping their places free of weeds.

The crop of greenhouse roses is getting short and the newly planted stock will not be in bloom for some time. Bench-planted outdoor roses are doing finely and yield fair crops of good sized, medium stemmed flowers. Hardly any gladioli are cut now. Though the aster crop is short with many of the local florists, some are still cutting a good supply. Single tuberoses are surely a boon and the growers of these fully appreciate their value, especially from now on, when all kinds of flowers, particularly long stemmed white ones, will be getting scarce. While most of the growers exhausted their supply of cold storage valley, some still have well grown stock on hand, with a sprinkling of a few fine cattleyas.

in the social world, but many florists have lately been kept quite busy with big funeral orders, which in many cases demanded every available flower.

The stock of chrysanthemums here excels that of last year, in spite of the recent heavy rains. The plants are strong and clean and the ones grown under glass are exceptionally fine. The growing of this valuable fall flower by our local florists is becoming a great factor and the flowers produced hold their own in comparison with those shipped by our prominent northern growers; this applies especially to the best standard varieties.

themselves of the opportunity to have a day of rest and jollification, after months of strenuous labor. The party took the new steamer, Louis Dolive, at Spanish Fort, and after a two hours' delightful ride arrived at the place of destination. The arrangement committee had provided for a delightful repast at Muguier's hotel, and, favored by the cooling breeze from the lake, the merry crowd enjoyed it thoroughly.

During the banquet the jovial secretary, C. R. Panter, acted as toastmaster. Those who made addresses were Ed. Baker, chairman of the arrangement committee; Richard Eichling, president; C. R. Panter and others.

After the dinner the majority boarded a special car for a trolley ride through the piny woods to Covington, a pretty little town in the Louisiana Ozone belt, returning in time for the departure to the city. Those who remained at Mandeville enjoyed themselves with a walk through the picturesque town and along the beautiful beach, joining the others on their return. Throughout the trip merriment and good fellowship prevailed, and there were many expressions of delight over the outing and much praise for the outing committee, which consisted of the following: Ed. Baker, chairman; C. R. Panter and Charles Eble.

U. J. Virgin donated flowers and Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri in abundance for the table decorations, which were executed in an artistic manner by Richard Eichling, manager of Mr. Virgin's nursery.

Various Notes.

W. J. Cleves, local representative of A. T. Boddington, New York, was one of the guests at the florists' outing.

Charles Eble, Jr., went on an extensive trip to the west and east, stopping at the following places: Chicago, Cleveland, Buffalo, New York, Philadelphia, Washington and Pittsburg. This is Mr. Eble's first trip east and he will surely make the best of it, from a business as well as a pleasurable standpoint.

Frank Broker, head gardener at the City park, is determined to make it the finest and largest in the south and fully deserves the praise bestowed upon him. Of the many elegant groups of foliage plants, those planted with a splendid collection of large crotons at-

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; First Vice-Pres., M. H. Duryea, New York City; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

A. H. Wilkinson, head of the garden seeds department of the Summers Seed House, at Malvern, Ia., has planted a tract of fifty acres with vegetables for seed.

There is no special inquiry for Harrisii. There are those who were disappointed in the call last year, and it looks as though it might be even lighter this season.

Since the reports from all the centers of production speak of short crops and light acreage, the next selling season for onion sets is likely to be different from last season.

Dry weather continues in all the important seed growing centers, though the excessive heat has passed. More than a few showers will be needed to put the soil into condition.

The seedsmen in the state of New York are making vigorous protest to Governor Dix in the hope of securing his veto for the pure seed bill that recently passed both houses of the legislature.

It is just a little early to speak with certainty, but it looks as though there might be a decrease in the crop of bulbs of America gladiolus, and an increase in the demand. That would mean a shortage.

A. A. Berry, Clarinda, Ia., reports that growing conditions have been unfavorable; crops will be materially diminished by the extremely dry weather, although good rains would yet help out the corn crop.

European seed growing countries, after two wet seasons, are this year having the other extreme—in many districts of England, France, Germany and Holland there has been too little moisture since the heavy spring rains.

Robert Nicholson, who recently retired from the Texas Seed & Floral Co., which he founded many years ago, will do a wholesale business in field seeds under his own name, at 401-3 Commerce street, Dallas, Tex.

Eventually a large part of the radish seed used in this country will be grown here. It is slowly coming to be recognized that American crops grown from seed from transplanted roots are just as good as the French crops.

Believing that a disclaimer printed among the advertising matter on the letter-head is of little value, and not being prepared to print it below the date line in advance of the general adoption of the new position by the trade, certain seedsmen have omitted the disclaimer entirely, so far as their letter-heads are concerned.

SEEDS :: BULBS :: PLANTS

72 Cortlandt St., NEW YORK CITY

THE price of canned goods is showing the effect of excessive heat and drought, especially in the tomato and pea sections.

ALL hope of a good crop of peas has been abandoned. Growers now anticipate an even lighter harvest than last season.

THE T. H. Cochrane Co., in the seed business at Portage, Wis., recently increased its capital stock from $48,000 to $100,000, partly for the purpose, it is said, of erecting a large warehouse.

ALTHOUGH the seasonal conditions were such that the bulk of the sweet pea novelties on the Lompoc farm of W. Atlee Burpee & Co. were not planted until a month later than last year, Edwin Lonsdale said, July 10, the novelties were then making excellent growth and a good harvest of seeds is hoped for.

THE beans have made a fair start and the acreage is thought to be about normal.

DISCOURAGING reports concerning the sweet pea crop continue to come to hand from California.

THE Arizona Seed Co., a new organization, has opened a store at 137 North Central avenue, Proenix, Ariz. The president of the company is William S. Humbert, who bought a ranch near Phoenix a few years ago and is conducting it with great success. The manager of the store is Marshall Humphrey, an experienced seedsman.

A report from Alpena July 15 speaks of copious rains over the northern Michigan region.

Wm. Rehm, who recently became American traveler for L. Daehnfeldt, Odense, Denmark, is at New York, preparing to make a trip to the headquarters of his house.

Advices from the lima bean growing section of California, received at the end of last week, were to the effect that the crop is progressing under the most favorable conditions.

In the Chillicothe, O., section the harvesting of onion sets began last week, but there is not much more than half a crop, with the acreage for the district greatly reduced as compared with last season. The onion seed crop in that section still gives excellent promise.

The Texas Seed & Floral Co., of Dallas, has filed a complaint with the Interstate Commerce Commission against the Texas & Pacific and the Santa Fe and connecting lines, asking reparation in the sum of $940.13 overcharge on a shipment of incubators from New York to Dallas.

A press report from Amoy, China, dated July 15, says the Pacific Mail steamer Mongolia, sailing that day, carried from that port 230 tons of Amoy narcissus bulbs for the American market, adding that this shipment is the first of its kind. The bulbs are produced in a small area on the West river, and the annual supply is limited. There has been sharp competition lately among foreign bulb dealers to get the local supply.

The stockholders' meeting of the A. A. Berry Seed Co., Clarinda, Ia., was held July 11, and a dividend of ten per cent declared. The annual report showed the last season the most prosperous in the history of the company and the earnings placed a good surplus to the reserve fund. The board of directors and officers are as follows: A. A. Berry, president; Geo. Standage, vice-president; J. F. Sinn, secretary; A. F. Galloway, treasurer; J. V. Pfander, J. W. Berry, James Shum, the last named member being newly elected to fill the place made vacant by the removal of Joseph Kindall to Seattle.

PEAS AT ALPENA.

Last week the daily newspapers contained so many sensational dispatches regarding fire losses in Canada and in the northern part of Michigan that reports became current in the trade that the pea crops in the Alpena region had suffered seriously by fire. Rogers Bros., whose headquarters are at Alpena, replied by wire July 14 to an inquiry from The Review, as follows:

"No crop losses by fire to our knowledge. Peas are being shortened very much by drought."

HOLLAND SEED CROPS.

A report from Holland indicates that it is the opinion of one grower there that spinach will be in surplus this autumn, there being an excellent crop in Groningen district and a good crop on some 750 acres standing for seed near Haarlem. Turnips will yield only moderately, the crop having been shortened by the dry weather. There is considerable acreage of turnips for seed this year at Dedemsvaart. It is cheering to hear from the Groningen district that, although the acreage of peas is less than heretofore, there is promise of an excellent yield. In the south of Holland peas suffered from dryness, but recovered rapidly after the recent rains and gave good promise at the date of the last reports. The Holland crops of radish suffered from the drought, but fair yields are expected, the long varieties having withstood the dry weather the best.

COMMERCE IN SEEDS.

In the month of May, 1911, the imports of seeds were considerably greater than in the corresponding month of 1910, but the exports decreased. The figures are:

IMPORTS.

May, 1911	$2,691,654
May, 1910	2,380,389

EXPORTS.

May, 1911	$50,233

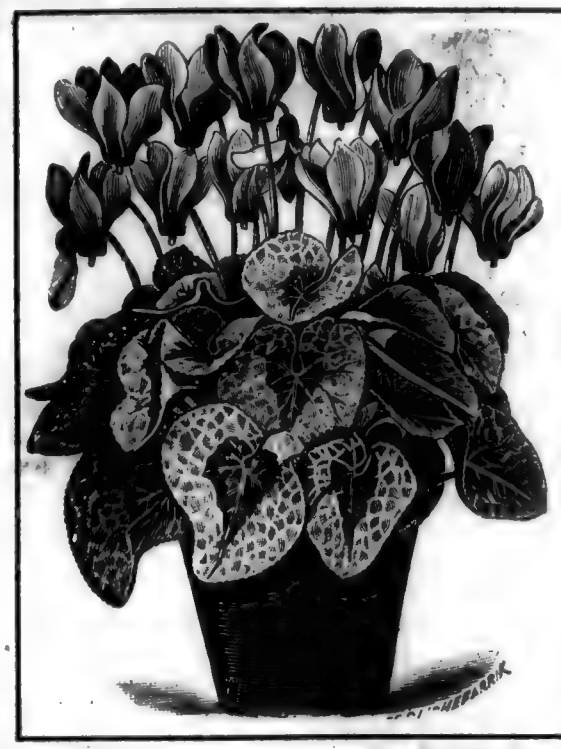
In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $890.

CLARK'S ADDITION.

The Everett B. Clark Seed Co. is making an addition to its building at Green Bay, Wis. The company some time ago bought additional land for the purpose, adjoining the old property, and now has a building site 178x410 feet, with the tracks of the Chicago & Northwestern railway on one side, those of the Green Bay & Western railway on another and the waters of Green bay on the third.



On the property recently acquired the company is putting up an addition to its warehouse that is to be ready for occupancy by October 1. The addition is 60x100 feet, three stories and a basement, and is of brick construction. This will materially add to the company's capacity at Green Bay, where it handles principally seed peas and beans. By means of the addition the company will not only provide additional storage space, but will also install another Otis freight elevator, equipment to accommodate ninety-five more women for hand-picking, and also another seed cleaner. The Everett B. Clark Co. now has three establishments for the handling of seed peas and beans, the one at Green Bay, Wis., and others at Sister Bay, Wis., and East Jordan, Mich.

The Clark Seed Co. is adding to its plant at the home office, Milford, Conn., putting up at the present time a brick warehouse 38x62 feet, three stories and a basement, on property recently acquired near the freight depot at Milford. This will be ready in time to be of service in handling the company's 1911 crop of seeds grown in Connecticut.

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

The hot weather affected flowers and people alike, including the Shriners, and made them all feel wilted. We have had no rain for a few weeks; there were few or no cool breezes, and even the nights were warm, which is unusual for this city. Dust, drought and heat made themselves felt at every turn, so that one really longed for a heavy shower, even at the risk of marring the pleasure of thousands of Shriners and their friends, who were visitors in the city.

Glant-Flowering CYCLAMEN

For the last 15 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed bearing Cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers, that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize-winner. Received first and second prizes at the Toledo Florists' Club meeting early in November, when blooming Cyclamens were scarce. Seed of this, my own grown strain, in five separate colors, $1.00 per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $25.00 per 5000.

All florists were busy in the first part of the week, with decorations, funerals and special flower trade, for the Shriners are good spenders and they used flowers everywhere. The Shriners from Texas used 500 American Beauties, tied with ribbons bearing the inscription, "Texas—1911," which they distributed among their friends. Flowers in the Shriners' colors were in great demand for hotel, home and table decorations. Country clubs and restaurants purchased flowers to make festive their places of business in honor of the visitors. Palms and evergreens, bay and box trees were also used in great profusion throughout the city. The streets were ablaze with flags and bunting and at night were brilliant with millions of electric lights. At the ball on Thursday night, which was the climax of the gorgeous spectacle, carloads of palms and evergreens were used, together with the bunting and flags. Rochester had to draw on the flower supply of Buffalo a few times during the week, for the demand was enormous. Then there were various banquets and receptions, at which great quantities of flowers of all kinds were used. Unfortunately, the hot weather made all cut flowers poor in quality, but patrons had to take them as they were. Since the weather was so hot and flowers could not be handled without ice, the street fakers gave up the flower business and turned their attention to the selling of souvenirs, which was a profitable line of business.

Roses are quite poor, because of the hot spell, and come into the market almost wide open. There are a few exceptions, however. Wards are somewhat small, but are good. Tafts, too, are fairly good, but Richmonds are of no use. Beauties stand the heat best of all roses, because of their lasting qualities, but the color is a little faded. Carnations are small and weak-stemmed; yet there are a few large ones left. Sweet peas are not especially good and have short stems. Harrisii lilies are plentiful and good. Gladioli are coming into the market now and are good, large stalks. Valley is good and is high in price. There is little demand for orchids. Garden flowers are poor, because of the drought. Gloxinias are coming better now and they are about the only potted plants in bloom.

In the latter part of the week there was a great scarcity of cut flowers.

Various Notes.

J. V. Laver, of Erie, Pa., was a delegate to the Shriners' convention last week.

A. N. Pierson, of Cromwell, Conn.,

is shipping some fine Star bouvardias into this city.

Miss Myrtle Bradstreet is taking July and August off from business cares.

The Rochester Floral Co. had the Shriners' emblem in red, green and yellow immortelles as a window display during convention week.

J. B. Keller's Sons did the decoration for the Shriners' ball at the State armory, July 13. On account of the paving of South avenue, this firm has so far been unable to begin work on its new house, but hopes to do so soon. Three pyramids, an oasis, a few palm trees and desert cacti, with a large white camel as the central figure, made up this firm's artistic window display during the Shriners' convention.

George Boucher, of Main street, east, is showing a miniature tennis court in his window this week. He also displayed an airship for Aviation week.

E. C. Armbrust has returned from his eastern trip.

J. M. Keller was a busy man last week, serving as chairman of the decorating committee of the Shriners' convention at the various meeting places.

Ambrose Saecker has left the employ of J. B. Keller's Sons and is putting up a small greenhouse of his own. We wish him success.

Horace Head was suffering with a badly swollen hand as the result of a black spider's bite, but is much better now.

E. C. Campbell's window decoration for the Shriners' convention consisted of a large obelisk of white cape flowers, with the emblem in colors, and several camels moving across the desert.

Charles Gow, of H. E. Wilson's, spent his vacation in Ohio. Mr. Wilson made no special window display for the Shriners, but had a neat emblem in a conspicuous place.

Al. Salter had a splendid display of a mammoth Shriners' emblem, with a bank of palms for a background, in his window.

Clarke Vick, of George B. Hart's wholesale house, is engineering several baseball teams of the florists' employees. He is working hard to get good men on the teams and to keep up enthusiasm.

George J. Keller, of Mount Hope avenue, is putting up another greenhouse, 28x150, of King construction, to be completed by September 1.

Salter Bros. consented to allow the Shriners of Jacksonville, Fla., to use their store as headquarters during the convention. There was no special window display. Walter Pritchard, of this firm, is spending his vacation in Buffalo.

Brown Watson has been working day and night during the convention.

FLORISTS' REVIEW
When Writing Advertisers

Selling cheap bulbs is a little like putting up a wet-paint sign—many people put their hands on the paint to see if it really is wet. Of course, nine times out of ten it is wet, and nine times out of ten florists who buy cheap bulbs find they are everything the word cheap implies. Now, a few good Cold Storage Giganteum or Magnificum planted now will net you a good profit in the fall, when they will flower. Giganteum, planted August 1st, will flower for Thanksgiving; and September 1st, for Christmas—times when you really need them. You must order them now, however, and get them planted. Horseshoe Brand Cold Storage bulbs are superior, owing to their keeping qualities and because they are thoroughly matured. Prices very reasonable—upon application. Write us.

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston, June, 1912.

NURSERYMEN are not especially alarmed at the drought—almost every year brings its dry time, and in the end a normal growth is made.

JOHN L. HEWITT, formerly in the landscape department of Peterson Nursery, Chicago, has gone into the landscape contracting business on his own account, at Evanston, Ill.

THE Durant Nursery Co., of Durant, Okla., recently tendered an elaborate and most enjoyable banquet to its agents and employees and their families. J. T. Foote, the company's general manager, acted as toastmaster.

THE report of Referee Nevin in the long contested case of the Fourth National Bank of Dayton, O., against the Albaugh Nursery Co., has been approved. The stockholders will be compelled to pay various sums in accordance with the law. The total indebtedness, according to the referee's report, was $33,933.25, including the $1,000 fee paid to Mr. Nevin.

ASKING that a receiver be appointed for the Pittsburg Nursery Co., a bill in equity was filed in common pleas court No. 4 July 10 by Joseph M. Jones against his partner, Rolland H. Smith. The plaintiff states that he and Smith are equal partners and that the defendant has had charge of the books and the bank accounts of the business. The plaintiff alleges that Smith refused to give him a statement of the business when he made a demand for an accounting.

STANDARDIZATION OF GRADES.

[A paper by E. P. Bernardin, of Parsons, Kan., read at the convention of the American Association of Nurserymen in St. Louis, June 14 to 16, 1911.]

The question of uniform grades is one that has been before this association many times, but as yet nothing has been done in the way of even an expression on the subject. That some action should be taken by this association along this line, there is no question, and there is no better time to do so than at this meeting.

The Western Association of Nurserymen was the pioneer in this line and in December, 1906, adopted the following grades:

All grades of trees shall be of fair shape, branched, well rooted. Caliper to govern and measurements taken two inches from the crown or bud, of the following grades:

Apple—
¾ inch and up	5	ft. and up.
⅝–¾ inch	4	ft. and up.
½–⅝ inch	3	ft. and up.
⅜–½ inch	3–4	ft., whips included.
Cherry—
1–1¼ inch	5–7	ft.
¾–1 inch	4½	ft. and up.
⅝–¾ inch	4	ft. and up.
½–⅝ inch	3	ft. and up.
⅜–½ inch	2½	ft. and up.
Plum—
1–1¼ inches	5–7	ft.
¾–1 inch	5	ft. and up.
⅝–¾ inch	4	ft. and up.
½–⅝ inch	3	ft. and up.
⅜–½ inch	3	ft. and up.
Peach—
¾–1 inch	5–7	ft.
⅝–¾ inch	5	ft. and up.
½–⅝ inch	4	ft. and up.
⅜–½ inch	3	ft. and up.
Under ⅜ inch	2	ft. and up.
Standard Pear—
1–1¼ inches	5–7	ft.
¾–1 inch	5	ft. and up.
⅝–¾ inch	4	ft. and up.
½–⅝ inch	3½	ft. and up.
⅜–½ inch	3	ft. and up.
Dwarf Pear—
¾–1 inch	3½	ft. and up.
⅝–¾ inch	3	ft. and up.
½–⅝ inch	2½	ft. and up.
⅜–½ inch	2½	ft. and up.

Some exceptions to the above may be made on such varieties as are known to the trade to be light growers.

Both Caliper and Height.

These grades were not adopted without some opposition on the part of the peach growers, as the "sixteenth men" were in evidence. I think you will find, however, that these grades have been lived up to by them closely since that time, with the exception of peach trees, and these have been graded mostly to comply with the eastern and southern custom. Once or twice when two-year apple were scarce and quite high in price, they have fudged a little and cut the first grade a sixteenth. The eastern fellows have been equally guilty in cutting a sixteenth once or twice on plum and pear, under similar conditions.

These little differences, once in a while, cut no figure, especially when specified in the trade lists, but the aim of uniform grades is to get every one to grade by both caliper and height, so that when one sees apple "5-6 ft." priced, or even number one, he knows

Beaute de Villecante

This fine Peony was our principal cut of Pink this season in time for Decoration Day. It also is an old standby of the Paris (France) cut flower market. A very bright and showy rose-pink. Among the first to bloom. Without a yellow stamen. The last two springs have not developed all varieties to good advantage, but Beaute de Villecante has had, for many years, a good bloom on every stalk.

that if he buys from the list he will get "¾ and up" trees, and not from the size of a lead pencil to the size of one's wrist, simply because they have attained the required height. The most of our nurserymen are now grading by both height and caliper, and every one must do it if he would retain the better trade and meet competition.

With the slight difference in the system of grading as now done by the east, south, north and west, we should have no trouble in agreeing upon a uniform standard, adopting it and then living up to it. The present system of grading two-year apple, cherry, pear and plum is practically the same everywhere. The only difference is on peach, one-year plum and apricot. Those that grow the heavier peach can and should be willing to cut the grade a little, as it will give them more number one.

A Proposed System of Grading.

Now, in order to get this question properly before this association, and to promote its discussion and at least get some action, I make the following motion:

That this association adopt for its standard grades the following on fruit trees:

Apple—
- ¾ inch and up.....5–6 ft.
- ⅝–¾ inch .....4–6 ft.
- ½–⅝ inch .....4–5 ft.
- ⅜–½ inch .....3–4 ft.

Cherry—
- ¾ inch and up.....4½–6 ft.
- ⅝–¾ inch .....4 –5 ft.
- ½–⅝ inch .....3 –4 ft.
- ⅜–½ inch .....2 –3 ft.

Plum, 2-year—
- ¾ inch and up.....5 –6 ft.
- ⅝–¾ inch .....4½–6 ft.
- ½–⅝ inch .....4 –5 ft.
- ⅜–½ inch .....3 –4 ft.

While the National Sweet Pea Society was holding its annual exhibition at Philadelphia, sweet pea enthusiasts were getting busy here as well. Among the displays at the rooms of the Board of Trade was a large collection of sweet peas from the Floradale Farm of W. Atlee Burpee & Co., at Lompoc, where Edwin Lonsdale is resident manager. The flowers were sent in by express and later Mr. Lonsdale received the following acknowledgment from Mr. Barnhart: "The sweet peas arrived in perfect condition. I had a bevy of pretty girls unpack them and arrange them, in a way that only girls can. Lonsdale! They were great, and no mistake. The crowds of people who visited the show took down every name and absorbed the firm's thirty-fifth anniversary supplement in no time; not nearly enough of them were sent." Had the show been made two weeks later, many more varieties could have been sent, for the season was such that planting on the Burpee farm was much later than last year.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Cold winds and plenty of fog are the prevalent conditions in this locality at present, in pleasant contrast with the situation of our eastern friends. In addition, we have the National Association of Teachers here in convention, but they have not helped trade, as far as we are able to discover up to this time. Everything in the flower line is as cheap as it is possible for it to be and the quality of stock is much better than what we generally have at this time. The last few weeks of cool weather have had the effect of bringing out the good points that are not always in evidence in the summer time.

Funeral orders up to within the last two weeks had been rather plentiful, but since that time they have greatly decreased and white flowers are no more in demand than anything else. Gladioli, dahlias, coreopsis, sweet peas, gaillardias and everything else that is seasonable are brought into town in about ten times the quantity for which there is any sale and the street hucksters get the benefit. Out-of-town shipments are also moving slowly and things in general are about as quiet as it is possible for them to be.

Various Notes.

Alex. Mann, Jr., has taken charge of the store formerly managed under the name of the Eddy Street Florists.

The California Nursery Co., of Niles, is making considerable improvements in its greenhouse plant.

Robert Armstrong, head gardener at the state capitol grounds at Sacramento, was a visitor in town last week.

The California Evergreen Co. is erecting two fern houses, each 30x130, at the Felton street nursery. The firm recently purchased five acres on Eighty-sixth avenue, Elmhurst, which will be devoted to hardy flowering stock for the present.

The Market street seedsmen are tiding over the dull season by paying considerable attention to poultry supplies and fancy fowls. Several firms have had elaborate window displays along these lines for the last few weeks.

The Market.

We are still experiencing cold, disagreeable weather, and a warm day seems out of the question for this part of the country. All outdoor stock is coming on slowly and this has a tendency to keep up prices on the indoor stock. The supply has been somewhat in excess of the demand, though the building of so many floats in the recent carnival parades cleaned out most of the surplus stock. The stores report business good for this season, while the growers seem well pleased with their part of the business.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club held its regular meeting July 6, at M. E. Hayden's store. After the regular business, it was decided to organize a bowling club. Two nights each month were set apart for the regular try-outs, with as much preliminary practice as possible.

The California Florists put up one of the best floats in the carnival parades. It was in the form of an immense telephone for the Home Telephone Co.

The float built by the Florists' Club for the carnival was one of the best pieces of floral art ever seen in this part of the country. It consisted of one immense cornucopia, with two smaller ones on each side, made of red carnations with a solid background of Enchantress carnations. More than 10,000 carnations, with twice as many sweet peas, were used in this design. J. L. S.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

With summer conditions prevalent on all sides, the bottom has practically dropped out of business. Sales are only occasional and usually of small value.

Carnations and sweet peas are the best selling commodities. Iceland poppies proved the best selling perennial of the season and when properly displayed created a big demand. Auratum lilies are unusually choice this season, often measuring ten inches in diameter.

Various Notes.

The Market.

Everything seems to be quiet just now and funeral work is about the only thing that helps out. Outdoor flowers are less plentiful, owing to the dry weather. The heat for about two weeks was severe and most people were glad of a chance to remain in the shade. Carnations are getting poor and small. Asters will soon bloom and for the next two months will take the place of carnations. Indeed, some good asters, grown under glass, are on the market now. Mum stock is looking fine in general. Rain is needed, to help out the stock in the fields.

HYDRANGEAS

For Summer Flowering

We have an unusually fine lot of Hydrangeas, which have been held dormant all winter. These plants are now in bud and bloom, and will flower in fine shape during July and August. We have a fine lot of blue Hydrangeas, as well as pink. Plants are in splendid shape for immediate use, and will flower during July and August—at a time of the year when they are in the greatest demand. We can furnish these plants in ordinary butter tubs at $2.00 and $3.00 each. Plants in new cedar tubs, painted green, with handles, as follows: Well budded plants in 14-inch tubs, $3.00 each; 16-inch tubs, $4.00 and $5.00 each.

FERNS

We have an exceptionally fine lot of Boston Ferns of the Harrisii type; also a splendid lot of Pierson Ferns, good, bushy, well-grown plants, in 8-inch pots, that will please the most critical buyer, $1.00 each.

LILIUM HARRISII

(The Bermuda Easter Lily)

We offer a selected and carefully grown stock of the original pure Harrisii. There are only one or two lots of bulbs on the island as good as the stock that we offer. We take pleasure in offering this stock, because it will be found to be very superior to the average stock that is generally offered. This is one of the healthiest and cleanest lots, and will give much better satisfaction than the stock usually obtainable. Our customers who had Harrisii from us last year stated it was the best they had received in years. We have only a limited stock, which we are offering, and when stock is exhausted we shall have no more to offer this season. Fine selected bulbs, 6/7-inch, 350 to the case, $16.00 per case, or full 1000 lots at $45.00 per 1000; 7/9-inch, 200 to the case, $17.00 per case, or full 1000 lots at $80.00 per 1000; 9/11-inch, 100 to the case, $18.00 per case, or full 1000 lots at $175.00 per 1000.

RHINEBECK, N. Y.

Alvin Coon, one of the pioneer violet growers of Rhinebeck, died last week of typhoid fever. He was 48 years old. The members of the Violet Growers' Mutual Association sent a beautiful floral tribute.

Most of the violet growers here have their plants bedded, but with some, prospects are not particularly promising, on account of a recurrence of the root-rot which was prevalent last season, and there are no more young plants obtainable.

Walter Ripley has sold his greenhouse and other property to C. A. Kilmer, and has entered the insurance business.

G. C. Rogers, formerly with George Saltford, is now superintendent of F. R. Snyder's violet establishment.

J. Vonder Linden has had a fine crop of early tomatoes and other vegetables in one of his houses. F. R. S.

KALAMAZOO, MICH.

Articles of association have been filed by the H. A. Fisher Co., of this city, with County Clerk E. F. Curtenius for record. The object of the company is to conduct a general florists' business, the capitalization being $6,500, divided into 650 shares of $10 each. Of these Harry A. Fisher holds 450, Herman Fisher 100, and George Fisher 100. The new company will continue the business of H. A. Fisher & Co., West South street, moving shortly to a new store in the New Burdick hotel, which will be one of the finest establishments in the state. No expense is being considered too great and the white enamel and Italian marble interior will be quite unique here. The contract for the work has been allowed to the Burleigh Woodworking Co., of this city.

Alton, Ill.—The Alton Floral Co. removed July 1 to the Levis building, at Second and Alby streets.

HAIL AT ELKHART, IND.

It is reported that about seventy-five per cent of the greenhouse glass at Elkhart, Ind., was broken by a hail storm on the afternoon of July 11. The damage to outdoor crops, though serious, was more than counterbalanced by the good effects of the copious rainfall that accompanied the hail.

Fred P. Livengood, proprietor of greenhouses on South Main street, is said to have lost about eighty per cent of his glass. Mr. Livengood also suffered a shock from a bolt of lightning; he was paralyzed for a few moments, but was not permanently injured.

William Currier, on La Salle avenue, reports that fully 1,000 panes of glass were destroyed at his greenhouses.

Hugh Hills, 930 Prairie street, reports a loss of 500 panes.

Mrs. E. M. Bullock, 803 West Franklin street, states that a great proportion of the glass in her greenhouse was broken, but the full amount of damage had not been estimated.

Frank J. Bevan, 601 Baldwin street, reports between 200 and 300 panes of glass broken at his place.

The B. E. Sassman greenhouse, on Adamsville road, also suffered considerable damage from the breaking of glass.

W. H. Troyer, on West Indiana avenue, lost about 500 lights and the hail did considerable damage also to his outdoor plants.

McPherson, Kan.—Chas A. Simonson is erecting another greenhouse, 32x80, which will be used mostly for growing lettuce, as there has recently been a strong demand for that vegetable. When this new house is completed, the range will contain a total of 15,000 square feet of glass.

REMEMBER

Araucarias Are Our Specialty

No one can beat us in this line.

WARNING.

DON'T BE DECEIVED! Now, as well as for the last 25 years, we hold the ground as leaders in the importing, growing and shipping of our specialty, the Araucaria.

ARAUCARIAS. 6000 just received per Steamer Marquette from Antwerp, Belgium, more coming by next steamer. Araucaria Excelsa, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, palms, etc. Florists, you know we are leaders for the last 25 years in importing, growing and shipping this so well known evergreen decorative plant. The Araucaria, more in favor now than ever. Almost every florist knows our Araucarias, therefore no argument is needed for our goods. We know what our customers want and need, and have provided for them and set aside special specimen plants of the Spring Importation 1910. These specimen plants will stand the climate everywhere and are especially adapted for decorating lawns, porches, verandas, bungalows, private summer residences, hotels and boarding-houses at the seashore or elsewhere. Our prices are very low for fine stock.

Just look! Araucaria Excelsa, raised from top cuttings, 6 to 7-in. pots, 4 to 5-year-old, 5, 6 to 7 tiers, 25, 28, 30, 35 to 40 inches high, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $2.00 to $2.50 each.

STAMFORD, CONN.

The regular meeting of the Westchester and Fairfield Horticultural Society was held in the Royal Arcanum hall, Friday evening, July 14, with President Stuart in the chair and all officers present. About seventy-five members attended and two life, three honorary and nine active members were elected, while ten new applications were received.

The executive committee reported the completion of arrangements for the first annual outing, to be given at Bonnie Brae Inn, New Rochelle, N. Y., July 26. The contests and games will begin at 10:30 and dinner will be served on the lawn in the early afternoon. It is hoped to make this picnic a big success; prizes are offered for all the events; there will be plenty of music and a colored quartet. Come and bring your friends; other friends of yours will be there. The tickets are $2 each.

The exhibits at the meeting were of fine quality and the judges reported as follows:

Honorable mention to James Stuart, for Achimene cœlestinum; to George Woundy, for Dendrobium nobile; to A. Peterson, for display of sweet peas; to P. W. Popp, for Lilium auratum and sweet peas; to Charles Adcock, for tomatoes.

High commendations to Alex Geddes, for muskmelons; to Adam Patterson, for collection of sweet peas, named varieties.

Vote of thanks to A. Peterson, for Myrtus communis; to A. S. Peterson, for Hydrangea arborescens alba grandiflora.

The exhibitors gave short talks and answered questions regarding the culture of the exhibits.

J. B. McArdle, Sec'y.

GERANIUMS

The steady increase in the demand for Geraniums is proving beyond a doubt that they are the universal favorites with the flower buying public, that they are today more popular than ever before; in fact, the demand during the past season nearly exhausted the available supply. We are increasing our stock for propagation to the extent that we shall produce them in enormous quantity next season, and feel confident that we shall be in a position to fill your orders to your entire satisfaction, but would suggest that your order be placed early. We have already booked heavily on some kinds. Good standard sorts at $18.50 per 1000, from 2-inch pots.

A splendid stock in 3-inch pots, ready for immediate shipment, at $3.00 per 100 and up, including Ivy-leaved in such varieties as Rycroft's Surprise, Mme. Thibaut, Mrs. Banks, Alliance, Pierre Crozy, etc. Variegated Foliage: Silver Leaf Nutt, Mrs. Pollock, Sophie Dumaresque, Mt. of Snow, L'Eleganta and Duke of Edinburgh.

Achyranthes Emersoni, Alternantheras, red and yellow, Coleus, Lemon Verbenas, Swainsona Alba, Hardy English Ivy, 2-inch, $2.00 per 100; 3-inch, $3.00 per 100.

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each boiler advertised in The Review is a good boiler, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

PROPOSED FLOW IS TOO SMALL.

I have two houses, of the following dimensions: House No. 1 is 8x45 and house No. 2 is 21x33. No. 1 has 4-foot sides, two feet of which are glass. The boiler-house stands at the end of No. 2, and No. 2 is joined to No. 1 by a gutter. No. 2 is boarded up to the eaves, a height of four feet. One end is glass from the eaves up to the gable. I have a Wilks heater, 24x42. Under the benches of No. 1 are five 1¼-inch pipes. House No. 2 has two center and two side benches. Now, will five 1½-inch pipes under the side benches, with one 2-inch riser, be sufficient to heat House No. 2 to 45 degrees here, in Michigan? The boiler is only tapped for two 2-inch flows, but for three returns. I shall use two 2-inch returns in house No. 2 and have manifolds tapped for six 1½-inch flows, and can add one more if necessary. The boiler is three feet below the ground. J. J. U.

The plan proposed for heating the house, 21x33, is a good one. The amount of radiation, however, is about the limit for a 2-inch flow. Even if one 2-inch tapping is all that is available, it will be advisable to use a 2½-inch flow pipe, which can be reduced and connected with the boiler. The 2½-inch pipe can be used as the main flow pipe, by carrying it under the ridge, or it may be broken up into two 2-inch flows, each of which can be carried on one of the plates. Two 2-inch and six 1½-inch returns will give the needed radiation. If it is desired to have all of the returns of the same size, use six 2-inch or nine 1½-inch returns, in addition to the two 2-inch flow pipes.

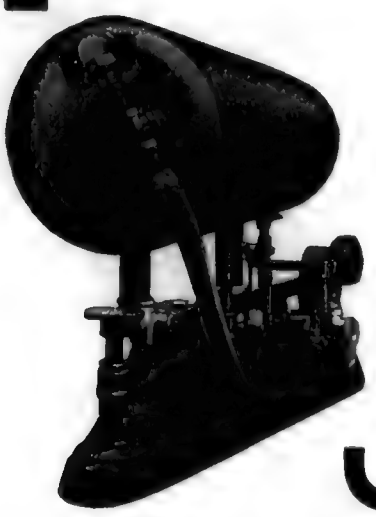
SIZE OF CHIMNEY.

We wish to build a square brick chimney, but are in doubt as to what size it must be. We have two boilers, one having a 10-inch flue and the other a 12-inch flue. What width must the chimney be to give a good draft for both these boilers? It will be about thirty-five feet high. C. V. G.

If no other houses are to be added, a brick chimney sixteen inches square, inside measurement, will answer for the two boilers now in use. By adding five feet to the height of the chimney, its capacity would be sufficiently increased to take care of another boiler like those now in use.



TWO HOUSES AND A FRAME.

Please give me information as to the piping of my two houses and the size of boiler that I shall need. The houses are each 32x150. The side walls consist of thirty-six inches of concrete and forty-eight inches of glass. The height to the ridge is sixteen feet. I wish to maintain a temperature of 60 degrees in zero weather. The boiler-room will be about five feet lower than the house. A hotbed or coldframe will be connected with the house and will be the same length, 150 feet. I should like to heat this frame, if necessary, the same as the house. Location, Michigan. J. F. M.

The question does not state whether steam or hot water is to be used; neither does it give any idea of the arrangement of the houses. It will make considerable difference whether solid beds or raised benches are to be used.

For steam it will be well to use in each house one 2-inch main about three feet under the ridge, and a 1½-inch main on the side walls of each house, near the plate. About twenty-one 1¼-inch returns will be needed in the coils. Of these, four or five can be on each of the side walls and the others under the benches; or, if solid beds are used, all of the returns can be on the walls, those connected with the 2-inch main running either way along the end of the house and back to the boiler on the side walls, under the regular side coils.

If hot water is used, put in six 2½-inch flow pipes and eighteen 2-inch returns. In case the houses are connected, two less returns will be needed in each house, whether hot water or steam is used.

If the hotbed is six feet wide and is built against the wall of one of the houses, run a 1½-inch steam main, or a 2½-inch hot water flow, on the back side near the glass, and at the farther end connect it with two 1¼-inch steam or two 2-inch hot water returns.

To heat the two houses, 32x150 feet, and the hotbed, 6x150, there will be about 2,600 square feet of steam radiating surface, and for this a forty horse-power boiler will be required. With hot water, fully 5,000 square feet of radiation will be necessary and a hot water boiler rated at not less than 6,000 square feet will be needed.

FROM CLOSED TO OPEN SYSTEM.

I have three greenhouses, heated by a Hitchings boiler, No. 18, old style. The boiler is connected with the piping in the houses by a 3-inch main. The boiler is at one end of houses No. 1 and 2, and the highest point in the piping is at the opposite end of house No. 3; in other words, the highest point is at that part of the system farthest from the boiler. I want to change the system from closed pressure to open pressure. Can this be done by merely installing open tanks over the highest point? If not, what must be done? There are air valves at the farther end of the pipes.

House No. 1 is 14x100 and the roof has a pitch of seven feet; 2-inch pipe is used in this house. Houses No. 2 and 3 are each 8x100, with a pitch of six feet; each of these houses contains eight runs of 1-inch pipe.

I wish to connect with the same system a small round boiler. In moderate weather, in this mild Virginia climate, the small boiler alone would answer, and in severe weather it would help. How shall I make the connections?

The Users Of The.... Hughson Regulating Valve

are all satisfied with the results it has given, and many duplicate orders is the proof. This Valve will maintain a steady pressure on the low side, no matter how the initial pressure fluctuates. By carrying 40 or 50 pounds pressure on the boiler and setting the valve to carry 5 or 10 pounds on the line, you always have a reserve to fall back on in case of a sudden drop in temperature. Our new catalogue is just out and if you contemplate making any changes you had better get one—it is yours for the asking.

level of the returns. It will be desirable to elevate the flow pipes to the height of the plates, giving them a slight downward slope from the boiler. This will make it possible to dispense with all valves and expansion tanks except the one near the boiler.

In each of the 8-foot houses one 2½-inch flow pipe and eight 1-inch return pipes will answer. A better way to heat these two houses, however, would be to put in each house two 2-inch flow pipes and four 2-inch returns. For house No. 1, which is 14x 100 feet, use two 2½-inch flow pipes and ten 2-inch returns. The fact that the smaller boiler would be below the other boiler would make no difference, except that a larger share of the work would be put on the smaller boiler.

HOUSES FOR GENERAL STOCK.

I am planning to build two houses, each 20½x50 feet, and six feet to the gutters, with three feet of glass in the side walls and in one end. I wish to grow carnations, roses and a general line of plants; with lettuce and radishes. Can I successfully do it in the two houses mentioned? How many runs of 2-inch hot water pipe will be required to heat them properly in the latitude of St. Paul, Minn.? Any suggestion you may offer will be greatly appreciated. W. C. M.

If the houses are connected, so that but one wall of each is exposed, a temperature for roses can be maintained by using three 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns. For carnations use the same number of flow pipes and nine returns. In case the houses have both walls exposed, put in two additional returns in each house. One of the flows can be carried on each plate and the other about two to three feet below the ridge, and the returns can be distributed in coils underneath.

SOUTHINGTON, CONN.

The Market.

The hot wave has returned and, if rain is longer delayed, the market gardeners and growers of outdoor flowers will lose heavily. Asters and gladioli are coming in plentifully. Carnations are a thing of the past. The asters are fairly good, but not of the grade that commands a good price. Sweet peas are fine, as a rule, though some of the stems are shortened by the drought. Lily of the valley is seen now only in small lots. There is a good supply of gypsophilas, cornflowers, cosmos and other outdoor stock.

Various Notes.

William Fischer, of Milldale, owner of the Buckland Greenhouses, is erecting two large houses at his plant. He purchased this property from Olson & Lunden about two years ago and has certainly built the place up since buying.

Olson & Lunden are cutting some fine asters and have most excellent promise from the beds for the future. They report that the last half year was one of the busiest seasons in their experience.

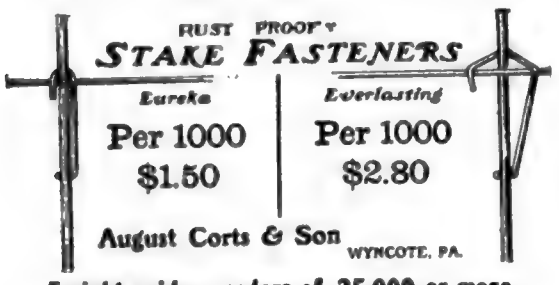
Otto Glueck, of Marion, reports business for the last month as first-class.

B.

MERIDEN, CONN.

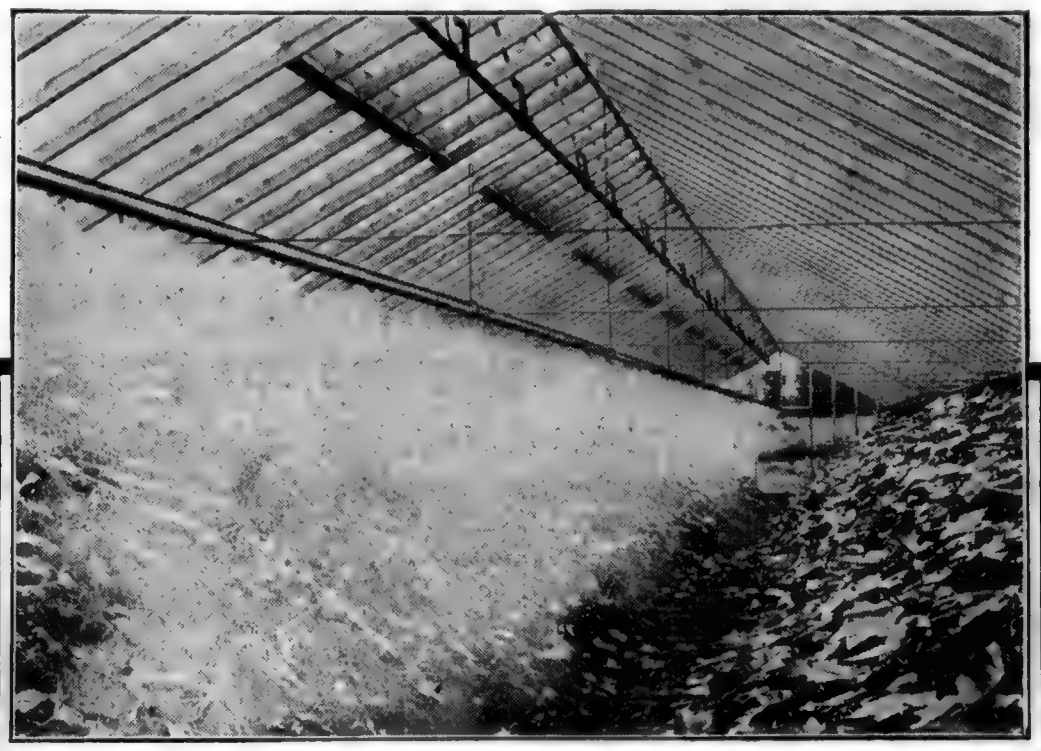
The Market.

This city has had its share of hot weather. The thermometer registered as high as 103 degrees early in July. The heat has been telling on the flowers and vegetables. A few of the stores report some large funeral orders. Indeed, funeral work kept the florists busy for a week or two, as the heat caused a great many deaths, but other business is of little account. Stock is plentiful, such as it is. All outdoor stock is suffering from want of rain. There are some summer roses that are quite good and they sell readily. Gladioli are overabundant; America is the most popular variety.



Various Notes.

John Bonell, the Converse avenue florist, has the sincere sympathy of a wide circle of friends in the loss of his little daughter, whose death occurred June 26, after a short illness. The interment took place in Walnut Grove. There were many beautiful floral tributes.



The Blatchley Co. had a pretty window display last week, of fancy ferns.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

The Market.

Everything is moving along slowly and quietly in the regular summer rut. There are few good flowers coming in and the demand can hardly be noticed. The weather conditions have been against outdoor sweet peas and roses and the quality of those coming in is poor, while the excessive heat has played havoc with inside stock.

A few good carnations are to be seen and also a few roses, of which the Kaiserins head the list. Brides and Maids are so poor as to be scarcely available even for funeral work.

Gladioli are coming in large quantities and move fairly well. Greens are plentiful, also wild ferns, which are to be had at any price.

The S. A. F. Convention.

Four weeks more and the time for the gathering of the hosts will have arrived. The S. A. F. convention is approaching rapidly and the local committee will not have many more meetings before the fruits of their labor will be harvested. Everything appears to be in the best possible shape.

The one thing of most importance is to impress upon everyone how anxious we are to have them with us. Preparations are being made to give you as great a time as you ever had at a convention.

The trade exhibits will be exceptionally fine and this alone will pay any progressive florist for what little time and money it costs him to attend the convention. Any florist who does not pick up enough ideas from what he sees there, to more than repay him, surely needs to visit an oculist. So come one and all, and we will do our best to make you more than welcome.

Various Notes.

The ladies' bowling team had an outing at Bay Shore park, Wednesday afternoon, July 12, and some good scores were made. Friday, July 14, they were entertained by Mrs. I. H. Moss at her home at Govanstown. Q.

Rochester, N. Y.—The Shriners' convention made good work for the craft. Richard Salter and Mike Keller are both Shriners and received a large part of the patronage for decorations, which were the finest seen here for some time.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

Plans are being perfected by the Washington Florists' Club to entertain the members of the Society of American Florists when that organization holds its annual convention in Baltimore the third week in August. Nearly a thousand of the visitors, who come from all sections of the country, will come to the Capital City one day during the week as the guests of the local club. An elaborate social program will be arranged, with a trip down the river and automobile rides to the various places of interest. As yet the program is only tentative and will be until the club officials have had an opportunity to hold a meeting to decide on the best means of entertainment.

The excursion of the Washington Florists' Club to Huntsville July 12 was voted a huge success by the 200 guests who went down to the grounds. Everybody had the best time possible, with plenty of eatables and games of all sorts and descriptions. The only accident that occurred during the entire day was when William F. Gude's electric runabout ran out of power several miles from the festivities.

Everybody from 12-year-olds up to the graybeards had a hand in the athletic events. Mrs. George C. Schaffer won first prize for pitching the ball into the basket, open to married women. Mrs. Holts won second prize. The same event, open to single women, was won by Miss Florence Guttman, first prize, and Miss Mary Kimmell, second prize. The guessing contest, in which the guessers tried to tell the number of American Beauty roses contained in a large box, will be open for the next meeting of the Ladies' Club of the organization the first week in August. No one guessed within several dozen of the correct number, so the prize was not awarded. The same fate was meted out to the tape-measure guessing event. The retail florists went down to defeat in the baseball game.

TUESDAY

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Spirit Lake, Ia.—J. M. Klein has had a fine business during his first year of growing cut flowers and is planning a large addition to his glass.

Spartanburg, S. C.—The Oakhurst Greenhouses is the name of a new concern that has been established here for the purpose of growing cut flowers, pot plants, nursery stock, etc. Dr. R. L. Branyon is president and G. Loveling is manager. Two greenhouses, each 25x100, have been started and the firm expects to be ready for business by August 15. The John C. Moninger Co. is furnishing the construction material and heating plant.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Primulas.

The intense heat of the first half of July has been trying for primulas, which, like many other winter-flowering plants, love cool weather and only start to grow in earnest with the arrival of cold nights. When the thermometer registers 90 degrees, or even 100 degrees in the shade day after day, many of the pot plants suffer severely, unless closely watched. Watering must be done once, twice or perhaps thrice a day, unless the pots are plunged, as they seldom are. Of course, it means some extra work to plunge such plants as cyclamens and primulas in ashes, but when the saving in watering is considered, and the fact that the roots are so much cooler and moister than when not plunged and grow so much better, what we apparently lose in one way is fully repaid in the other. Let any grower who is handling this class of plants try one batch plunged and the balance unplunged, and note the difference.

Primulas can not be successfully grown in greenhouses in summer. They will become drawn and emaciated looking. Coldframes are the places for them and the sashes should be removed after four in the afternoon; in fact, they are not needed at all, except during heavy rains, so long as lath shadings are used. The night dews greatly benefit the plants, and during hot days they should be sprayed over several times. Pick off any flowers which appear and do not allow the plants to become potbound. In potting the Chinese section, set the plants just low enough so that they will stand firmly in the pots. Those left too high will be wobbly and will need staking, and will never make as good plants as those set a little deeper in their receptacles.

Bouvardias.

The bouvardia plants in the field will now be making good growth. Flowers are not wanted on them at this season and the shoots should be kept pinched back whenever they run away and show an inclination to flower. Any plants which may have been carried over the second season—and, by the way, that splendid white, sweet-scented sort, Humboldtii, makes bigger and more satisfactory plants if kept over and cut back quite hard before planting out—will be growing strongly, and as breakages are possible during heavy rain and wind storms, it will pay to use a stake in the center of each plant and loop them up a little. In August and September choice white flowers are not plentiful and it will pay the average country florist to let some of his plants flower. Keep the ground well cultivated about them, and where a really fine lot of summer cutting is wanted it is always a good plan to plant some of the old stock of Humboldtii in coldframes, where they can be watered.

Genistas.

About once a fortnight the genistas should be looked over and sheared to keep them shapely. Avoid too much formality in genistas. These plants lend themselves quite readily to formal treatment and various fantastical designs are annually to be seen. These freaks are not, however, what the best buyers want. Nice, bushy plants, loose rather than stiff and hedgelike, are the most pleasing. Like all other winter-flowering plants grown in the open, genistas should be plunged and they enjoy a hosing overhead at midday, as well as in the evening. Keep young plants potted on and pinched at least once a week, to give them a good form. The fullest sunshine is best for them at all times. Genistas can be planted out and will make a great growth with unlimited root-run. They lift poorly, however, and the only safe plan is to keep them in pots all the time.

Allamandas.

Both bush plants and climbers are now blooming profusely, and what beautiful hot weather subjects they are! There are few visitors who can refrain from exclamations of delight when on a hot summer's day they walk along a greenhouse path, while overhead Allamanda Hendersoni, or one of the other large-flowered varieties, covers the roof with a wealth of its charming, soft yellow flowers. A bunch of allamandas, cut with some foliage, makes a beautiful table centerpiece. Where the tables are of considerable size, pots of A. Williamsi rising from a bed of Adiantum cuneatum or Farleyense make one of the softest and most satisfying of decorations. Allamandas are gross feeders and, while flowering, will relish quite strong doses of liquid manure twice a week. They should never be allowed to get the least dry, or the flowers will at once become soft. Where new stock is wanted, there is still time to root cuttings, which are best if rubbed off with a heel.

Stephanotis.

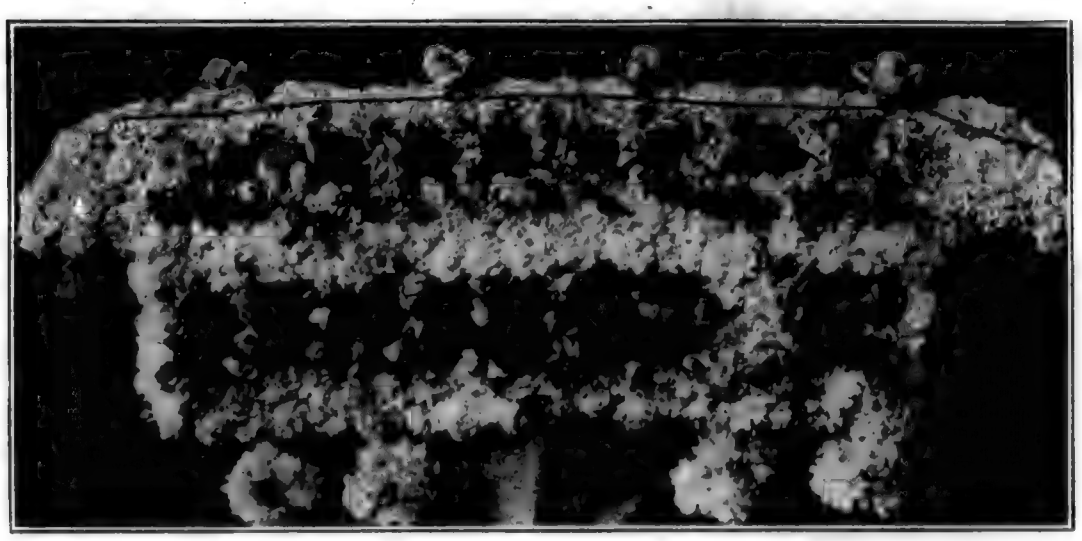
The old-time favorite, Stephanotis floribunda, is not so popular in America as in Europe, where it is a common market flower. While it can not be cut with more than a short stem, the sweet-scented, pure white flowers are of great value in bouquet or design work of any kind, and at the time the stephanotis naturally flowers choice white flowers are not at all plentiful. It may not pay many growers to have this on their greenhouse roofs, but there are not a few who have a good summer trade at mountains, lakes or seashore, to whom a well flowered stephanotis will be both useful and profitable. There are no great secrets about stephanotis culture. It does not like too much root run, but enjoys liberal top-dressings and abundant water supplies while growing and flowering. It will succeed well in an ordinary greenhouse and does not need a hot, stuffy house. Mealy bug loves it dearly, but if a good pressure of water, properly directed, is used on it daily, there is no trouble about keeping the plants clean.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

A CONGRESS OF DAISIES.

In a Florist's Window.

Given: The average wedding stock collection of flowers and the dull season. Ye store man is glad to put in some strokes which shall count for an advance in public taste and an improvement of his standing in the community, scarcely hoping that it may stimulate any early advance in trade. But he has resolved to make solitary confinement count for something, and so, with both eyes open, he wonders why he has never before noticed such a large number of flowers of the daisy type in such delightfully harmonious colors. Among them are marguerites, yellow and white; Shasta daisies, gaillardias, coreopsis; single dahlias running into browns, yellows and dull reds. Catching another vision, he sees a scheme which may include cosmos, white and pink; heliotrope dahlias, wild asters and red clover.



The Design Plan of the Daisy.

He gathers the first lot together and adds to the collection two or three kinds of fancy grasses, some few ferns, a generous bunch of mignonette, and—if they are yet in bloom—some hop branches. He has not made up this collection in a haphazard way, however. He has distinctly in mind what plan of arrangement will best display this style of flower and foliage. He has studied the design plan of the daisy and has seen that the radiate form, with the proper color, throws light in every direction to a greater extent in proportion to its size than most other floral forms. Therefore, commercially speaking, it is a showy flower.

A Sloping Field of Daisies.

In the front corner of his show window he places a number of small vases or jars filled with gaillardias, and hides the vessels with moss or potted ferns. This cozy group is supposed to represent a clump of the blooming plants. Overhanging the back of this group is a tree branch or a manufactured substitute, supporting a hop vine, and this, with the help of a good sized fern or two on the floor, partly cuts off the view, leaving a vista-like opening through which the onlooker can see a knoll, covered on the near slope with Shasta daisies gradually running into a field of coreopsis. Extending in another direction from the gaillardia corner, one may see marguerites, with yellow and cream dahlias, appearing on the off side in company with the mignonette and some scattered grasses. The effect of the whole is that of a field of daisies of various colors, with its up and down slopes all covered with the supposedly growing plants, broken here and there by the ferns and grasses. All the stems of the flowers used should be in narrow jars or vases, set close together and covered with moss or otherwise hidden.

Railway Car in Flowers, by Peter Freeman, Aurora, Ill.

To Blend and Separate.

The purpose of placing the coreopsis in the rear, separated from the gaillardias by the white and yellow of the Shasta daisies, is twofold—to blend and separate the strong yellow and the strong red, and to light the rear. In the same way the dahlias are separated and blended. A wide range of color is thus employed, yet correct color display is gained.

A second color scheme, using the same plan of arrangement, may be used with pink and white cosmos, heliotrope dahlias, wild asters and red clover, with additional foliage in the shape of ampelopsis with berries, and, if obtainable, some branches of blackberry in fruit. Cactus dahlias and clover are but modified forms of the common daisy type, the petals being quilled and multiplied. The dahlias and cosmos should occupy prominent places, standing in heavy clumps, while the wild asters and red clover nestle under their shadows in the less important places.

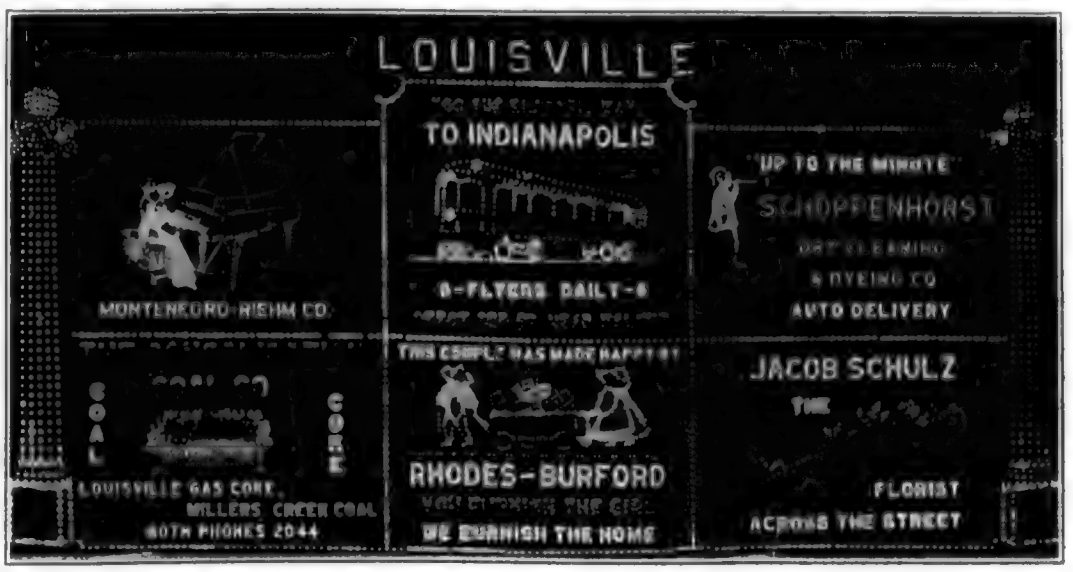
The locality and the advancement of the season will suggest their own accessory flowers and foliage for the proper development of this and similar schemes. G. B.

ELECTRIC ADVERTISING.

The big electric sign opposite the flower store of Jacob Schulz, in Louisville, Ky., is attracting attention, not only in that town but elsewhere. The sign is sixty feet high and 100 feet long. In it there are 5,503 electric lamps. Mr. Schulz has a space 15x25 to call attention to "the florist across the street." The sign flashes automatically; the rose in the center of the Schulz space flashes out as if conjured by a magician. First the foliage appears, then a bud and then a full-blown Beauty, the lettering appearing last. The sign was installed and is operated by the Federal Sign System, in which C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, is one of the interested parties.

A CAR IN FLOWERS.

It is a small illustration, but it shows a large design in the form of a passenger coach made by Peter Freeman, 206 Cedar street, Aurora, Ill. The photograph was supplied by the E. F. Winterson Co., who furnished the special wire frame on which the design was made. Mr. Freeman used white carnations and sweet peas for the body of the piece, with red roses for the lamps. The piece gave excellent satisfaction to the customer, who would accept no conventional piece.



BERTERMANN'S DECORATION.

When the President of the United States is to be a guest at a banquet it calls for something elaborate in the way of a decoration. When Mr. Taft was at Indianapolis recently a banquet was given in his honor at the Columbia Club, in a room with which a great many florists are familiar, for it has been the scene of several banquets to trade visitors. The accompanying illustration shows the decoration of Bertermann Bros. Co., also the President seated at the head of the table, surrounded by Hoosier notables. The table center was made eight inches lower than the table proper, and was filled with adiantum, begonias, dracænas and other foliage plants. Large vases of American Beauties, with basket vases of the same flowers, were placed along the edge of the foliage center. An electric fountain in colors proved to be an excellent center for the green and variegated background. Boutonnieres of valley and small flag bows were used as individual favors.

BILLING CHARGE CUSTOMERS.

Will you please tell, through The Review, the best method of invoicing flowers and plants to retail customers, enclosing bill with the purchase or sending total itemized bill at end of month, or is there still a better way? It will be interesting to us to know how others do. A. L. M.

There is no general custom in the matter of billing charge customers. Several methods are in use, with no agreement as to which is the best way—it depends on the class of trade handled. The practice of probably the largest number of high-class retail stores is to render a monthly bill. Hardly any florists send bill with purchase. The trouble with the latter method is that flowers in a large proportion of cases are not delivered to the person to whom they are charged. Where it is practicable, undoubtedly the best method is the one employed by the department stores, which send bill with purchase when delivery is made to the purchaser, but mail the bill to the customer where delivery is made to someone else, sending statement at the end of the month. Such a practice puts just one more detail on the clerks and increases the chance for mistake, while many florists catering to wealthy trade feel that their patrons would not like the obtrusion of a sales ticket with every purchase of flowers, though there is no exception to it in the case of dry goods. Mailing a bill for each purchase is open to the same objection in the case of so-called high-class trade, but does not seem to be objectionable in the case of such charge work as bedding out, special decorations and other orders from those not almost daily patrons. H. O.

EUROPEAN NOTES.

English National Rose Show.

The thirty-fifth annual summer show of the National Rose Society was held in the Royal Botanic Gardens, London, July 7. The exceptionally fine season brought out a great display, but the show, coming in the midst of a heat wave, gave rosarians much trouble over the carrying and staging of their blooms. To their credit, they surmounted the difficulties and, the staging completed, the show was voted one of the best on record.

Hugh Dickson, of Belfast, was the hero of the day. He carried off the championship trophy for the best seventy-two blooms of distinct varieties, silver medal for the best hybrid tea, with Mrs. Stewart Clark, and silver medal for the best hybrid perpetual, with Bessie Brown.

Novelties.

Here, again, Hugh Dickson was in the first rank and was awarded gold medals for each of the following hybrid teas: Mrs. Sam Ross, a beautiful ivory pink; Mrs. R. Draper, a fine, full flower of a pretty shade of pink, and George V, deep purple crimson. He also received a silver gilt medal for Souvenir of Portland, Ore., a sweet-scented carmine-red hybrid tea, and a card of commendation for Coronation, a blush hybrid perpetual. Samuel McGredy & Son, Portadown, Ireland, came next on the list, receiving a card of commendation for each of the following three hybrid teas: Mrs. Muir Mackean, of fine form, bright cherry red; Nancy Williams, pale pink, and British Queen, a pure white flower of good form.

A grand yellow hybrid tea, raised by Pernet-Ducher and exhibited by Beckwith & Co., named Sunburst, attracted a considerable amount of attention, but in the judges' opinion did not get beyond the card of commendation stage, and a similar award was given to a pretty single blush Wichuraiana, named Ethel, from Charles Turner, Slough. Danæ, a perpetual yellow rambler, from Rev. W. E. Pemberton, an amateur rosarian, received a silver gilt medal.

Competitive Classes.

For a group of roses, 250 square feet, the first prize was awarded to Paul & Son, Cheshunt, with a grand, representative collection, rich in color and arrangement; second, Hobbies, Ltd., Dereham. For a smaller group, 100 square feet, the premier position was voted to W. & J. Brown, Stamford and Peterborough, with a lovely combination of considerable merit.

A few of the leading classes and the first prize winners are: Forty distinct varieties, three blooms of each, B. R. Cant & Son, Colchester; forty-eight blooms, G. Prince, Oxford; nine baskets of cut blooms, W. Easlea, Eastwood; five baskets of cut blooms, Hugh Dickson; thirty-six vases, G. Mattock, Oxford; eighteen vases, W. Spooner & Sons; twelve varieties of Wichuraiana, Frank Cant & Co., Colchester.

The Lyon Rose.

The Lyon rose was the dominant rose of the show. Its unique coloring was in evidence in every class where it was permissible to include it. It shone in masses in the collections, usually as the centerpiece, from which other varieties radiated. In the table decorations it triumphed in conjunction with Irish Elegance, a single bloom of the same hue, a charming combination of grace and elegance.

In addition to the varieties already named, others which stood out prominently and pleasingly were Killarney, Harry Kirk, Catherine Mermet, Marquis de Sinety, Avoca, Melanie Soupert, J. B. Clark, Dean Hole, Hugo Roller, G. C. Wand, General MacArthur, Lady Hillingdon, Joseph Hill, Mrs. E. G. Hill, W. R. Smith and Paul's sensational introduction, Juliet. Bee.

GLADIOLI FOR WINTER.

Will you tell me how and when to plant gladioli for winter flowering? I planted some in my benches last fall and they failed to bloom. I. G. M.

The reason your gladioli did not flower was probably because the bulbs, after being dug and cleaned off, did not receive a sufficient rest before being restarted into growth. Experience has shown that it does not pay to start the large-bulbed gladioli as soon as they are received. Do not plant in the benches before January 1 and you will have few failures. This applies to such varieties as America, Shakespeare, Augusta, May, Mrs. F. King and Brenchleyensis.

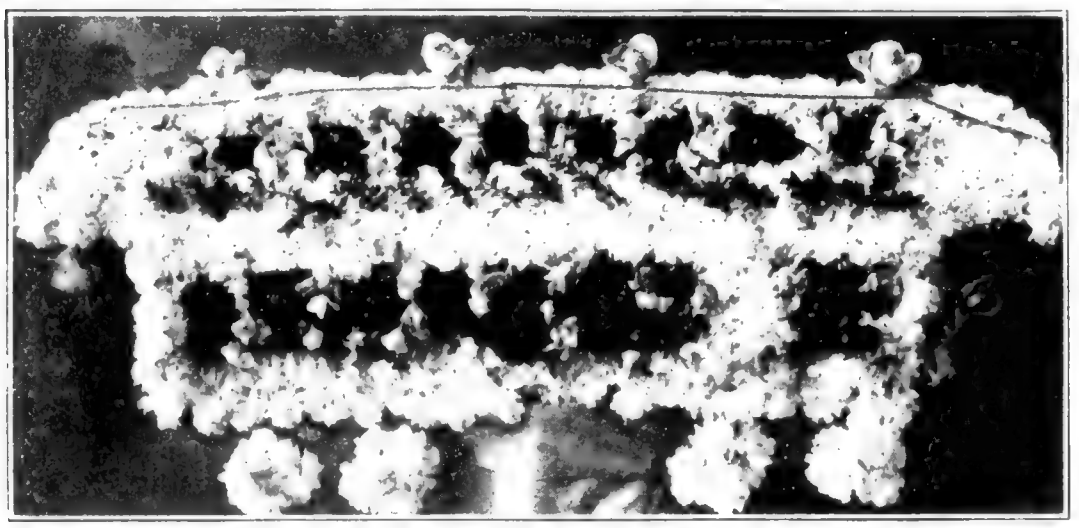
The smaller-bulbed gladioli, of the Colvillei and nanus types, are usually received by October 1 and can be benched or boxed right away. These flower earlier than the Gandavensis or large-flowered section. It is hardly correct to speak of gladioli for winter flowering. None of the varieties named flower before the last of March, even under the most favorable conditions. At the late Boston national show not a solitary gladiolus spike was forthcoming, though many prizes were offered for them. C. W.

sent a clump of the blooming plants. Overhanging the back of this group is a tree branch or a manufactured substitute, supporting a hop vine, and this, with the help of a good sized fern or two on the floor, partly cuts off the view, leaving a vista-like opening through which the onlooker can see a knoll, covered on the near slope with Shasta daisies gradually running into a field of coreopsis. Extending in another direction from the gaillardia corner, one may see marguerites, with yellow and cream dahlias, appearing on the off side in company with the mignonette and some scattered grasses. The effect of the whole is that of a field of daisies of various colors, with its up and down slopes all covered with the supposedly growing plants, broken here and there by the ferns and grasses. All the stems of the flowers used should be in narrow jars or vases, set close together and covered with moss or otherwise hidden.

To Blend and Separate.

The purpose of placing the coreopsis in the rear, separated from the gaillardias by the white and yellow of the Shasta daisies, is twofold- to blend and separate the strong yellow and the strong red, and to light the rear. In the same way the dahlias are separated and blended. A wide range of color is thus employed, yet correct color display is gained.

A second color scheme, using the same plan of arrangement, may be used with pink and white cosmos, heliotrope dahlias, wild asters and red clover, with additional foliage in the shape of ampelopsis with berries, and, if obtainable, some branches of blackberry in fruit. Cactus dahlias and clover are but modified forms of the common daisy type, the petals being quilled and multiplied. The dahlias and cosmos should occupy prominent places, standing in heavy clumps, while the wild asters and red clover nestle under their shadows in the less important places.



The locality and the advancement of the season will suggest their own accessory flowers and foliage for the proper development of this and similar schemes. G. B.

ELECTRIC ADVERTISING.

The big electric sign opposite the flower store of Jacob Schulz, in Louisville, Ky., is attracting attention, not only in that town but elsewhere. The sign is sixty feet high and 100 feet long. In it there are 5,503 electric lamps. Mr. Schulz has a space 15x25 to call attention to "the florist across the street." The sign flashes automatically; the rose in the center of the Schulz space flashes out as if conjured by a magician. First the foliage appears, then a bud and then a full-blown Beauty, the lettering appearing last. The sign was installed and is operated by the Federal Sign System, in which C. L. Washburn, of Bassett & Washburn, Chicago, is one of the interested parties.

A CAR IN FLOWERS.

It is a small illustration, but it shows a large design in the form of a passenger coach made by Peter Freeman, 206 Cedar street, Aurora, Ill. The photograph was supplied by the E. F. Winterson Co., who furnished the special wire frame on which the design was made. Mr. Freeman used white carnations and sweet peas for the body of the piece, with red roses for the lamps. The piece gave excellent satisfaction to the customer, who would accept no conventional piece.

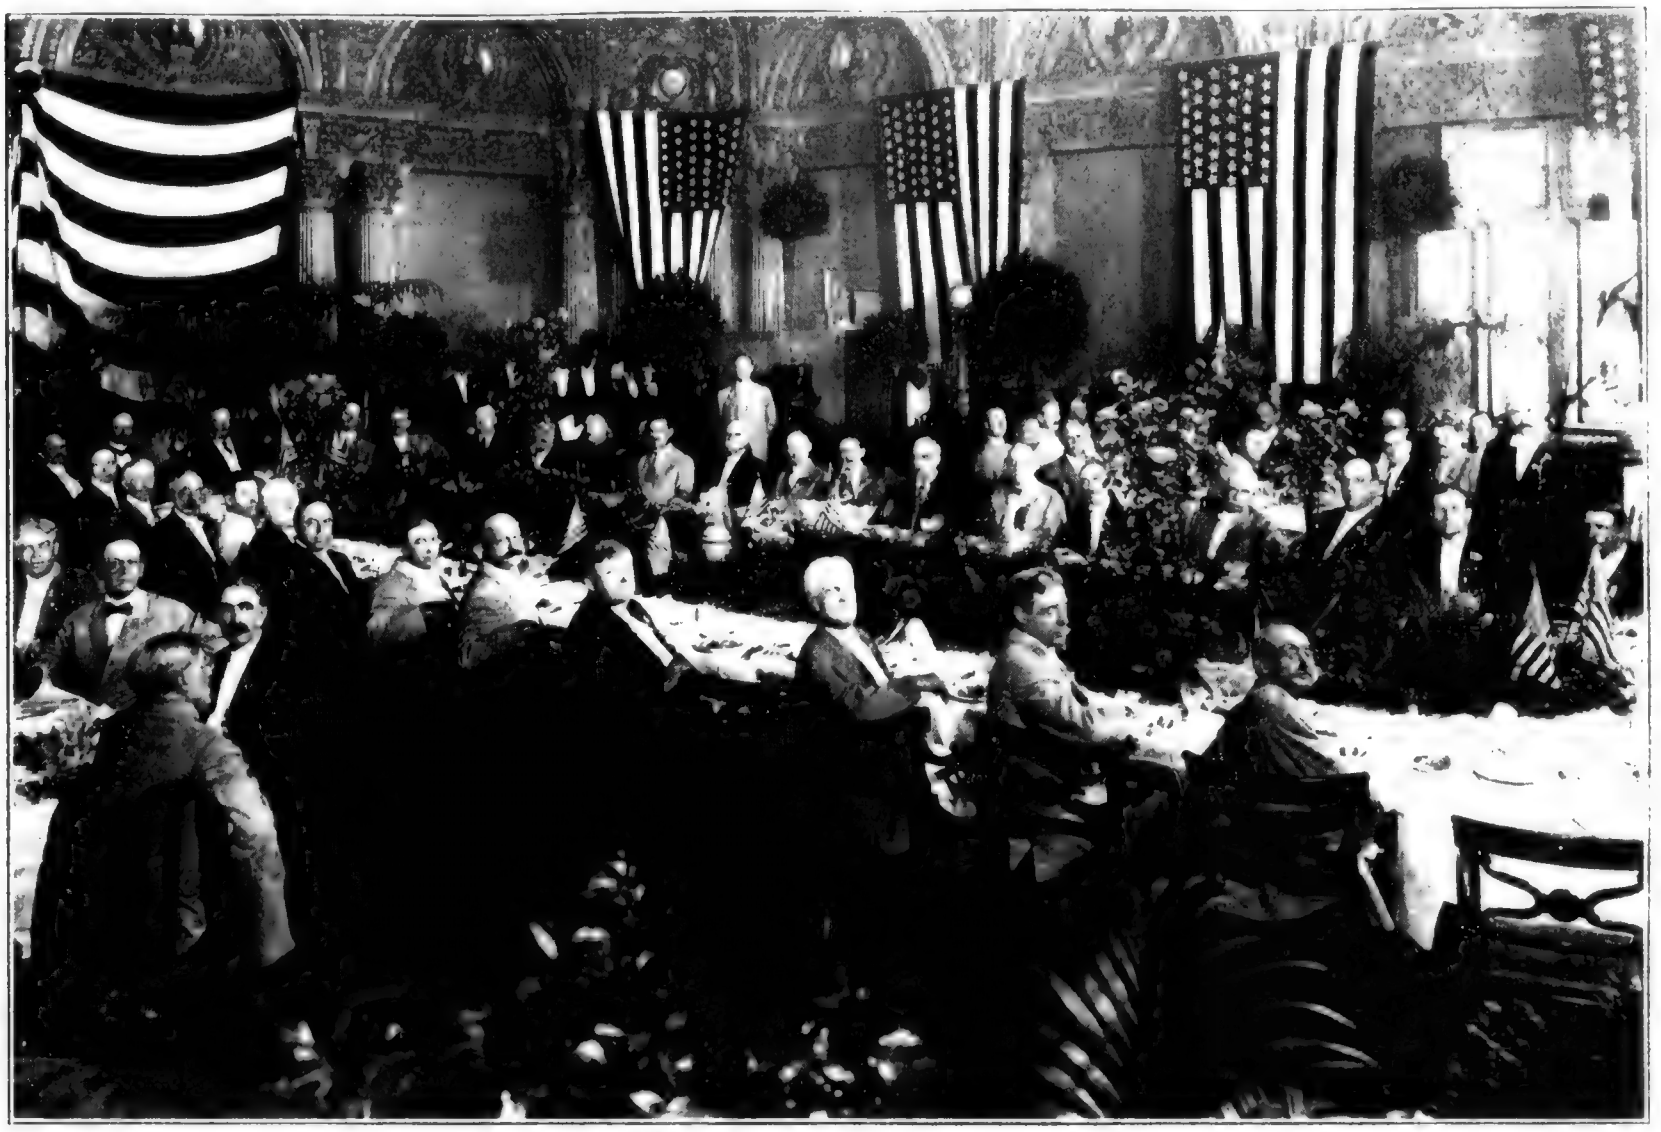
BERTERMANN'S DECORATION.

When the President of the United States is to be a guest at a banquet it calls for something elaborate in the way of a decoration. When Mr. Taft was at Indianapolis recently a banquet was given in his honor at the Columbia Club, in a room with which a great many florists are familiar, for it has been the scene of several banquets to trade visitors. The accompanying illustration shows the decoration of Bertermann Bros. Co., also the President seated at the head of the table, surrounded by Hoosier notables. The table center was made eight inches lower than the table proper, and was filled with adiantum, begonias, dracænas and other foliage plants. Large vases of American Beauties, with basket vases of the same flowers, were placed along the edge of the foliage center. An electric fountain in colors proved to be an excellent center for the green and variegated background. Boutonnieres of valley and small flag bows were used as individual favors.



BILLING CHARGE CUSTOMERS.

Will you please tell, through The Review, the best method of invoicing flowers and plants to retail customers, enclosing bill with the purchase or sending total itemized bill at end of month, or is there still a better way? It will be interesting to us to know how others do. A. L. M.

There is no general custom in the matter of billing charge customers. Several methods are in use, with no agreement as to which is the best way-it depends on the class of trade handled. The practice of probably the largest number of high-class retail stores is to render a monthly bill. Hardly any florists send bill with purchase. The trouble with the latter method is that flowers in a large proportion of cases are not delivered to the person to whom they are charged. Where it is practicable, undoubtedly the best method is the one employed by the department stores, which send bill with purchase when delivery is made to the purchaser, but mail the bill to the customer where delivery is made to someone else, sending statement at the end of the month. Such a practice puts just one more detail on the clerks and increases the chance for mistake, while many florists catering to wealthy trade feel that their patrons would not like the obtrusion of a sales ticket with every purchase of flowers, though there is no exception to it in the case of dry goods. Mailing a bill for each purchase is open to the same objection in the case of so-called high class trade, but does not seem to be objectionable in the case of such charge work as bedding out, special decorations and other orders from those not almost daily patrons. BURBANKITIS.

The horticultural world is threatened with another epidemic of Burbankitis, the "wizard" of Santa Rosa having published a pamphlet charging that experts in the United States Department of Agriculture, "through ignorance or worse," are sending out tons of "just as good as Burbank" spineless cactus, which in reality is "ancient trash, such as the builders of the pyramids in Egypt might have cultivated." Burbank fires a whole broadside of sarcasm and scorn at the government experts and speaks of his own achievements as "the most valuable improvements in vegetable life during the centuries, fully equal in importance to the discovery of a new continent." Experts in the government service at Washington are called "low-browed, narrow-gauged, and pinheaded employees, who have to keep shouting to hold their places, and who are largely responsible for the trash free seed and the trash so-called spineless cactus distribution."

Now, everybody shoot back, and let the battle go to the one whose vocabulary contains the greatest reserve of the adjectives of vituperation.

HYDRANGEA ARBORESCENS.

How well Hydrangea arborescens alba grandiflora succeeds in Canada is shown by the accompanying illustration, sent from Windsor by Stephen Lusted, who writes: "This clump of native hydrangeas, planted three years ago, has attracted some attention here because of the abundance and purity of the blooms or trusses, and I have thought that possibly you might deem the picture worthy of reproduction in The Review as an illustration of what may be accomplished with this shrub with unskillful treatment. Because of rose bushes standing in the way, the camera could not be placed so as to secure the best show of bloom, or the picture would have been better."

NOTES ON HARDY PERENNIALS.

Hemerocallis or Day Lilies.

The hemerocallis or day lilies at present fill an important place in the herbaceous garden. The common H. fulva, were it more difficult of culture, would be more appreciated. The flowers are tawny yellow in color, with darker shadings which deepen toward the center. The spikes attain a height of four to five feet and the flowers are produced all through the month of July. This hemerocallis makes a fine subject for the wild garden and will even thrive on dry, gravelly banks. In Massachusetts it is commonly seen along roadsides and in fields, where it has escaped from cultivation. There is a double form, H. fulva fl. pl., but the single is the best.

H. Thunbergii was at its best in the middle of July, but will persist for some weeks longer. It grows four feet or more in height and its spikes of lemon-yellow flowers are splendid for cutting. This is probably the best yellow perennial we have in the month of July. H. aurantiaca and H. aurantiaca major carry large flowers of a neutral orange color. The last named is a weaker grower than the former and is not hardy, requiring the protection of a coldframe over winter in New England. The flowers of aurantiaca major are, when well grown, six inches across and the rich Indian yellow color is a taking one.

One good hybrid that is still flowering at the date of writing this, July 20, is H. Florham. It is a strong grower, with golden yellow flowers and orange-colored markings. One good feature about the hemerocallis as border plants is the fact that they hold their foliage green until the end of the season, and do not cause unsightly gaps by dying down.

C. Betscher, of Canal Dover, O., has been hybridizing these hemerocallis for some years, using such varieties as flava, Dumortierii, Apricot, aureola, luteola, aurantiaca, aurantiaca major, Florham, fulva and Thunbergii in his work. He has evolved a wonderful lot of new things, some carrying flowers seven to eight inches across and flowering from the middle of May onward, in colors varying from pale whitish lemon to rich golden orange. Hemerocallis can be grown by everyone and will not die out as do lilies. There is a wonderful future for them in American gardens, as they withstand heat and drought better, probably, than any other perennials.

Butterfly Weed and Plume Poppy.

Asclepias tuberosa is now in flower. Its umbels of bright orange flowers are produced in profusion during July and August, and it is one of our most satisfactory native perennials. It is easily propagated from seed.

Bocconia cordata, the plume poppy, is one of the most robust of perennials, suitable for dotting along the backs of herbaceous borders or scattering through shrubberies, also looking well in bold clumps on the lawn. It spreads rapidly, like the helianthus family, and must be kept in place. The plant, under good culture, grows eight to ten feet high and the flowers are produced in large panicles, which are creamy white in color.

The Chilean Lily.

Alstrœmeria aurantiaca, commonly known as the Chilean lily, is one of the finest midsummer flowers for cutting. The flowers are golden yellow to orange in color, spotted crimson, and grow two to three feet in height. This plant succeeds best on a gentle slope, in light, well-drained ground. On low lands, where water stands, it will winter-kill. It is readily propagated by division of the root in spring, or from seed, which should be sown as soon as ripe.

Everlasting Peas.

The everlasting peas are fine subjects for covering fences, arbors or trellises and are now, in the third week of July, blooming freely. Lathyrus latifolius, the type, is well known. Its flowers are rosy carmine. Pink Beauty is rich rose and latifolius albus is pure white. What a splendid subject the latter is for the florist! As the spikes carry five to eight flowers each, occasionally more, and have greater substance than sweet peas, they would seem to have commercial possibilities. Some day we may get a race with scented flowers and in that case every grower will want a hedge of them, as they bloom freely for a couple of months.

Lobelias.

Lobelia cardinalis, the cardinal flower, is always associated with moist and swampy locations and certainly it is a beautiful object on the borders of streams and ponds, but it is not generally known how well it does in the ordinary herbaceous garden. The flowers this season were opening July 12, which is a little earlier than usual, and clumps of them make a brilliant touch of color in the garden. No plant is more easily propagated from seed. If collected and sown at once, it will germinate as thickly as mustard and cress. The seed, however, loses its germinating properties after a few months. L. syphilitica is another useful native plant, attaining a height of thirty to thirty-six inches, which is just about to produce its spikes of blue flowers. It is an excellent border subject.

Pentstemons.

The various perennial pentstemons can hardly be left out of any representative herbaceous collection. P. barbatus Torreyi flowers for a long time; its graceful spikes of rich scarlet flowers attain a height of four feet. P. cæruleus is another July flowering form, dwarfer growing than Torreyi and dark blue in color. P. diffusus, violet blue, is just passing, but P. lævigatus is still to flower. Of course, the bedding variety, P. gloxinioides, is the grandest of the whole family, but is not winter hardy in any but the warmest states. This is one of the greatest bedding plants in Europe, and at Bar Harbor, Me., can be seen magnificently grown, also along the Massachusetts north shore. It should be propagated from cuttings taken in September or October and carried over in coldframes.

New Range of the Stuppy Floral Co., St. Joseph, Mo.

Phlox Paniculata.

The various forms of Phlox paniculata are now, in late July, the most conspicuous feature in the perennial borders. The heat and drought have been hard on these, and where watering can be conveniently done by means of sprinklers the plants will be immensely benefited. When badly dried up at the roots, phloxes soon go to pieces, but with an adequate water supply no perennials will flower longer or give greater satisfaction, either on the plants or when cut. Young plants raised from spring cuttings give the finest spikes, but these will not be at their best for some time yet. The finest spikes are always to be had on young plants, rather than on divided clumps. If the flower heads on the early flowering sorts are cut off, the plants will break away and give quite a good second crop of flowers later in the season.

Platycodons and Physostegias.

The platycodons are now in season. Their large, campanula-like flowers make a good showing for several weeks. P. grandiflorum, violet blue, P. Mariesi, varying shades of blue, and Mariesi alba, pure white, are all well worth growing. They can be planted successfully either in spring or autumn. They do not appear above ground as early as many perennials, and new growers are liable to get nervous and imagine they are not coming up at all.

Physostegia Virginica and Virginica alba, the false dragon head or Texas heath, is just opening its flowers. This is one of the finest perennials for cutting and is regularly seen at the Boston wholesale markets. It spreads rapidly and should be divided and replanted every second year.

Lilies.

Lilies cannot be left out of any collection of hardy flowering plants. It is true they are less reliable than the majority of plants, but their beauty is irresistible and they are worth considerable fussing if only they can be given locations where they will succeed. L. Hansoni, one of the best of the genus, succeeds well in clumps along the shrubbery borders, or in beds by itself. This has just passed out of bloom; so, too, has L. Brownii, with its big, white, trumpet-shaped flowers, purplish violet outside, as well as the beautiful L. testaceum, also called Isabellinum and excelsum, with its apricot yellow flowers on spikes five to six feet high. Fall planted Japanese longiflorums come into flower now, but generally run out in a couple of years, as do the bulbs of L. auratum, unless they are planted deeply and are kept well mulched. Deep planting and mulching are needed by nearly all lilies. L. candidum is an exception and the varieties with small bulbs can be set nearer the surface, but the big-bulbed sorts should go down a foot.

There is no grander lily nor any more reliable one than L. Henryi. Its price is still high, but this lily seems almost immune from disease, and in August is our finest variety. It is yet too early for the speciosums, which are probably the most generally useful of florists' lilies for open air culture, the rich-colored Melpomene magnificum and the pure white album being the best two forms to grow. This has been a hard year for lilies, and where it has been possible to supply water the plants have appreciated it. Some of the new Wilson lilies from China promise to be perfectly hardy and grand additions to our gardens. L. myriophyllum, now in bloom, with its large, wide trumpet flowers, white shaded with pale lemon, is one of the best. Then there is the giant leucanthemum and others still to be heard from. W. N. Craig.

ACCIDENT TO MISSOURI GROWER.

Ernst Mueller, one of the best known growers at St. Joseph, Mo., met with a serious accident July 21, when his automobile overturned at the new plant of the Stuppy Floral Co., where he had gone to witness an evening's fumigating. Accompanied by his three sons in the automobile, Mr. Mueller undertook to turn the car around on a road that runs along the top of an embankment. It appears that when he intended to throw the shifting lever into the reverse he put it in one of the high gears, for the car jumped forward and went over the bank. It required a half hour's work on the part of the Stuppy greenhouse force to get the car off their four visitors. Two of the sons had escaped injury, but Mr. Mueller was badly battered up, and so was the 12-year-old boy.

Mr. Mueller is one of the most progressive vegetable gardeners in the vicinity of St. Joseph, operating a range of glass of 30,000 square feet, and seven acres of land, a portion of which is equipped with the Skinner irrigating system. The houses are provided with the Wittbold watering system, and during the winter months the houses are full of Grand Rapids lettuce, changing as the season advances to cauliflower, tomatoes and cucumbers.

WORMS IN FIELD SOIL.

What is the best way of exterminating cutworms and wireworms from land I intend to use another season?

C. A. P.

Plow the land before freezing weather, after giving it a coating of air-slaked lime at the rate of 2,000 pounds per acre. If you lime your land every third year at that rate, cutworms will not do you much damage. C. W.

Of course, the bedding variety, P. gloxinioides, is the grandest of the whole family, but is not winter hardy in any but the warmest states. This is one of the greatest bedding plants in Europe, and at Bar Harbor, Me., can be seen magnificently grown, also along the Massachusetts north shore. It should be propagated from cuttings taken in September or October and carried over in coldframes.

Phlox Paniculata.

The various forms of Phlox paniculata are now, in late July, the most conspicuous feature in the perennial borders. The heat and drought have been hard on these, and where watering can be conveniently done by means of sprinklers the plants will be immensely benefited. When badly dried up at the roots, phloxes soon go to pieces, but with an adequate water supply no perennials will flower longer or give greater satisfaction, either on the plants or when cut. Young plants raised from spring cuttings give the finest spikes, but these will not be at their best for some time yet. The finest spikes are always to be had on young plants, rather than on divided clumps. If the flower heads on the early flowering sorts are cut off, the plants will break away and give quite a good second crop of flowers later in the season.

Platycodons and Physostegias.

The platycodons are now in season. Their large, campanula-like flowers make a good showing for several weeks. P. grandiflorum, violet blue, P. Mariesi, varying shades of blue, and Mariesi alba, pure white, are all well worth growing. They can be planted successfully either in spring or autumn. They do not appear above ground as early as many perennials, and new growers are liable to get nervous and imagine they are not coming up at all.

Physostegia Virginica and Virginica alba, the false dragon head or Texas heath, is just opening its flowers. This is one of the finest perennials for cutting and is regularly seen at the Boston wholesale markets. It spreads rapidly and should be divided and replanted every second year.

Lilies.

Lilies cannot be left out of any collection of hardy flowering plants. It is true they are less reliable than the majority of plants, but their beauty is irresistible and they are worth considerable fussing if only they can be given locations where they will succeed. L. Hansoni, one of the best of the genus, succeeds well in clumps along the shrubbery borders, or in beds by itself. This has just passed out of bloom; so, too, has L. Brownii, with its big, white, trumpet-shaped flowers, purplish violet outside, as well as the beautiful L. testaceum, also called Isabellinum and excelsum, with its apricot yellow flowers on spikes five to six feet high. Fall planted Japanese longiflorums come into flower now, but generally run out in a couple of years, as do the bulbs of L. auratum, unless they are planted deeply and are kept well mulched. Deep planting and mulching are needed by nearly all lilies. L. candidum is an exception and the varieties with small bulbs can be set nearer the surface, but the big-bulbed sorts should go down a foot.

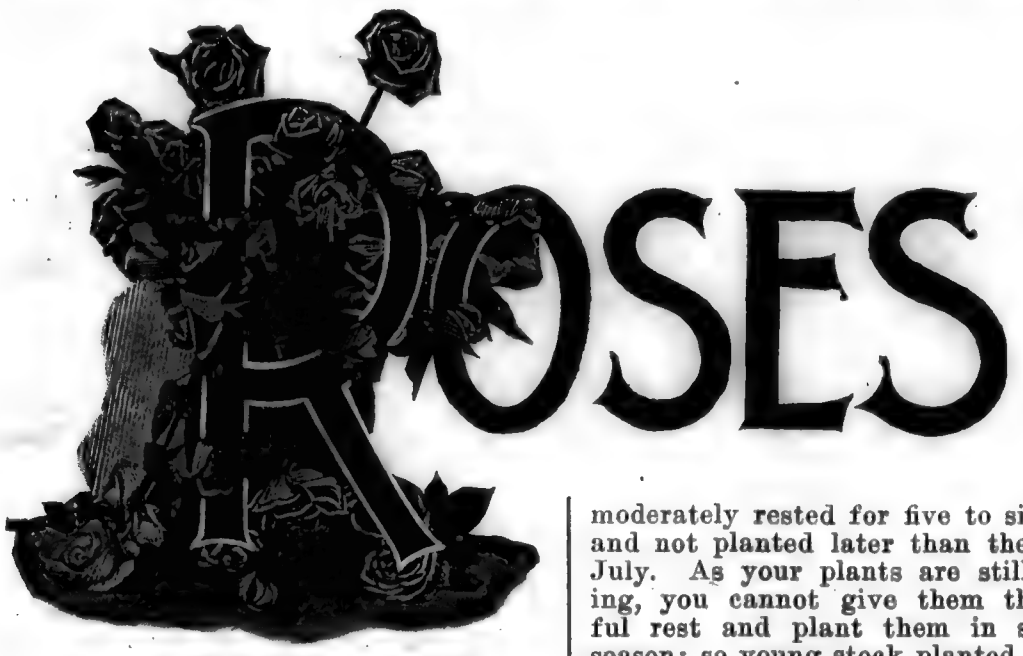
There is no grander lily nor any more reliable one than L. Henryi. Its price is still high, but this lily seems almost immune from disease, and in August is our finest variety. It is yet too early for the speciosums, which are probably the most generally useful of florists' lilies for open air culture, the rich-colored Melpomene magnificum and the pure white album being the best two forms to grow. This has been a hard year for lilies, and where it has been possible to supply water the plants have appreciated it. Some of the new Wilson lilies from China promise to be perfectly hardy and grand additions to our gardens. L. myriophyllum, now in bloom, with its large, wide trumpet flowers, white shaded with pale lemon, is one of the best. Then there is the giant leucanthemum and others still to be heard from. W. N. Craig.

ACCIDENT TO MISSOURI GROWER.

Ernst Mueller, one of the best known growers at St. Joseph, Mo., met with a serious accident July 21, when his automobile overturned at the new plant of the Stuppy Floral Co., where he had gone to witness an evening's fumigating. Accompanied by his three sons in the automobile, Mr. Mueller undertook to turn the car around on a road that runs along the top of an embankment. It appears that when he intended to throw the shifting lever into the reverse he put it in one of the high gears, for the car jumped forward and went over the bank. It required a half hour's work on the part of the Stuppy greenhouse force to get the car off their four visitors. Two of the sons had escaped injury, but Mr. Mueller was badly battered up, and so was the 12-year-old boy.

Mr. Mueller is one of the most progressive vegetable gardeners in the vicinity of St. Joseph, operating a range of glass of 30,000 square feet, and seven acres of land, a portion of which is equipped with the Skinner irrigating system. The houses are provided with the Wittbold watering system, and during the winter months the houses are full of Grand Rapids lettuce, changing as the season advances to cauliflower, tomatoes and cucumbers.

WORMS IN FIELD SOIL.



What is the best way of exterminating cutworms and wireworms from land I intend to use another season?

C. A. P.

Plow the land before freezing weather, after giving it a coating of air-slaked lime at the rate of 2,000 pounds per acre. If you lime your land every third year at that rate, cutworms will not do you much damage. C. W.

EFFECT OF SUN ON COLOR.

Over the greater part of the country where roses are forced under glass, there has been, this summer, excessive and prolonged heat, with its usual accompaniment, bright sun. While at the beginning the roses showed the debilitating effects of the heat, they at length appeared to become acclimated, as it were, and many growers have of late been cutting roses the equal of any produced in less trying summers. Frequent comment has been made regarding the color of Killarney; it has come a deep pink, fuller and richer than in winter, which has led to interesting discussion of the effect of bright sun on the colors of flowers.

Sixteen years ago the late Foster-Melliar wrote: "Exposure to the sun undoubtedly takes the depth of tint from almost all teas, making them paler," and his editors, in the last edition of his book, say, "The effect of unshaded sun upon the colors of roses seems peculiar—undoubtedly it gradually absorbs or weakens the yellow tint, which may not only be preserved but also increased by close shading or covering; but a very hot sun will sometimes bring a second red flush on some. On the other hand, all red H.P.'s certainly come much brighter in color on a dull, cool day after a hot time."

The Gardeners' Chronicle notes that "in England this year garden roses were decidedly late in starting into growth, and were forced rapidly into bloom by the hot sun of May and early June, with the result that some came into flower a week earlier than in the last two years, others a fortnight, and a few three weeks earlier. The flowers have been wonderfully bright and clean, and though some have been small, many have been of very good quality. But what has been particularly striking about them has been the predominance of pink colors in the flowers, and that often in roses where one would not usually expect this tone."

ROSES A THIRD YEAR.

Will it be all right to transplant two-year-old roses into a new bench, or will it be better to get new plants? They are in good condition and blooming. W. G.

While roses can be used a third year, it would be better for you to plant young stock if you can secure some of good quality. The plants in the bench, if wanted for replanting, should be moderately rested for five to six weeks and not planted later than the end of July. As your plants are still flowering, you cannot give them the needful rest and plant them in sufficient season; so young stock planted in fresh soil will be decidedly the best to use. C. W.

TOO DRY WHEN TRANSPLANTED.

We have some Killarneys, one year old, which we transplanted to another house, to new soil. They were exceptionally dry before lifting—too dry, I know now. There was hardly a leaf when cut back, but many fine looking eyes. Almost every eye on the plants started at once and grew till one to two inches long, but there they stand. They are green, not yellow, but the reddish color which the new leaves should have is wanting on perhaps one out of twenty plants. The new growths are wilting and drying up. On examining the roots, I find few new growths started; on the drying plants the roots are dead. The leaf growths seem to be ahead of the roots on all. What can I expect of such plants? Would it be better to throw them all out and buy new plants?

My Richmonds are starting finely under the same conditions and all the new stock is satisfactory. All are planted in the same kind of soil. A few of the Killarneys, which were getting some drip from a gutter on the old bench, did not dry up. This explains the cause of the trouble, I think. It is getting late for planting and I do not know what it would be better to do. Can you give me some suggestions? N. N.

None of the forcing roses should be severely dried. What they need is a reduced supply of water at the roots for a few weeks. If this causes even a heavy loss of leaves, it has been carried to excess and will seriously cripple the plants, more particularly when they are replanted and started up at the most torrid season of the year. I am afraid that plants which have lost all or nearly all their foliage will not, even under the most careful cultural conditions, give you much satisfaction. It is not by any means too late to secure young stock to take their place and this is what I would advise.

The fact that certain plants, which were less severely dried off, are doing well, plainly shows that the real cause of the trouble was excessive dryness at the root. Another year, be careful not to overdry your plants. The soil should never become dry. All that is needed is a moderate reduction in the water supply, and even this should be partly counterbalanced by keeping the plants well sprayed overhead. C. W.

SWEET PEAS FOR CHRISTMAS.

I wish to grow some sweet peas and have them in full crop at Christmas, if possible. I will plant them either in our lettuce or radish house, in which the temperatures will be 45 and 50 degrees, respectively. Which house would you recommend planting them in? The houses are 28x160, running from east to west. I will plant them in solid benches and run the rows across the house from north to south. How far apart must the rows be planted for best results? Please name the best white, pink and red varieties for planting and give the date of planting, in order to have a full crop at the time stated. What height shall I make the supports? Will a netting fence five feet high be all right? My location is northern Wyoming. L. M. B.

Sow the peas not later than the end of August, and the middle of the month would be better in your state. Either of the houses named, if it has ample light and head room and the necessary heat, should answer well for peas. A night temperature of 45 degrees will do well until the flowers commence to open, when 48 to 50 degrees should be maintained as nearly as possible. For best results let the rows run four feet apart. Some growers let them run six feet apart, growing violets or some other cool crop between them until the peas shade them too heavily. Peas want plenty of head room; while five feet would answer for Watchung or Mont Blanc, it would be too low for some sorts, which under good culture will run up eight or ten feet. If, instead of using wire netting, you will run upright strings from a stout galvanized wire just above the ground, and, as the vines grow, draw them in every few days with white twine, you will find this a better and more economical support than the netting. As a general rule, we like our peas to run lengthways of the house.

Exhibition of the National Sweet Pea Society, London, England, July 11 and 12, 1911.

They look much better and are more easily cared for than when run crossways.

Excellent winter varieties are: White, Watchung, Christmas White, Mont Blanc; pink shades, Christmas pink, the earliest of its color, Mrs. Wm. Sim, Mrs. W. W. Smalley; scarlet, Flamingo. C. W.

SWEET PEAS IN NOVEMBER.

Will you tell me what time to plant sweet peas inside so as to have them in bloom for the middle of November? What kind is the best? I live in the central part of Kansas. J. A. G.

In your latitude the seed should be sown about the middle of August. You can sow the seed in drills, thinning out the plants till they are four inches apart, or you can start them in flats of sand and transplant them. Good winter-flowering varieties are: Christmas White or Florence Denzer, pure white; Christmas Pink; Wallacea, lavender; Mrs. W. W. Smalley, satin pink; Mrs. William Sim, salmon pink. C. W.

SWEET PEA SHOW IN LONDON.

It was the eleventh annual exhibition of the National Sweet Pea Society of Great Britain that was held at London, England, July 11 and 12, and visited by thousands on each day. Among the number were Mr. and Mrs. W. Atlee Burpee and two sons, from Philadelphia. Mr. Burpee accepted an invitation to officiate as one of the judges, and his son, David, was enrolled a member of the society and acted as one of the stewards. The forty-four classes in the schedule brought out 150 competitors, with 820 exhibits, a total of 2,500 vases, independent of collections, table decorations and non-competitive trade exhibits. The finest trade exhibit in the show was put up by Robert Bolton, Carnforth, who staged remarkably large, fresh flowers, including several of his own novelties of great merit, notably Afterglow, a rosy mauve bicolor; large gold medal awarded. Gold medals were awarded to Dobbie & Co., Edinburgh; Robert Sydenham, Birmingham, and J. Carter & Co, London. Silver gilt medals were awarded to Sutton & Sons, Reading; W. Deal, Kelvedon; S. Bide & Son, Farnham, and J. Box, Windfield.

The floral committee had numerous calls on their ability and discretion, judging the new varieties in the society's trials, and made awards to Thomas Stevenson, from Dobbie & Co., a brilliant orange scarlet, F. C. C.; Barbara, a good form of the Earl Spencer type, from Robert Holmes, Norwich, F. C. C.; May Campbell, from Dobbie & Co., cream ground watered and veined carmine, A. M.; Mauve Queen, from Dobbie & Co., A. M.; Red Star, from A. Malcolm, deep crimson scarlet, A. M.; Mrs. B. Gilbert, from Gilbert & Son, Bourne, white, with faint violet markings, A. M.; F. Seymour Davis, from F. Seymour Davis, pale rosy lilac, A. M. Other good varieties of recent introduction on view were Melba and Lady Knox, from Dobbie & Co.; Queen Mary, from E. W. King & Co.; King Mansel, from G. Stark & Son, etc.

There were five competitors for the Burpee cup for display of sweet peas on a space 3x8 feet, and the winner was C. W. Breadmore, Winchester, with fine vases of Mrs. C. W. Breadmore, Maud Holmes, George Herbert, Princess May, Paradise Ivory, Dazzler, American Spencer, Flora Norton Spencer, Audrey Crier, etc. J. Box, Windfield, second.

There was a notable gathering of the elite of the sweet pea world in the evening, with Robert Sydenham in the chair. Representatives sat around the festive board from America, South Africa, Australia, New Zealand and France. The after-dinner speeches, for brilliancy, good humor and wit, were never equaled in the annals of the society. The toast of "Our Guests" was replied to by Mons. Schaettel, of Vilmorin's, Paris; T. Patterson, Melbourne, Australia, and W. Atlee Burpee, Philadelphia, who surpassed all his previous gems of oratory spoken in our midst. Others who took part in adding to the pleasantries of the proceedings included W. Cuthbertson, of Dobbie & Co.; Hugh Dickson, of Alex. Dickson & Son; S. B. Dicks, of Cooper, Taber & Co.; W. P. Wright, J. S. Brunton, and the society's indefatigable secretary, C. H. Curtis.

About 120 members inspected the 260 trials of sweet peas conducted by the society at the Times Experimental Station, July 13. The heat wave and previous dry weather had robbed the flowers of much of their size and true colors, but it was obvious that the purity of stock was better than in previous years. Lady Northcliffe, president of the society, presided at and entertained the company at lunch. She was supported by W. Atlee Burpee and Alfred Watkins, of Watkins & Simpson, and all three took part in the brief toast list, as did also W. Cuthbertson.

G. W. Leak is chairman of the society's committee of management. He is general manager for R. H. Bath, Ltd., the Floral Farm, Wisbech, about three hours by rail from London, and he invited members to inspect the firm's fields of sweet peas and other flowers. Upwards of fifty accepted the invitation and had a splendid outing July 14, viewing the specialties of the farm and enjoying the hospitality of the firm at lunch and tea. This ended the society's functions, but many smaller parties were made up during the week to view the sweet pea fields for seed purposes in Essex, and the seed prospects at present are good. Bee.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

A heavy rain July 23 put the finishing touches on the garden department, and completed the recovery of vegetation from the effects of the long continued drought. The outlook now for good crops is most encouraging. In the cauliflower market there has been no change. Few of the new roses are arriving. These, if of good quality, are snapped up at fair prices. The great majority of arrivals are short-stemmed and no definite quotation of value is possible. The clean-up of roses depends on the funeral requirements. Few good Beauties are seen. These hold at 25 cents. The supply will increase rapidly from now on, but no better prices can be expected before the end of August.

The carnation shipments are light, and few of the flowers are worthy of the name; $1 per hundred seems to be top for the best of them, and 25 cents to 50 cents per hundred takes the remainder. Valley and lilies alone have made advances that deserve recognition. The hot weather and scarcity raised them to almost double last week's quotations. Good valley touched 4 cents, lilies 8 cents, and there were not enough of them July 22 to go around. Orchids are scarce. A few gigas sold at 60 cents to 75 cents each. The shipments of asters were heavy at the end of last week, and $1 to $2 per hundred was the figure for most of them. Some of the wholesalers were selling them at 25 cents a bunch. The supply this week will be immense. The gladiolus shipments are increasing daily. Prices for the new and white varieties were from $3 to $4 per hundred. The big growers have already sent out their announcements of direct shipments to retailers, to begin before the end of July, at 50 cents per hundred in 250 lots and over. There will be an unlimited supply. Smilax sold as low as 25 cents per dozen strings July 22. The sweet pea stock is below the average. Only the selected sells. Even the street merchants have deserted the city, and there is but little doing at the department stores.

Various Notes.

Everybody is talking convention, now less than three weeks away, and everybody seems to be going on the New York Florists' Club's special train, at noon on Monday, August 14, via the Baltimore & Ohio. Chairman Traendly says the special dinner on the train will be fine. A. L. Miller, the state vice-president, has sent out a circular, urging participation in the excursion and joining the S. A. F.

John Gunther and family are summering at their country home on Staten Island.

M. C. Ford and family are enjoying the entire season at Ridgewood, N. J.

Miss Smedley, bookkeeper for J. K. Allen, is back from her vacation.

L. J. Kervan, the veteran supply man, is a prominent member of the G. A. R., and will attend the great encampment of the old soldiers at Rochester.

Thomas Dates, of Watertown, S. D., a former florist, now president of a life insurance company, was a visitor last week.

A. Herrmann has just returned from an interesting purchasing and pleasure trip to Germany and other continental sources of his importations.

Samuel Keller, of Reed & Keller, left last week for Europe.

The deaths of Col. Sickles, of Spring Lake, and Mr. Freeman, president of the American Bank Note Co., created a large demand for funeral flowers last week, nearly all the leading retailers getting a share of the orders. Several carloads of set pieces were sent from New York. M. A. Bowe used 500 orchids in a pall.

Andrew Wilson, of the Wilson Plant Oil Co., has just returned from a successful New England trip. The firm will be represented at the convention by President Creighton and Mr. Wilson, who contemplate, as do several others, an auto trip there from New York. Miss C. E. Jenkins, bookkeeper for this house, leaves this week for a two weeks' stay in the mountains.

Miss Marie Winklehaus, of Wm. Elliott & Sons, is enjoying a three weeks' holiday in the New England hills.

George Stumpp, of the Stumpp & Walter Co., writes from Paris of an enjoyable summer, with his family, on the continent.

Miss Behan, bookkeeper for G. Myer, is enjoying her summer vacation in the Catskills.

George Siebrecht left July 22 on the motorboat Ace, one of the competitors for the $1,500 prize, for the all-sea race from New York to Portland, Me. Walter Siebrecht has returned from his outing and is still fighting an attack of Job's comforters.

Jury duty still claims its victims from the ranks of the wholesalers. John Kessler, of Kessler Bros., is now taking his medicine.

C. W. Scott, of the Yokohama Nursery Co., has devoted a couple of weeks to recreation at Whitestone, L. I.

M. C. Ebel, of Madison, N. J., was in the city July 22, completing arrangements for exploiting his new and popular mosquito exterminator.

Sydney B. Wertheimer is in Europe, arranging for the importation of many novelties in ribbons, which the florists will inspect at Baltimore, as he will return in time for the convention. Schloss Bros. will make a larger exhibit than usual at Baltimore. Emil Schloss will represent the firm there. Lion & Co. will have a large and unique exhibit, as usual.

Arthur Herrington leaves this week for England, because of the serious illness of his mother.

Robert McNiff and wife have returned from a fortnight's holiday in the Catskills.

Bowling.

The New York Club will continue its bowling practice at Thumm's alleys every Friday evening until August 11, on which date Captain Chadwick will determine the membership of the team that will bowl at Baltimore. The Long Island Club, of Astoria, will be represented by Donaldson, Miesem, Siebrecht, Einsman and Kessler, and if sickness does not intervene, this team should carry home some of the bacon. The scores July 21 were:

Player.	1st	2d	3d	4th
Scott	131	140	134	152
Shaw	147	140	151	146
Kakuda	174	179	158	159
Manda	161	199	187	180

J. Austin Shaw.

DETROIT.

The Market.

The market was good last week and the wholesalers found some trouble in getting in enough good stock to go around. Carnations are about all in, although there are a few good flowers still arriving, but these we expect will all go out this week to make room for the young stock. Asters are coming in better and this flower will help out considerably when it starts to come as it should. The early asters around this section are a failure, and those we are receiving are being shipped from a distance. Roses are picking up right along and the cut now is good all around. Sweet peas are not good, owing to the long dry spell. Excellent gladioli are being shipped into this market. Easter lilies are coming in nice shape and are just about equal to the demand. Lancifolium lilies also are arriving in large numbers, and are being cleaned up daily. Double gypsophila is being used here in quantity. It is a decided novelty, and the buyers do not seem to be able to get enough of it. Nice lots of phlox, gaillardia, candytuft, delphiniums and other outdoor flowers go to make up the cut flower supply at this season.

Various Notes.

Michael Bloy is taking life easy these days in his Packard touring car, and last week visited Thos. Browne, at Greenfield, and found his mums in fine condition. The carnations at this establishment are suffering on account of the dry weather, but it is expected they will pick up now, as we have had some good rains the last few days.

Louis Charvat has completed his three new houses and is all planted up.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hielscher have returned from their wedding trip.

Geo. E. Browne is busy repairing his houses, getting ready for an early start, but is still cutting some fine summer carnations.

Charles Warncke, Jr., is on the market every morning, buying up all the stock he can get for the heavy demand for funeral work.

Edward Beard is busy planting his carnations, but is figuring on a few weeks' fishing before the season is much older.

A. C. Schmidt, who recently opened a store where R. O. Koehler was located, on Gratiot avenue, reports trade as being far better than he expected.

Robert Flowerday, Jr., of the Detroit Floral Co., is not on the market in person every day, but the boys at the wholesale houses look for his orders on the phone and from the packages and boxes carried out for this firm they certainly get their share of the business.

William B. Brown is busy at the store, as his help are out on their vacations.

Murray Patterson is in England and there is a rumor around town that he will be married there early in August.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Taepke are away on a trip to Montreal and the Thousand Islands.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Mitchell have returned from the Snow Islands and report the fishing good.

Charles Plumb has a summer home on the St. Clair river.

Raleigh Wells, of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange, spent last week up north and had a fine time touring in his Ford runabout.

Fred Breitmeyer is sending in some fine Beauties.

Robert Klagge, of Mt. Clemens, comes down to see the boys once in a while in his new Buick auto.

J. E. Carey has a fine house of asters and also some excellent Killarneys.

A. Van Beversluys, of Mt. Clemens, who recently bought out Tony Ottes, has been sending some fine peas to this market.

The buildings occupied for many years by the Bemb Floral Co., at 153 Bates street, are being demolished to make way for a fine modern retail establishment. Mr. Pochelon, the proprietor, expects to be back in the new place about Christmas. At present he is carrying on his business at 48 Cadillac square. He recently had a notable decoration for a banquet of the Ford auto people.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Fetters recently spent a week near Carsonville, Mich.

Peter F. Reuss, of Schroeter's, is taking a well earned rest on a farm near Bad Axe., Mich.

Albert Stahelin, of Redford, Mich., is erecting four new carnation houses, each 35x173. In building these houses, Mr. Stahelin is carrying out an idea of his own, on which a patent has been applied for. The houses will be entirely of iron construction, the material being supplied by the G. M. Garland Co., Des Plaines, Ill. The novel feature is that the houses will be so constructed as to be movable. The whole framework will be supported on rollers running on railroad tracks. Mr. Stahelin's idea is to plant the carnations right into the solid beds and, when the time comes, just roll the houses over the beds. Each house will be complete, with steam pipes, ventilators, etc., so that all that will be necessary when they are rolled into position is to couple up the steam pipes to the mains.

Monday, July 31, the florists of Detroit and vicinity will be the guests of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange at an outing to Peche Island. The retailers have been requested to close their stores at noon Monday, thereby enabling their employees to accept this invitation. Everyone is invited to attend, from the babies to the grandparents.

Work on Breitmeyer's new store is progressing nicely, and Mr. Breitmeyer expects it will be ready for occupancy by October 1. The Mack avenue establishment is being entirely overhauled and a new palm house is being constructed, twelve feet high at the gutters.

S. S. Skidelsky was here last week.

Schroeter's men are busy putting into place a new boiler in the rear section of houses. H. S.

W. DESMOND.

One of the well known figures in the trade at the Twin Cities is W. Desmond, who for eight years has been connected with the florists' department of the L. S. Donaldson Co., the largest department store in Minneapolis. Mr. Desmond was born and brought up in Chicago and he has the western push and enterprise. His first position with the Donaldson concern, which for many years has done an extremely large business in cut flowers and plants, was as an assistant in the greenhouses. Later he went into the store and in the course of time became manager of the buying and selling end of the business. June 1 he received the appointment of general manager of the florists' department, so that the greenhouses now also come under his direction. The glass area is nearly 65,000 square feet, devoted to a general line of stock, principally in the pot plant line. The Donaldson Co. is one of the largest buyers of cut flowers in the Chicago market.

W. Desmond.

ST. LOUIS.

The Market.

Business last week was fairly good with some of the store men, while others say that trade was quiet all the week. Funeral work is about all the business that is coming in at present. The wholesale market, too, is dull, as little extra good stock is coming in and prices are holding up on the poor grades. Roses are anything but first-class and anything good sells quickly. The same may be said of carnations.

All outdoor stock is suffering for want of rain. Gladioli are fairly good, but with tops badly burned; however, they sell well. Asters are now being cut from local fields, but are small. Tuberose stalks are beginning to come in. These, too, will be scarce, unless relief comes from a good, heavy rain. The few light showers last week did not help much. Kirkwood, Clayton and Olivette are furnishing the bulk of the gladioli that are helping out the retailers this summer. Augusta, America and Mrs. Francis King are the best sellers and bring top prices.

Smilax has been in good demand, but the market has little just now. Most of our local growers are preparing to house their carnations quickly. They say there will be a scarcity of field grown plants this season.

The Florists' Picnic.

The social event of the year among the florists, namely, the florists' picnic, took place last week at Ramona park, a beautiful spot in St. Louis county. The attendance was not quite as large as in former years, although nearly 400 came to enjoy the day's outing and be among friends in the trade. No doubt many were kept away owing to the dark and cloudy morning, but the clearing weather at noon brought out the large crowd in the afternoon. The reception committee, Messrs. Pilcher, Fillmore and Beneke, was on hand to receive them at the gate.

At 2 o'clock Messrs. Windler, Gums and Patton started the games, all of which had large entries. The winners were as follows:

Walking match; 300 yards, for growers only—John M. Connon.
Young ladies' race—Miss Anna Bishoff.
Girls' race; under 16 years—Lizzie Lowe.
Boys' race; under 12 years—Wheeler Detgen.
Ball throwing contest—Albert Gums.
Ladies' ball throwing contest—Mrs. Faerber.
Men's race; over 50 years—J. J. Beneke.
Young men's race—Oliver Sanders.
Married ladies' egg and spoon race—Mrs. Oscar Kuehn.
Hop, step and jump; for young men—Albert Gums.
Tug of war; for men, wholesalers, retailers and growers—Rope broke and contest declared a draw.

The baseball game was declared off, owing to the fact that the retail team was not complete. The wholesalers, however, were out in full force. The game will be played sometime next month at one of the big ball parks.

The prize waltz took place at 8 o'clock and twelve couples took the floor. The judges were: W. J. Pilcher, B. Eschner and R. Windler. This was won by Miss Martha Helwig, her partner being Frank Windler.

A panorama photograph of the party was taken at 4 o'clock. The rest of the day was taken up with boating, fishing, dancing and games of all kinds, and was much enjoyed by the large crowd. The committee of arrangements, which had the outing in charge, Messrs. Guy, Smith and Beneke, were congratulated on all sides for the splendid day's sport furnished by them.

Various Notes.

Mrs. John Steidle, president of the Ladies' Home Circle, reports that there will be no meeting of the circle next month. All members will receive notices of the location for the September meeting.

Mrs. M. E. Bronson, representing the Burlington Basket Shop, of Burlington, Ia., was here last week calling on the trade. Mrs. Bronson had a full line of samples at the Hotel Jefferson.

Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bruenig and Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Berning will be among those who will make the trip to Baltimore for the convention next month.

Charles Schoenle won the gold watch and chain offered by the Million Club to the one who guessed the nearest distance their balloon traveled from Kansas City recently. Mr. Schoenle guessed the correct distance, 410 miles. He was around showing his prize last week in the wholesale district.

A. G. Fehr, of Belleville, Ill., reports that he is building two new houses for carnations, 28x110 and 28x140. Mr. Fehr says he had a splendid business season in all lines.

The Eggeling Floral Co., at Grand and Lafayette avenues, will have to vacate August 1. The ground is owned by the Shaw estate and their old store will be replaced by a large office building. Their new location has not as yet been announced.

C. E. De Wever, at Olivette, says that the Skinner irrigation system has been a saver for him during this long dry spell. All of his outdoor stock is in the best shape at present.

The florists along Grand avenue, both north and south, are refreshing their store fronts with new coats of paint, and interior decorations and other improvements are being made for the opening of the fall season.

Fred C. Weber is building a handsome residence in Park View place for his daughter, who is to be married this fall. The whole Weber family enjoyed a day's vacation at the florists' picnic last week.

Florists from Belleville, Edwardsville, Alton, East St. Louis, Kirkwood, St. Charles and Webster attended the picnic in full force, and said they spent a most enjoyable day.

Max L. Pelletier furnished delightful music for the dancers at the picnic. Mrs. Pelletier, who runs a flower store on the south side, was out with her family.

C. C. Sanders and William C. Young, ex-presidents and rival candidates for trusteeship of the Florists' Club, were out electioneering at the picnic. Both want the job badly, so an exciting time is expected at the August meeting of the club. J. J. B.

NEW ORLEANS.

Annual Club Meeting.

The New Orleans Horticultural Society held its twenty-sixth annual meeting and election of officers July 20 at Kolb's German tavern. President Eichling and Secretary Panter were in their places, and a large number of enthusiastic members were present.

The election of the president was one of the most exciting events of the kind ever seen in this organization. Claude L. Ory came out as the victor, winning by one vote over his opponent, R. E. Simon. Richard Eichling, the former president, was nominated first for reelection, but he withdrew to give some other member of the society a chance to have the presidential honors. The officers elected for the ensuing term are: Claude Ory, president; B. M. Wischer, vice-president; John Eblen, treasurer, for the twenty-seventh term; C. R. Panter, recording secretary; Richard Eichling, corresponding secretary. The last four officers named were all elected unanimously. The new finance committee consists of Joseph Steckler, E. Baker and P. A. Chopin.

The treasury of the association showed a balance of $770 in cash and state bonds.

The subject of locating the meeting hall in more convenient quarters was brought up again for discussion. P. A. Chopin, Joseph Steckler and Harry Papworth were appointed as a committee to confer with the governing board of the local Progressive Union for the purpose of obtaining a meeting room in the new building of that organization, and, in case of failure in that plan, to find some other suitable quarters and report at an opportune time.

J. A. Newsham, the local orchid grower, exhibited some beautiful flowers of Dendrobium formosum and D. Phalænopsis, besides Cattleya Trianæ and Harrisoniæ. His exhibit elicited well deserved admiration.

After the meeting the members were the guests of the newly elected officers at a delightful supper, served in the elegant Dutch room at Kolb's tavern. Short addresses were made by the newly elected president and others.

MILWAUKEE.

The Market.

Although the demand of late was not what one would call brisk, still it was strong enough to clean up all available stock. Carnations are a thing of the past. The supply of summer roses has been just about equal to the demand. The daily supply of Easter lilies has helped to relieve the shortage in other lines. With no rain from July 3 to 24, all outdoor stock clearly shows the effect of the prolonged dry spell. Hence the early asters and gladioli, which are beginning to come in, are not of the desired quality. There are enough American Beauties coming in to fill all wants.

Various Notes.

Times change methods. Where years ago the carnation growers housed their stock August 15 and later, generally waiting for a good rain, our local growers have most of their plants housed at this date, thus having them under perfect control from now on.

While a good many are taking advantage of the dull season by resting up, others get busy remodeling and building additions. Gustave Pohl is putting up three new houses, averaging 23x130, to replace those which have seen better days. This will give him one more house than before, which will be utilized for cut flowers.

Richard Lietz, located at 1433 Fond du Lac avenue, is putting the finishing touches to a neat conservatory at the rear of his store, which will be 17x45. His next move will be to remodel the store. As he does all the work himself, he will not find much time for a prolonged vacation.

Edwin J. Gregory, better known to the boys as Ted, who is the nephew and able assistant of Ben Gregory, is spending his vacation on the other side of the Atlantic. He expects to be back in the harness by September 1.

Walter Halliday, of the C. C. Pollworth Co., took to the lakes last week to try his luck at fishing. He will be gone about two weeks.

Aug. F. Kellner is busy these days building a rockery at one of the large Oconomowoc places. He says that mainly crotons will be used in fill in.

At the store of Holton & Hunkel Co. they are overhauling all the tables and other furniture, preparatory to next season's rush. They say that in spite of the dry spell, the large field of asters at the Brown Deer place is looking good.

The C. C. Pollworth Co. is completing plans which will insure larger and more airy quarters not far from their present location in the near future.

Recent visitors were: John Meier, Green Bay, Wis.; Jerry Jergenson, Ralph Latham and Oscar Carlson, of Minneapolis. E. O.

The Market.

The extremely hot weather has played havoc with the stock. Peas have about dried up, but asters and gladioli are becoming more plentiful. Album and rubrum lilies are to be had, but not in large quantities as yet. Indoor carnations are getting smaller and more scarce, as the old plants are being torn out. Roses are poor and do not keep well.

Various Notes.

Ed Larson, who has had a bad case of malarial fever, is much improved.

Hans Kipke finished his Master Mason degree last week.

Sidney Smith was too busy planting carnations to attend the picnic last week.

Ollie Hobbs, with the C. N. Hobbs & Sons Nursery Co., has regained his health again. Mr. Hobbs had a severe attack of pneumonia last spring and his condition was alarming for a while.

W. W. Coles, of Kokomo, left last week to spend the balance of the season at his summer home in northern Michigan.

Wm. Brust, formerly with A. Wiegand & Sons, has taken a position as assistant foreman at Bertermann Bros.' Cumberland plant.

Homer Wiegand leaves this week for a three weeks' fishing trip in northern Michigan.

B. F. Eschner, with M. Rice & Co., spent a day with the trade this week.

C. R. Green is spending his vacation on a farm in southern Indiana.

Standing, left to right—Geo. C. Weiland, Secretary; John Meiers, Joseph Schoos, August Jurgens, Directors; Anton Then, Treasurer.
At right, Chas. W. McCauley, Director.

Directors of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association in Front of Their New Store.

Will Smith and Wm. Roepke have returned from a fishing trip at Lake Manetau.

Bertermann Bros. Co. has invested in another auto for delivery purposes.

The annual picnic of the State Florists' Association was held at Fairview park Thursday, July 20, with a fairly good crowd in attendance. One of the main attractions was the ball game. A team headed by Adolph Baur defeated one headed by Chas. Jones, of Richmond, 4 to 1. One of the features of the game was the base running of Herman Schilling; after making a hit he ran to third base instead of first. There were a number of out-of-town florists in attendance, among them being Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Gause and Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jones, of Richmond; B. F. Hensley, wife and eight employees, of Knightstown, and Mr. and Mrs. Maximer, of Alexander.

Adolph Baur and Irwin Bertermann have signified their intention of going to the S. A. F. convention.

Club Picnic.

The annual outing of the Cincinnati Florists' Society was held Thursday, July 20. The craft was well represented. It was held at Coney Island, and most of the participants went on the 9:30 a. m. boat. There were contests of all kinds. The boys' baseball game was won by the team captained by Ben George, the prize being $4.50. The boys' 100-yard dash for a glove, donated by the Heckman Floral Co., was won by Geo. Culver. The boys' sack race for $1, donated by P. J. Olinger, was won by Adolph Dennler. The girls' race for $2 was won by Marie Hoffmeister. The men's 100-yard dash for a pair of cuff links was won by Chas. Windram. The married ladies' race of fifty yards was won by Mrs. Wilhelmy, the prize being a jardiniere basket donated by E. G. Gillett. The senior men's race was won by Ed Murphy, the prize being a box of cigars, donated by R. Witterstaetter. The men's tug of war was won by the side chosen by Louis Pfeiffer, the prize a box of cigars donated by Frank Ball. The mile run was one of the greatest features of the day and was won by Joseph Ludwig; first prize an umbrella donated by C. E. Critchell; second prize a scarf pin, won by Charles Windram. The men's ball game was the Growers vs. the Store Men. The game was progressing nicely when a heavy shower interrupted, and they adjourned to the bowling alleys to decide the game, which was won by the Growers. The prize was a tie pin to each of the winning team. The ladies' bowling contest was won by Irene Speck, the prize La Valliere, donated by Louis Kyrk. The second prize was a veil pin, donated by John Jennings and won by Kate Pfeiffer. The booby prize was won by Mrs. R. C. Witterstaetter. The men's bowling contest for $5 was won by Wm. Schumann. The second prize, leather bowling shoes, was won by Wm. Sunderbruch. The booby prize went to Ed Horning. The third prize, a watch fob, was won by Ray Murphy. The prize for highest score in one game, fifty Delhi carnation cuttings, donated by Wm. Murphy, was won by R. C. Witterstaetter. The prize for the highest number of strikes and spares, a fountain pen, donated by Lawrence Fritz, was won by Wm. Schumann. The second prize, a knife, donated by J. M. McCullough's Sons Co., was won by Ray Murphy. The committee on the outing deserves great credit for the way it conducted the amusements.

We have been favored with more comfortable weather of late and, although the temperature has run up to 90 degrees one or two days, this has seemed cool by comparison with what we had earlier in the month. There has been no great call for flowers, but the quantity of really good stock coming in is surprisingly small, and it is sometimes difficult to round up sufficient material for choice funeral designs. Roses continue of fair quality and, as supplies are much diminished, sales have been quite good. Carnations are of little account. Many growers are through for the season, and a small number of them only are sending presentable flowers. White Enchantress, Queen, Pink Delight and Fair Maid are still seen of fair quality.

Asters are rather more plentiful and o'clock and twelve couples took the floor. The judges were: W. J. Pilcher, B. Eschner and R. Windler. This was won by Miss Martha Helwig, her partner being Frank Windler.

A panorama photograph of the party was taken at 4 o'clock. The rest of the day was taken up with boating, fishing, dancing and games of all kinds, and was much enjoyed by the large crowd. The committee of arrangements, which had the outing in charge, Messrs. Guy, Smith and Beneke, were congratulated on all sides for the splendid day's sport furnished by them.

Various Notes.

Mrs. John Steidle, president of the Ladies' Home Circle, reports that there will be no meeting of the circle next month. All members will receive notices of the location for the September meeting.

sell well. As yet the variety is chiefly Queen of the Market. The severe drought has made stems short, but some growers report their later batches as doing uncommonly well where the soil is deep and kept well cultivated. Sweet peas are a little better than they were, but the quality leaves much to be desired. Cornflowers, candytuft, white achillea and gypsophila are seen in fair quantity. Lilies are temporarily rather short, while valley meets with a good sale. Some good callas are still seen. Indoor grown gladioli are over. Some are coming from outdoors, but the quality is not good. In cattleyas there are C. gigas and the small but pretty C. Harrisoniæ, but calls are not heavy. For common wood fern the demand is much better than for adiantum or asparagus.

Club Picnic.

The following are the donors of prizes for the annual club picnic, held at Caledonian grove, West Roxbury, July 26, details of which will appear in the next issue of The Review: Lunt Moss Co., T. J. Grey Co., Joseph Breck & Sons, Peter Fisher, M. A. Patten, T. H. Westwood, Duncan Finlayson, A. H. Hews Co., W. N. Craig, Fottler, Fiske, Rawson Co., Daniel Iliffe, H. Terry, H. F. Michell Co., Ames Implement & Seed Co., Lord & Burnham Co., W. J. Anderson, Peter M. Miller, Thomas Roland, Stumpp & Walter Co., Boston Plate & Window Glass Co., Eber Holmes, John P. Shea, Thomas Pegler, H. M. Robinson & Co., P. di Stacio, Henry Penn, William McLaughlin, W. E. Fischer and Benjamin Hammond.

The following subscribed in addition towards the entertainment fund: W. A. Hastings, William C. Stickel, Mann Bros., M. F. Ruane, A. Christensen and Neil E. Boyle. The sports officials were: Ringmaster, W. J. Kennedy; starter, Edward Rose; handicapper, William McGillivray; clerk, W. N. Craig; judges, K. Finlayson, A. F. Barney, T. H. Westwood, George Shield, James Wheeler, Frank Allison, Peter Fisher and William Harvey; umpire, James L. Miller; committee, William Downs, Robert Cameron, J. P. A. Guerineau, W. J. Kennedy, P. M. Miller; chairman entertainment committee, P. J. Turley.

Various Notes.

Robert E. Lassman, the veteran Watertown florist, now over 80 years of age, is one of the rapidly lessening number of those who fought fifty years ago at the battle of Bull Run. Mr. Lassman came to America from Prussia in 1854 and fought all through the Civil war, including Gettysburg, having his turn in Libby prison. He is a stallholder at the Boston Co-operative Market and active for an octogenarian.

R. & J. Farquhar & Co. had a special exhibit of new Chinese lilies at Horticultural hall July 22. The special variety not previously exhibited in flower was named L. Farquhar by E. H. Wilson, the collector. The plants grow two to four feet high. Flowers are carried on stout stems, four to ten on a stalk, and are large trumpet shaped, pale green outside and pure white within, stamens brown. This is one of the grandest lilies ever introduced.

Charles Evans, of Watertown, is on the market with a fine lot of the double white Gypsophila paniculata, which every florist should grow. He also is cutting Physostegia Virginica.

J. H. Leach & Son, of North Easton, are cutting some fine asters. Their carnations in the field look first-class. They are building a new house for their fine seedling carnation, Pink Supreme, which proved a grand seller last season at the Boston Co-operative Market.

A. G. Lake, of Wellesley Hills, is one of the leading aster specialists for the Boston market, growing them by the acre. He has splendid, deep soil and he gets remarkable stems. He is already marketing some of the early sorts and a little later will cut wagon loads daily.

Mann Bros., of Randolph, are cutting extra good longiflorum lilies, also gladioli, gypsophilas, cornflowers, asters and a large variety of outdoor flowers.

J. T. Butterworth has been cutting some grand Cattleya gigas. He also has the useful C. Harrisoniæ in bloom. This he grows in quantity, and, grown in large baskets hung near the ridge of one of his houses, it does splendidly.

Visitors last week included Thomas Knight, representing Knight & Struck, New York, and F. G. Sealey, with Julius Roehrs Co., Rutherford, N. J.

Drought conditions continue acute. Nothing but light, scattered showers have fallen of late. July's rainfall to July 24 has been only .38 of an inch, and growers of outdoor flowers and vegetables are having a discouraging season.

A visit to the Bay State Nurseries found everything clean and thrifty. The big blocks of both deciduous and evergreen trees and shrubs could hardly have looked better. The success lies in constant cultivation of the soil.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Pegler have reached England safely after a pleasant journey. Mr. Pegler will be much missed at the annual club picnic, where he has proved formidable in the fat men's race, as well as on the commercial tug of war team.

In connection with his new Lord & Burnham steel-frame house at Revere, Thomas Roland is also building a brick stack 100 feet high and a large steel and concrete boiler house.

Perry Green, of Quincy, among other specialties is marketing fine batches of sweet sultans, bachelor's buttons, sweet peas, coreopsis and other outdoor flowers at 2 Park street.

The fishing excursion July 21 attracted a large attendance of salesmen and growers from the Boston Flower Exchange, and all report a splendid time, although there were no remarkable catches of the finny tribe.

Welch Bros. report quite a nice July trade in cut flowers. They send a good many to shore and mountain resorts and have had no surplus of good flowers, owing to the hot weather. P. Welch is enjoying himself at Orchard Beach, Me., and encouraging advices are received from his brother, David, now on a trip to Europe for his health.

George W. Ayer, the well known Reading carnation specialist, is enjoying an auto trip to Canada. His carnations handled by D. J. Lamey are still of good quality.

William J. Thurston, manager at the Boston Flower Exchange, is home from his annual vacation, looking brown and fit after a pleasant outing in Maine.

The next prize exhibition at Horticultural hall will occur August 19 and 20, when perennial phloxes, gladioli, asters and annuals will be special features.

Carnation plants in the fields are making but little growth in this section, owing to continued heat and drought, and are much smaller than usual. The call for field plants promises to be larger than ever before and some growers are already sold out.

GLEN COVE, L. I.

The regular monthly meeting of the Glen Cove Horticultural Society was held in Pembroke hall, Wednesday, July 12. President Trepess occupied the chair. Messrs. Everett, McKenzie and Carter were appointed judges of the exhibits. J. McDonald was awarded first prize for sweet peas, white, pink and any other color. J. Ingram's special prize for twelve varieties of sweet peas, twenty-five sprays of each, went to G. Barton. H. Gaut received honorable mention for sweet peas, and F. Petroccia for cucumbers, and the latter got a special mention for beans.

The secretary read a number of letters from seedsmen and others, offering special prizes for the fall show, and it was moved that a hearty vote of thanks be accorded to all. It was decided that the dahlia show be held in Pembroke hall, September 26, and the executive committee was requested to draw up a schedule and report at the next meeting.

It was decided to have the annual outing August 10, and it was left to the executive committee to make arrangements. F. Adams gave an able talk on leaf-mold, which is being produced by Francis & Camerden, Quogue, L. I. Mr. Adams was accorded a hearty vote of thanks. Eugene Moquin, of Roslyn, was elected to active membership. The society's prizes for August will be for twelve asters, mixed; six Japanese lilies and twelve gladioli. Mr. Ingram's prize will be for four vases of asters, white, pink, blue and rose.

OBITUARY.

Philip Koch.

Philip Koch, aged 38, for many years associated with his father, Charles Koch, in the flower business on Liberty avenue, Pittsburg, Pa., died July 14 at his home, 146 Carver street, East End. He was born in Pittsburg and had lived there all his life. After leaving school he entered the store of his father, and had since been employed there. He was prominent in musical circles in his city and was president of the Orpheus Singing Society of the East End. He was also actively interested in Solomon Lodge of Masons and the Baker Beneficial Society. His widow, Mrs. Emma Treusch Koch, one child, his father, three brothers and three sisters survive.

Adam Berg.

Adam Berg, formerly a florist of Liberty, Ind., died July 16, at the home of his son-in-law, Homer Jones, 326 Chestnut street, Hamilton, O., after a brief illness. He was 87 years old. He was a widower and is survived by several children. His body was taken to Liberty for interment.

Cleveland, O.—Chas. Graham, chairman of the sports committee for the S. A. F. convention, states that President Asmus has contributed $25 toward the purchase of prizes, which is highly appreciated by the committee.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

A WELCOME TO BALTIMORE.

From Vice-President Vincent.

Fellow members of the S. A. F.: In a short time from now our city will open to receive you as our guests, coming here from far and near to the twenty-seventh annual convention of the society, and we stand ready to extend the right hand of fellowship to one and all.

We hope that none will miss this opportunity to be here to renew old friendships and make new friends. We firmly believe our society is growing, and the indications are that this will be one of the best meetings and the largest trade exhibit that the society has ever had. So come one, come all, and let us have the pleasure of welcoming you in this our beloved city of Baltimore, and when we extend the parting hand, may you return to your homes well repaid for your visit and with pleasant memories of the Baltimore convention.

The different committees have worked faithfully together, with the single idea of making this meeting the most successful in the history of the society.

The hotel accommodations will be found ample and in equipment equal to any in the country, and the rates are reasonable, so that accommodations can be obtained to suit everyone's taste, from the costly to the more moderate. A list of the hotels, with their charges, is published in this issue of The Review. William Feast, who is the head of the hotel committee, will be more than pleased to locate any one of you as you may wish, if you will communicate with him, addressing him at 331 North Charles street, Baltimore, Md.

A large amount of space has already been taken in the Armory for exhibition purposes, but more good space is still left, as we have one of the largest and finest exhibition halls in the country, where everyone will be on an equal footing, as all is on one floor.

The Armory also contains rooms for the general meeting and committee meetings, as well as rooms for rest, comfort and convenience. Come and take possession and everything we have is yours for the time being.

Also try to bring some new member with you, so that he or she may be benefited and the society may increase in strength and usefulness.

Richard Vincent, Jr.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Although my two years' service as secretary have been pleasant ones, I wish to announce to my friends that I will not be a candidate for reëlection. My duties at the university have increased to such an extent that it will be impossible for me to spare the time necessary for the work of the S. A. F. The duties connected with the office of secretary are rapidly increasing, and the time is approaching when the secretary will be compelled to devote all his time to the interests of the society. Knowing the importance of the position, I feel that I should make this statement, in order that the members may have enough time to think over the situation and select a new candidate.

S. A. F. pins will be issued shortly to all life and pioneer members, and to those annual members who have paid their dues for 1911. This pin will be necessary for admission to the exhibition hall.

The attention of florists should be called to the fact that to get the benefit of the meetings, the exhibition and the entertainments it will be necessary to be a member of the S. A. F.

By order of the president, a meeting of the executive board is hereby called for 10 o'clock Tuesday, August 15, at the Belvedere hotel, Baltimore, Md.

H. B. Dorner, Sec'y.

For any further information, address William Feast, 331 North Charles street, Baltimore, Md., who is chairman pro tem. of the hotel committee.

GETTING TOGETHER.

One of the pleasantest features of the S. A. F. convention is the getting together in parties at the principal centers for the journey to the convention city. Whenever these parties foregather everyone who can do so always is expected to join in. Here are the routes of the principal parties for the trip to Baltimore:

New York to Baltimore.

Via B. & O. R. R., leaving West Twenty-third street, New York, at 11:50 a. m., Monday, August 14, arriving at Baltimore 4:15 p. m. Address F. H. Traendly, 131 West Twenty-eighth street.

Boston to Baltimore.

Via Fall River line to New York, leaving south terminal at 6 p. m. August 13, joining the New York special train via the B. & O. Fare $8.65 round trip. Address W. A. Hastings, C Park street, Boston.

Chicago to Baltimore.

The Chicago Florists' Club will travel via the Monon railroad and the C., H. & D. R. R. to Cincinnati, and via the B. & O. S. W. and Baltimore & Ohio from Cincinnati to Baltimore. Leave Chicago 11:30 p. m. August 13; leave Cincinnati 8 a. m. August 14, arriving at Baltimore at 11 p. m. This will be the President's Special. Low fares on summer excursion tickets. Address Herbert Wiley, G. A., 104 South Clark street, Chicago.

S. A. F. POLITICS.

S. A. F. politics is warming up. It is a healthy sign when so many men seek to serve the society and the craft in general.

Boston has at least one candidate for the presidency, possibly two candidates, while friends of R. Vincent, Jr., of White Marsh, Md., are interesting themselves in his behalf.

Secretary Dorner announces that he will not be a candidate for reëlection and there promises to be active competition for the place and salary.

Louisville is keen for the convention in 1912. Chicago will renew the invitation extended last year.

AMERICAN GLADIOLUS SOCIETY.

The following is the program of the second annual meeting of the American Gladiolus Society, to be held in the Fifth Regiment armory, Baltimore, Md., August 16 and 17, 1911:

FIRST SESSION, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 16, AT 8:30 P. M.

Address of Welcome, George Asmus, president S. A. F.
Reading minutes of last meeting.
President's address.
Financial secretary's report.
Treasurer's report.
Nominating committee's report.
Report of committee on "What Constitutes a First Size of Salable Bulb."

SECOND SESSION, THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, AT 9 A. M.

Report of judges.
Election of officers.
Report of miscellaneous committees, bulletin, exhibition, etc.
Report of committee on nomenclature.
New business.
Lecture, "Gladiolus Diseases," by Prof. Whetzel or assistant from Cornell University, followed by discussion and reports from state committeemen on diseases.

L. Merton Gage, Cor. Sec'y.

The second annual exhibition of the American Gladiolus Society will be held in conjunction with the convention of the S. A. F. at Baltimore, August 15 to 18.

The exhibition will be staged in a room near the superintendent's office, and will be the headquarters for all members. A desk will be furnished for those who wish to attend to their correspondence in the armory.

It is earnestly desired that intending exhibitors make their entries as early as possible, thus greatly facilitating the work of the committee. Entries close August 12 and must be sent to the corresponding secretary, L. Merton Gage, Orange, Mass., who will furnish schedules of prizes and blank entry forms upon application. H. Youell, Chairman Exhibition Committee.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

OUT AUGUST 17

Even larger and finer than in other years. It marks the opening of the new season. Reserve your space now.

"Every one in the Trade reads The Review; the replies to my small advertisement prove it."—W. Bay.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1911: President, George Asmus, Chicago; vice-president, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18 1911.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them. We both have them.

Being a good collector is not all there is to business success, but it is a large part.

The rains and cool weather are just what the carnation growers needed for the refilling of their benches.

The early asters have not given the results the growers hoped, but those who have been fortunate enough to get a good cut have had a fine market.

The latest in greenhouse building is a structure on wheels and a track, to be rolled over stock previously planted in the open. See Detroit news-letter in this issue.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

Reciprocity with Canada, under the bill just signed by the President and now to be adopted by the Canadian parliament, will not broaden the market for cut flowers or plants, as it leaves the duty just where it has been.

If you contemplate putting in a plant for artificial refrigeration, for greenhouse cooling room or retail store display case, write to The Review about it. The perfection of small apparatus for these purposes will soon make the florists independent of the ice man.

A. F. J. Baur, of Indianapolis, secretary of the American Carnation Society, who is in charge of the Dorner Memorial fund, states that contributions are coming in nicely but that he "could handle them faster." The plan is to erect a memorial to the late Fred Dorner by popular subscription, $2 from each subscriber.

SELLING IS EASIEST.

If one's stock gives satisfaction, the selling end of the business is easy.

Pansy seed selling faster than it is growing, due to the advertisement in The Review; shall have to reduce space for a while.—Wm. Toole & Sons, Baraboo, Wis., July 17, 1911.

THE CANADIAN CONVENTION.

This year's convention of the Canadian Horticultural Association, August 9 to 11, promises to be a still greater success than any of its predecessors. Being held in Ottawa, Canada's capital city, so easy of access from New York state, not a few American florists will attend before going to Baltimore.

The trade exhibit will be somewhat larger than ever before. In fact, the Canadian convention will draw a few exhibitors from Uncle Sam's side of the border line, who are cultivating the Canucks' business.

Goods will be admitted into Canada in bond and will remain in bond in the exhibition hall, and there will be no inconveniences resulting from crossing the line.

Reciprocal trade relations will, no doubt, be discussed and the meeting will be exceedingly interesting in this connection. Wm. C. Hall, Sec'y.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

There has been comparatively little change in the market conditions in the last week. Business continued excellent all through the week of July 17 to 22, Saturday giving the biggest day's business this market ever has done in July. The present week opened with an absence of city demand, due to the rainy Sunday, but with an excellent volume of shipping business. It appears that stock is as scarce all through the central west as it is in Chicago, and buyers are calling for more flowers than this market is able to supply. There are flowers, but not always the flowers the orders call for.

There has been a decrease in the supply of Beauties, and strictly first-class long-stemmed stock is commanding a premium. Most of the arrivals now are cut from the young plants and medium to short lengths predominate. The same thing is true of all roses. Most of the old plants are getting their rest and the stock arriving is cut from young plants, with the result that there are many more short-stemmed flowers than there are medium or long-stemmed roses. Killarney continues to show excellent color. White Killarney has a great deal of pink in it, and such Kaiserin as come in are quickly taken up. One seldom sees Bride. Not many Richmond arrive and there is little call for it. Maryland is selling well. It is noted that Prince de Bulgarie always brings reorders when shipped out of town. Some stock of fair length is being cut of this variety. Mrs. Ward is showing some increase in length of stem and also sells well.

Carnations are practically out of the market. A few good whites still arrive, but there are not nearly enough for the demand. Asters are coming in much more plentifully than a week ago and average prices are lower. The weather has been against the aster crop. The flowers have been late, and they have been poor. It is said by many that they never have seen a July in which such low grade asters brought such first-class prices. This condition promises to change rapidly now that we have had a good rain with lower temperature. Gladioli also have come in much more abundantly and the prices in this department, which heretofore have been more than good, have taken

We have an enormous crop of Mrs. Francis King and America Gladioli.

There are just three varieties of Gladioli that the retailers really want—Mrs. Francis King (red), America (light pink), and Augusta (white)—the best of their colors. Our crop of these now is on (the same stock you got of us last summer) and we can furnish these three varieties in thousand lots.

We have these cut tight for shipping, so Retailers can carry them in stock without losing a single spike—it takes several days for all the flowers to open.

KILLARNEYS

You can't beat these anywhere.

We are handling a large cut of Killarneys grown especially for the summer crop. Most of them run to medium and long stems, and you know that the longer the stem the larger and finer the flower is. The Pink Killarneys have the best color we ever have seen on summer roses. If you are not using these roses, you ought to order some at once.

Specially strong on the 6c, 8c and 10c grades.

BEAUTIES

Another fine crop just ready.

Year after year we have supplied the trade with the finest Beauties available in summer. Not only has the quality of our summer crop been exceptionally good, but our growers have been able to maintain a steady supply—we have been able to furnish the best Beauties all the time. All lengths of stem.

LILIES—LILIES

You can get here all the Lilies you need. We have a big supply of fine Auratum, Rubrum and Easter Lilies; these are just the thing for funeral work, also decorations.

Asters

Our Asters are coming stronger every day. Good stock ready now. We can meet your needs.

Valley

Order Valley of us and you will draw on a never-failing source of supply. We have the best grade.

HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL GREENS

Here you get the best Fancy Ferns, all the Smilax and Asparagus strings you want, Sprengeri and Plumosus bunches, Mexican Ivy and Galax. No order too large for our facilities and no order too small to receive our careful attention.

another drop. The quality of the gladioli also is much improved. The bulk of the receipts are Mrs. King, Augusta and America, the latter variety being as yet none too plentiful. Thus far there are scarcely any of the mixed colors, the unnamed varieties that used to constitute the bulk of the gladiolus stock. Although the receipts have multiplied, gladioli still are selling well for the season.

Easter lilies have gone to the short side, after having been abundant ever since Easter. Late in the day, it sometimes is impossible to find lilies for orders. There has been an increase in the receipts of auratums, and this appears to be the one flower that is not doing as well as in other summers. Rubrums also are abundant. Few good sweet peas are seen and Shasta daisies are on the wane.

The call for green goods is light. There are more than adequate supplies in practically all lines. The exception appears to be galax, on which a shortage is predicted.

The Picnic.

In spite of the rain the Chicago Florists' Club had an attendance at its annual picnic practically as large as it ever has had when the day was pleasant. But there were two ladies for every man! The event was at Ehrhardt's grove, Park Ridge. The rain was so continuous that indoor entertainments were relied upon until about 4 o'clock, when the weather cleared sufficiently to permit holding the outdoor contests. The events were as follows:

Various Notes.

John Enders, of Poehlmann Bros. Co., says the out-of-town buyers are in need of frequent reminder that there is no mail delivery in Chicago Sundays, except special delivery letters. He says every Monday morning brings them orders intended for Sunday shipment.

Sunday's rain, while it was disastrous for the picnic, was a boon to the carnation growers, many of whom have been waiting for a break in the weather to start benching their young stock.

Weiland & Risch are busy redecorating their store.

John Kruchten says there has been a good market for cat-tails, considerable quantities having been sold in the last few weeks at from $1 per dozen to 50 cents per dozen.

Both G. H. Pieser and E. E. Pieser, of Kennicott Bros. Co., were at the store July 24. E. E. Pieser is planning a northern trip.

Max Ringier, of Vaughan & Sperry, is vacationing for a fortnight.

Henry Van Gelder came to the Percy Jones store July 24, the first day he was out of bed in a fortnight. He still lacks strength.

A. I. Simmons is busy this week. He is in charge of the commissary department of the lake front army.

John Michelsen, of the E. C. Amling Co., has made three trips to McHenry, Ill., in the last ten days. His family are vacationing there.

Emil Buettner, at Park Ridge, has finished tearing down and replacing with a larger structure the last of his old houses. Roses are planted and carnation planting is going ahead rapidly this week. He is trying only one new rose this year, Pierson's Dark Pink Killarney.

Frank A. Benthey, son of F. F. Benthey, who formerly was foreman for Hoerber Bros. and later for Crabb & Hunter, at Reeds Lake, Mich., has gone into business for himself at Tipton, Ind., the firm name being Briscoe & Benthey.

The new store of the Chicago Flower Growers' Association is an exceedingly busy place this week. The big new icebox, forty-five feet long and eight feet deep, with ice space entirely overhead, has been completed. Manager Otto W. Frese says everything, to the last de-

C. L. Washburn has a bad case of rose thorn poisoning in the little finger of his right hand. The Washburn family motored to Starved Rock for an outing last week. Miss Ella Shaffer, of the Bassett & Washburn office force, is vacationing this week.

Michael Weber, the Rogers Park grower, is being sued in the Superior Court by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Sophia Weber, who asks $10,000 damages as the result of their troubles.

George Weiland is rapidly completing his big new establishment at Evanston. Remarkable progress has been made, for everything is to be finished, even the carnations planted, by the end of this week.

Frank Johnson, of the A. L. Randall Co., says July has been much ahead of the month in other years.

Winterson's Seed Store has received calla bulbs and California freesias this week.

Peter Reinberg began benching carnation plants at the farm July 24.

One commission house reports selling $900 of Easter lilies for one grower last week, while another sold $590 of gladioli for one grower.

At Kyle & Foerster's, F. F. Benthey says the New Castle Beauty crop of the Frederick Benthey Co. has been the most successful ever grown for summer.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Rising Eastern Market.

There are more flowers and more business than a week ago. The increase in stock is chiefly in asters and in roses. The asters grade low, most of the flowers being far below market requirements. There have been days when it was impossible to satisfy the demand for asters of the better grades. While roses are more plentiful, the increase has not strengthened the ranks of the quality; it is just as hard to get fine stock as it was a week ago, and fine stock is bringing good value. Carnations are almost out of sight. Gladioli continue an important factor where decorative flowers are desired. Easter lilies are in excellent demand and fair supply. There is no special call for valley. Cattleyas are very, very scarce; an order can be filled provided its proportions are of moderate size. Golden Glow chrysanthemums have been with us for ten days. Small outdoor flowers are not in as active demand as a week ago, probably owing to the increase in asters. Some sweet peas have come from out of town. There is little demand for greens.

The Big House.

Henry C. Geiger was in town one day this week on a little matter of business. Mr. Geiger is always busy, having the thousand and one little details of those immense floral factories at Edgely and at North Wales under his direction. In reply to a question about the big house at North Wales, Mr. Geiger became enthusiastic, speaking with the greatest pleasure of the progress that the roses are making.

"They are about so high," Mr. Geiger said, indicating with his hand a position a little above his hip, and Mr. Geiger is a man of good stature. "They were planted March 20 and we have been cutting for a month. Many of them are what we call trees, heavy shoots as thick as your finger, that when pinched produce four or five good flowers. Most of them are going to New York now, but some come to Edward Reid in this city."

When asked about the varieties planted in the house (they had been given in this column without the quantities), Mr. Geiger said that the 70,000 roses were made up as follows: 25,000 Bride, 5,000 Bridesmaid, 15,000 Killarney, 5,000 White Killarney, 14,000 Richmond and 6,000 My Maryland.

Speaking of the size of the big house, 172x700, Mr. Geiger said it was the largest house in the world, containing seven miles of beds, 120,400 square feet of ground surface. W. H. Elliott has a house at Madbury, N. H., 40x1,360, that covers 54,400 square feet of ground surface. There is a palm conservatory in Kew Gardens, England, that contains a greater amount of cubic air space, but does not cover so much ground surface.

The present plans at North Wales are to put the two recently constructed ends of the carnation houses in Beauties by way of giving them a further trial. Between 4,000 and 5,000 plants will be benched. The second largest house, formerly devoted to Beauties, will be planted with carnations and sweet peas. Many of the carnations are now benched and looking well.

King, Norristown, Pa.; Joseph Pennypacker, Phoenixville, Pa.; the son of Charles Eble; Charles Graham, Cleveland, O.

Wallace Faust resigned his position with T. Neilson Geiger last week.

J. H. Thompson, Toughkenamon, Pa., has a fine new touring car.

H. H. Battles returned from Europe July 17. He made a meteoric descent on this city, leaving for Maine so swiftly that the minor papers completely lost track of his movements. He re-returned July 24 and proceeded to strengthen his position for the coming campaign.

Mrs. William H. Moon, wife of the well known nurseryman, died July 22. The funeral took place July 25. Mrs. Moon is the sister of Mrs. Walter P. Stokes.

Louis Dupuy and Paul Dupuy, Whitestone, L. I., and Conrad Hess, Baltimore, recently visited the Robert Craig Co.

Miss Blick, Norfolk, Va., was here recently, purchasing a Packard car.

David Fuerstenberg is at the Dennis.

Charles Graham, son of Adam Graham, Cleveland, O., has been in this city arranging for the prizes to be given at the sporting events to be given at the S. A. F. meeting in Baltimore next month. Mr. Graham is down on the cups; he favors suitably inscribed silk umbrellas and other useful luxuries.

The victorious Michell baseball team succumbed to the General Electrics at Ridley Park, July 22, by the narrow margin of two runs; score 7 to 5.

Charles Schoenhut and Mrs. Schoenhut, Buffalo, N. Y., and Charles Graham, Cleveland, O., recently visited H. Bayersdorfer & Co.

William J. Baker is enjoying a respite from work at his home in this city.

Edward Reid will visit North Wales July 28.

Xavier E. Schmitt will address the Florists' Club at Horticultural hall, Broad street below Locust, Tuesday evening, August 1. Mr. Schmitt's long experience at Horticultural hall in Fairmount park has given him unusual opportunity to study all that is best in ornamental and decorative planting.

Julius Wolff, Jr., and Mrs. Wolff celebrated their silver wedding anniversary with a reception at the Hotel Majestic July 21. About fifty persons enjoyed a delightful repast. During the evening the engagement of Mr. Wolff's son, J. A. Wolff, was announced. Easter lilies and lilies of the valley in white enameled baskets were the table decorations. Electrically lit white roses formed the chief centerpiece, which had a base of both lilies. The number twenty-five, electrically formed, was a prominent feature of the decoration.

Golden Glow chrysanthemums arrived a week ago, too early to excite much interest, but pleasing for variety's sake.

Joseph Josephs has moved easily from the position as leader among the street men to that of a prominent retailer on an important thoroughfare. His store is of good size and tastefully arranged.

Samuel S. Pennock has given the subject of advertising the study that it deserves. His work, which is on original lines, has attracted attention abroad as well as in this country.

John C. Gracey is enjoying his vacation at the seashore; at the wet or dry place, did you say? At the dry one, of course, i. e., Ocean City, N. J.

J. Otto Thilow says that the work of the fall show committees is progressing. To cover the preliminary expenses, $1,000 will be required. This amount can be raised. With it, the hall and a good lot of exhibits, a success is assured.

Israel Rosnosky is in town.

Mrs. J. Wolf Moore has won the respectful admiration of her business associates. It is an art to make those with whom one meets in business go their way rejoicing.

Mr. Rice's belief in the honesty of mankind, or I should say womankind, has been strengthened by the receipt of a check for $70 for a bill of sixteen years' standing, accompanied by a nice letter from a former florist.

Paul Berkowitz has completed his catalogue and store improvement work and hopes to find time for a short vacation next week. Phil.

Much as it would please us to give a glowing report on business, it is impossible to do so. The same old story is again revealed, with the same conditions of trade we experience every year during the midsummer months. As soon as stock gets a little scarce, trade seemingly brightens up and the demand gets larger than the supply; then the florist thinks the spell has broken, but as soon as stock comes in more plentifully trade drops back into the same old rut. Everybody seems to be away on a vacation and there is nothing doing to create a demand for flowers, except an occasional funeral, or a wedding bunch.

A few Killarney, Bride, Kaiserin and Bridesmaid are arriving from newly planted stock and make up the assortment of roses which is obtainable at present. Select stock seems a little scarce; consequently it is not difficult to dispose of it. Carnations are not so plentiful at present, as nearly everyone has cleaned all the old stock out and outside stock is extremely scarce in all varieties of flowers.

Outside asters have not done as well this year as they might, and it is surprising to note how poorly the majority of the geraniums look, while other bedding plants, such as cannas, verbenas, petunias and salvias look fine.

Business has been good lately, especially in funeral work. Asters are a failure and so roses and carnations are in big demand. Carnations are scarce, while roses are more plentiful and of good quality for the season.

Various Notes.

Ben Kramer has been busy with funeral work. He says that asters are hard to get, owing to the hot and dry weather.

Royston & Fenton have been cutting good quantities of roses, for which there is a ready sale.

GRAND RAPIDS.

The Market.

The weather has turned cooler at last, and the change, although radical in its extremity, is nevertheless welcome. We have gone through the hottest spell on record here, somewhat tempered with breezes, but no rain, and the drought was beginning to do considerable damage to carnations and field crops in general. However, it rained July 23, and now the thermometer is down to 50 degrees.

Except for funeral work, a summer quietness has settled down on business, and it is well that such is the case, as there are hardly any flowers to do business with; practically no carnations or roses, and few sweet peas, as all outdoor stock was practically ruined by the hot weather.

Prices, despite the dullness, remain as last quoted. Carnation planting will begin actively next week.

Various Notes.

R. Yonkers has just received a carload of pipe, fittings, and a large Kroeschell boiler to be used for heating the new houses now being erected.

The Wealthy Avenue Floral Co is building a two-story cement block combination potting shed and boiler room, and is also putting up a brick chimney instead of the old style iron smokestack, so long in use here.

The Grand Rapids Floral Co. is building a large barn of cement blocks, two stories high, including a cement cellar for storage purposes, starting bulbs, etc.

Six Pages of Retailers' Cards

This department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

ROCHESTER.

The Market.

A great scarcity of cut flowers was felt in the market last week. The supply was far behind the demand and one had to put his inventive powers into action to suggest designs that were made only partly of flowers, for the funerals of the week. One enterprising florist filled a number of jardinieres and ferneries with medium sized table ferns and filled in carnations, sweet peas and rosebuds, wired on toothpicks, in the jars of ferns. These jars were substituted for cut flowers for all purposes, and brought prices ranging from $1 up. Gloxinias in fancy jars were also substituted for flowers. Business has kept up fairly well for midsummer, but funerals helped a great deal to make up the trade of last week.

Asters and gladioli are more plentiful now; they are welcome, indeed, and are useful in many ways. Carnations are scarce, but the few that arrive are good in quality for this time of the year and bring a good price. Lilium auratum and speciosum are also quite plentiful, and the quality is good considering the hot spell we have had. Garden flowers are still scarce, notwithstanding the fact that there were several good showers last week. All gardens seem to have suffered alike; even where they were watered every day the intense heat seems to have dried up the buds of most plants. However, a week of cool weather, with showers, is beginning to show its good effect on both outdoor and indoor stock. Roses are much improved. Marylands are the favorite pink roses at present. Short-stemmed Wards, with firm, good colored blooms, are finding a ready market, and are used a great deal in contrast with heliotropes, cornflowers and lavender sweet peas.

Geraniums and vincas are still selling and it looks as if bedding plants would be in demand all summer. Maidenhair ferns in pots are also selling.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Wilson are still touring in the west. They have been gone over four weeks.

best in years; the cut will be about 20,000 blooms, mostly on single stems. They finished planting carnations July 22 and the plants certainly look promising.

The building operations at the C. H. Frey establishment this year included a garage for Mr. Frey's new car. Planting is finished at this place and everything is in fine shape. Though the cut at present is not heavy, the stock looks promising for the future. J. F.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

Pres., Leonard H. Vaughan, Chicago; First Vice-Pres., M. H. Duryea, New York City; Sec'y and Treas., C. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.

CHICAGO, Louisville and Chillicothe all report short onion set crops. This should tone things up.

REPORTS from the Michigan growers confirm the general opinion that the present is not good bean weather.

LOUISVILLE reports the onion set harvest about finished and the product the smallest in quantity for several years.

BARTELDES SEED CO., Lawrence, Kan., report that they have never had such a trade in seeds for late planting as now.

JUDGING from reports to date, the 1911 pea crop will be short enough to vouch for the efficiency of the most pessimistic estimator.

THE early varieties of sweet corn are reported short, with the chances for the late sorts to do fairly well if seasonable weather and rains prevail.

THE veteran grower remarks that it should be borne in mind that the losers in a short crop year are not they who get the pro rata of delivery.

IF the onion set, with the chance it has, does not redeem itself this season for the misconduct of last year, its friends will lose confidence in it completely.

ALASKA peas so far threshed are reported as returning not more than threefold on the average. Crops of the popular early wrinkled sorts naturally are returning less.

A. SLUIS, son of Yoost Sluis, of Sluis Bros., seed growers at Enkhuizen, Holland, is visiting a brother who is in the seed business at Chicago. In the course of the next few weeks he will call on the trade on his way back to New York.

WHOLESALERS report turnip seed in good demand during the last two weeks. Other seasonable seeds have also been going out in good shape. Rains in sections where the previous dry weather had shut things off have helped to put a little life into the market.

CUCOUMBER,. squash and other vine seeds are differently reported from the different sections. Conditions of weather at one point make prospects bright, while the outlook at another place just reverses things. Later reports are needed to give anything definite.

THE onion set harvest at Chicago is well under way and the product is of excellent quality, but the quantity that comes from a given acreage is small, compared with normal years. Some of the growers are hoping that the unharvested pieces will pan out stronger than the pieces so far harvested, but there seems little reason to base this hope on.

MARIUS KIRKEBY, of the Kirkeby & Gundestrup Seed Co., Chicago, has retired from active participation in the business and is spending the summer in Europe. He is expected to return in September and it is rumored that he will then engage in the commission business on South Water street. Mr. Gundestrup is now filling the offices of both president and treasurer and says that their onion set crops will average up quite well, although Almost the whole of Europe is having a hot wave, similar to that which alarmed seed growers in this country a few weeks ago.

The seed trade will be interested in the illustrated account of the sweet pea show in England on another page of this issue.

Arthur G. Lee, Fort Smith, Ark., says the demand for seeds in western Arkansas and Oklahoma has been unprecedented for July.

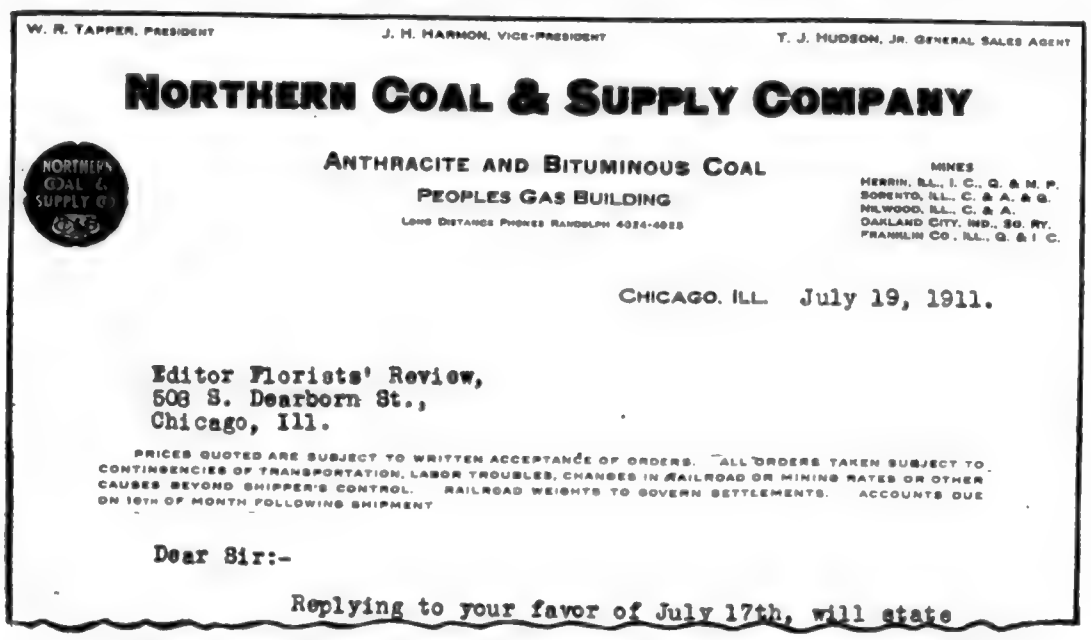
The Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., Kansas City, has been incorporated, with $40,000 authorized capital stock, by Frank Rudy, Howard S. Patrick and John W. Miller.

CANADIAN RECIPROCITY.

The United States has at length adopted the Canadian reciprocity bill, but it will not go into effect until after the Canadian Parliament adopts it. The seed paragraph is as follows, under the heading of "Reciprocal Free List":

"Seeds: Flaxseed or linseed, cotton seed, and other oil seeds; grass seed, including timothy and clover seed; garden, field and other seed not herein otherwise provided for, when in packages weighing over one pound each (not including flower seeds)."

The principal item of seeds that this will admit free into the United States when grown in Canada is peas. What seeds we sell to Canada is shown by the following figures for the year ended March 31, 1911:



Article.	Total value.	Duty collected.	Duty to be remitted.
Flaxseed	$ 22,086	$ 1,060.90	$ 1,060.90
Clover & timothy	826,003	82,600.30	82,600.30
Beet, carrot, turnip, parsnip	44,480	.....	.....
Other seeds	302,394	30,239.40	30,239.40

POSITION OF DISCLAIMER.

The need for a change in the letter-head position of the disclaimer was first called to the attention of the seed trade through the publication of the following note in this column July 28, 1910:

An attorney whose specialty is commercial law states that no part of what may be printed on a letter-head is a part of a contract unless it be between the date line and the signature, except a reference appears between those parts to practically bring the outside words within the body of the letter itself. This would apply to the non-warranty clause as printed on most seedsmen's stationery.

This was the subject of considerable discussion among the trade and many letters reached The Review, from seedsmen who wanted further information. These were advised that the opinion was based, among other things, on a decision of the Supreme Court of Illinois in which it was held that "printed matter in a letter-head forms no part of the letter written on the sheet, and will not qualify an absolute contract which results from an acceptance of an offer by such letter." See 153 Ill., 102. As a result some of the trade printed stationery on which the disclaimer appears just below where the typewriter puts the words "Dear Sirs."

President Page, in his annual address to the Seed Trade Association at the Marblehead convention, referred to the importance of this point and there was a general discussion of it, with the result that a committee consisting of Curtis Nye Smith, attorney for the association; Kirby B. White, of D. M. Ferry & Co., and S. F. Leonard, of Leonard Seed Co., was appointed to consider and report direct to the members through Secretary Kendel on the need for the general adoption of the new position for the disclaimer.

That other trades are adopting the conspicuous position for the disclaimer and statement of business terms is shown by the accompanying photograpic reproduction of a coal dealers' letter-head which reached The Review last week.

Cummin	50	622

In the same period the imports of bulbs, trees and plants were valued at $1,900.

ESSEX SEED CROPS.

In Essex, that great seed growing center in England, the crops hold out fair promise for the harvest. There was dry weather early in the season, followed by unusual heat in July, but sweet peas in particular appear to have profited by the conditions, and the crop will be the best for several years. The acreage of cabbage, an important crop, is less than it usually is, and the average yield per plant will be light. No more than a light crop of beet is expected, with average crops of turnips. Parsnips promise only a light crop and the seed is in demand, consequent upon a shortage in other sections. Parsley and carrot also will be below requirements and are being held at stiff prices. Of radish not more than three-fourths of a full crop is expected. Peas ripened

KING'S VIEW OF U. S.

E. W. King, head of the well known seed growing firm at Coggeshall, Essex, England, recently made a trip to America, and the following paragraphs are culled from his account of his trip:

"For the progress of one's business, I have found traveling most essential, and being so intently interested in sweet peas, decided to go to California, and see for myself the methods adopted by the growers there. I was rather surprised to hear from the growers that we were the first English wholesale growers to inspect the crops in the growing season. I may mention I had a friend and companion with me, a well known Essex seed grower, which made the trip more enjoyable.

"On arrival at New York, I found telegrams awaiting from W. Atlee Burpee to give him a visit at his Fordhook farm before starting across the continent of America. I spent a pleasant time inspecting his elaborate trials. I say elaborate, for I have never seen such good and extensive trials of cabbages, onions, sweet peas, pansies, etc., as I did at Fordhook. The cabbage trials alone covered three acres. Visiting his establishment at Philadelphia was another pleasure. Machinery of all the lates types was to be seen, but before passing on I was much struck with the thoughtfulness Mr. Burpee has for his employees; in addition to a restaurant, one of the most pleasant rooms in the building was devoted to the comfort of his female assistants; it was fitted up in fine style; after assistants had partaken of lunch, there were lounge chairs for them to rest on, books and periodicals to read, and a smoke room for the men. Of all the establishments I have visited I have never seen the welfare of the assistants looked after better than I did at W. Atlee Burpee's.

"Arrived at Los Angeles I first visited the growers of that district. The soil being light, found they had to resort to irrigation, which is an expensive item, but the rapid growth after irrigation doubtless repays.

"Working our way up the coast we pass Ventura, which is the great valley for growing lima beans; from here onwards to San Francisco, the growers are blessed with more moisture, and though there is no rain from April to November, we found plenty of moisture

Initiative, not precedent, makes the successful man of today. The business genius is the man who knows today what the people will want tomorrow. Initiative is made up of dreaming and action—separate these and the first becomes futility, and the second, labor. Initiative is what you want—do things, let the other fellow follow. Every grower in this country who retails his products should have cold storage Giganteum and he should plant them soon. The wholesalers need some too, to take care of the followers, who come tumbling after and want flowers in the fall to supply their trade. Horseshoe Brand Giganteum are of very superior quality, planted and cultivated with the greatest of care and not dug until they are fully ripened—everything done for the good of the bulb, and now offered to you for immediate or future delivery, at very reasonable prices.

two inches below the surface. The growers make every effort to retain that moisture till July by keeping the surface soil in fine condition. In summer the breezes swing like a pendulum between ocean and mountains, keeping the temperature pleasant. The soil and climate of the valleys are perfectly adapted for seed growing, and we were much surprised to hear that good crops can be produced year after year without any manure, whereas we English growers have to spend £3 to £5 per acre on manure for a seed crop. Rents are much dearer, and we were also surprised to hear labor was considerably more expensive than in England and the continent of Europe. Most of the work is done by Chinese, Japs and Mexicans, who are able to command 7 to 8 shillings per day; wages are a heavy item with the growers. On most farms we found the foreman to be a Chinaman; they are considered most trustworthy and preferred to Japs.

"The well known Chinaman, Henry Ohn, was away in China, having taken a year's leave, so did not have pleasure in meeting him, but I met Lock, another noted Chinaman, who appeared practical in selection and roguing, having a sharp eye for colors, etc. I was surprised to hear that head Chinamen on the ranches get £10 to £15 a month. With labor so high it is important for growers to grow in large breadths, and doubtless it will not pay them to go in for crossing and growing on from single plants to get a new variety.

"The acreage of sweet peas was larger than I expected, and many will be surprised to hear that one grower has over 500 acres of sweet peas alone, in addition to other seeds. Owing to late rains, a large acreage got planted late and will not produce the crop equal to early sowing. I was much surprised to find several acres of what I call obsolete varieties, such as Kathleen Tracey, Hon. F. Bouverie, Lovely, Firefly, Queen of England, Brilliant, etc., when the same color can be had in newer varieties with size twice as large. For instance, why Queen of England, when Dorothy Eckford is the finest and largest white of the grandifloras; also Mars, when King Edward is a much finer bloom? In mixtures, I came across a large acreage containing mostly old varieties; Blanche Ferry was prominent.

Giant-Flowering CYCLAMEN

For the last 15 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed bearing Cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no fizzle of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers, that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize-winner. Received first and second prizes at the Toledo Florists' Club meeting early in November, when blooming Cyclamens were scarce. Seed of this, my own grown strain, in five separate colors, $1.00 per 100; $6.00 per 1000; $25.00 per 5000.

HYDRANGEAS

For Summer Flowering

We have an unusually fine lot of Hydrangeas, which have been held dormant all winter. These plants are now in bud and bloom, and will flower in fine shape during July and August. We have a fine lot of blue Hydrangeas, as well as pink. Plants are in splendid shape for immediate use, and will flower during July and August—at a time of the year when they are in the greatest demand. We can furnish these plants in ordinary butter tubs at $2.00 and $3.00 each. Plants in new cedar tubs, painted green, with handles, as follows: Well budded plants in 14-inch tubs, $3.00 each; 16-inch tubs, $4.00 and $5.00 each.

FERNS

We have an exceptionally fine lot of Boston Ferns of the Harrisii type; also a splendid lot of Pierson Ferns, good, bushy, well-grown plants, in 8-inch pots, that will please the most critical buyer, $1.00 each.

LILIUM HARRISII

(The Bermuda Easter Lily)

We offer a selected and carefully grown stock of the original pure Harrisii. There are only one or two lots of bulbs on the island as good as the stock that we offer. We take pleasure in offering this stock, because it will be found to be very superior to the average stock that is generally offered. This is one of the healthiest and cleanest lots, and will give much better satisfaction than the stock usually obtainable. Our customers who had Harrisii from us last year stated it was the best they had received in years. We have only a limited stock, which we are offering, and when stock is exhausted we shall have no more to offer this season. Fine selected bulbs, 6/7-inch, 350 to the case, $16.00 per case, or full 1000 lots at $45 00 per 1000; 7/9-inch, 200 to the case, $17.00 per case, or full 1000 lots at $80.00 per 1000; 9/11-inch, 100 to the case, $18.00 per case, or full 1000 lots at $175.00 per 1000.

been a great eye opener, especially as stocks varied very much. I told several that if they wanted English trade they cannot keep stocks too true.

"I have been much impressed with the genial feeling there is, not only among seedsmen, but also the seed growers of America. There is not that jealous feeling that there is in England and Germany. Seedsmen will take you on or give you a letter of introduction to another seedsman, and growers will do the same.

"After spending a pleasant time with the growers, I returned on R. M. S. Olympic, the largest vessel afloat, making her maiden voyage from America, and I was fortunate in having the pleasant company of Mr. and Mrs. W. Atlee Burpee and two sons, who are visiting the growers of Europe, and hope they will have as pleasant a time as we had in America. Though we saw some mighty smart things in America, one of the smartest was, about two hours after leaving New York, to see an aeroplane flying towards the Olympic, and after hovering over her drop a parcel for Mr. Burpee, he having sent a Marconigram that he had left an important article in New York. It was safely delivered and the event caused great excitement on board."

NURSERY NEWS.

AMERICAN ASSOCIATION OF NURSERYMEN.

Officers for 1911-12: Pres., J. H. Dayton, Painesville, O.; Vice-pres., W. H. Wyman, North Abington, Mass.; Sec'y, John Hall, Rochester, N. Y.; Treas., C. L. Yates, Rochester, N. Y. Thirty-seventh annual meeting, Boston, June, 1912.

THE Wolverine Coöperative Nursery Co., of Paw Paw, Mich., held a special meeting June 26, which not only the stockholders, but the farmers and business men of the vicinity, were invited to attend. One of the projects considered was the establishment of a general market for all kinds of produce.

THE Canadian Department of Agriculture has issued a bulletin containing "The Destructive Insect and Pest Act" and the regulations issued thereunder. The law, assented to May 4, 1910, prohibits the importation of nursery stock, except through certain designated ports at designated seasons, and the regulations promulgated for the enforcement of the act provide for the fumigation of the stock in the fumigation houses provided for that purpose, after which certificates are issued, without which no imported nursery stock may be taken out of bond. Nurserymen exporting to Canada should send to the Hon. Sydney A. Fisher, Minister of Agriculture, Ottawa, Can., for a copy of the bulletin.

CANADIAN RECIPROCITY.

The United States has done its part, at last, in the adoption of the Canadian reciprocity bill, but the bill will not go into effect until the Canadian Parliament adopts it.

The bill contains two paragraphs relating to nursery products, the idea being that the duties proposed shall be identical in the two countries. They are as follows:

"Grapevines, gooseberry, raspberry and currant bushes, seventeen and one-half per centum ad valorem."

"Trees: Apple, cherry, peach, pear, plum and quince, of all kinds, and small peach trees known as June buds, two and one-half cents each."

Under the existing laws Canada levies on grapevines, gooseberry, raspberry and currant bushes a duty of twenty per cent, while the United States duty is twenty-five per cent. Therefore our reduction is thirty per cent as against twelve per cent reduction to be made by Canada.

On apple, peach, cherry, pear, plum and quince, the Canadian duty now is 3 cents each, while the United States duty is $1 per thousand, $2 per thousand, or twenty-five per cent ad valorem, according to the classification given by the appraisers. The statisticians in the Bureau of Trade Relations, U. S. Department of State, figure that the new Canadian rate is equivalent to a reduction in our favor of 16.67 per cent.

What Canada imported from us in the year ending March 31, 1911, and which would be affected by the treaty, together with the reduction in duty effected, is shown in the following table:

Article.	Quantity.	Total value.	Duties collec'd.	Duty to be remitt'd.
Grapevines..	23,672	$ 1,157	$ 231.40	$ 28.93

APHIS ON PINES.

I am sending under separate cover a piece of pine which is infested with white fly. Please let me know how to kill the insects. E. L.

The pine shoot forwarded was covered with a species of white aphis which in hot, dry seasons is particularly troublesome on some species of pines and spruces, the stems often being perfectly white with it. If your trees are of large size, it will be difficult to destroy the pests, unless you have a spraying pump. All the aphides must be sprayed, and it is necessary to hit them with any solution used to destroy them. For small and medium sized trees an ordinary force pump or knapsack sprayer will answer well, but a more powerful pump is necessary to reach trees thirty to seventy-five feet high. Use kerosene emulsion, Whale Oil soap or Ivory soap, one pound to five gallons of water, or any of the nicotine extracts, diluted as per directions on boxes or cans. Poisons of any kind are of no value. Use a nozzle, such as the Vermorel or Bordeaux, to produce a fine, misty spray.

C. W.

CATALPA LOSING ITS FOLIAGE.

I am sending some leaves from a tree, of which I do not know the name. The tree is about eight feet high, with a top shaped like an umbrella. I think it is a Japanese tree of some kind. It was in apparently good condition, but suddenly started to wilt on top and in two days it was withered almost completely and the leaves are dropping off after drying up. Would the extreme heat cause this? F. M. R.

The leaves appear to be those of Catalpa Bungei, which is frequently grown in standard umbrella shape. Intense heat, running up to 100 degrees in the shade, often causes foliage to turn brown and fall off in this way, particularly if it comes after a comparatively cool spell. Probably, however, the tree will make new foliage and not be lost. Keep the soil well stirred, and if all the foliage disappears head the shoots back a little. This will assist in starting new growth. A soaking of water will also be of benefit if the weather should be dry. C. W.

REAPPRAISEMENTS.

The customs authorities have announced the following reappraisements of interest to the trade:

Nursery Stock.—From M. Alderden, Aalsmeer. Exported March 11, 1911, entered at New York. File No. 59198. Invoice No. 26563. Board 1.—Pyramid boxwood, 3¼ by 4¼ feet, entered at 1.10, advanced to 1.50 florin each. Bush, ditto, 3 by 4 feet, entered at 1, advanced to 1.25 florin each. Add packing. Previously published in reappraisement No. 19612, June 22, 1911.

Nursery Stock.—From W. Van Kleef & Sons, Rotterdam. Exported March 3, 1911, entered at New York. File No. 58593. Invoice No. 18639. Board 1.—Pyramidal box trees, 3½ by 4 feet, entered at 0.65 dollar each. No advance. Ditto, 5 feet, entered at 0.80, advanced to 1.20 dollars each. Ditto, 4 feet, entered at 0.65, advanced to 0.75 dollar each. Add cases, packing, and freight. Previously published in reappraisement No. 19609. June 22, 1911.

TRANSPLANTING WALNUTS.

I have about 3,000 walnut trees about 5 years old, which I should like to transplant next fall or in the spring. What do you think will be the best method and time? Some tell me to first cut the tap root off, but I do not know when I should do that, and if it would help any or not. I live in the northern part of Iowa. B. T. D.

If the walnuts have not been transplanted since being raised, they are sure to have long tap roots which must be cut back when transplanting is done. The best times to transplant are in late fall—last half of October or first half of November—and early spring, as soon as the frost leaves the ground. I think in your state the spring would be the safest season to move the trees. The tops may need heading back, too. You can wait and see how the plants break before doing this, but a pruning back will insure a much greater percentage of them growing. It is, of course, easy to carry up a main lead again. C. W.

NAME OF TREE.

I wish you would tell me the name of the berries sent under separate cover and also their use. They grow on large trees like cherry trees. They call them here wild cherries. B. T. D.

The name of the tree is Prunus Cerasus serotina, wild black cherry. The fruit is rather too bitter to use preserved, but is used a good deal in making cherry rum, which is valuable in cases of dysentery. C. W.

PACIFIC COAST.

Albany, Ore.—Mrs. C. Blount, of Sixth and Railroad streets, has retired from the florists' trade.

Stockton, Cal.—Fred A. Potter is planning to install a steam heating system in his greenhouses on North Monroe street.

Spokane, Wash.—John H. Starbird, who owns five and one-half acres of land near this city, is planning to cover the whole tract with a range of greenhouses. He expects to begin work at once in the erection of the first section of the houses, so as to be able to place some of his vegetables on the market in the coming fall and winter.

Anacortes, Wash.—H. Hansen, who for the last two years has been employed at the greenhouses of the H. Harrington Co., at Vashon, Wash., has returned to this town, where he formerly resided and where he owns a 10-acre garden tract. He will begin business as a market gardener, with poultry as a side line. The railroad facilities are such as to furnish quick and cheap delivery to the principal Puget Sound markets.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Business is extremely quiet. The summer resorts have practically drained the city of the flower buying public; therefore we must be contented with a small margin of profit, as a considerable portion of the stock is consigned to the rubbish heap. Sweet peas and roses are showing the effects of the hot, dry weather in their impaired keeping qualities. The thermometer registered 97 degrees in the shade for several days, which is altogether unusual for this section. The quiet days afford an opportunity to take inventory and to repair and renovate the stores.

Various Notes.

E. A. Humfeld, of Kansas City, was enthusiastic over the quality of flowers here at this season, as compared with stock in his home city.

Louis Goodfriend, representing Wertheimer Bros., is calling on the local trade.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

The weather continues immoderately cool for this season of the year and our display of summer flowers is the best that we have ever seen. With several weeks of cool days and cooler nights at this time, everything is of better color and substance than usual. Business, however, is extremely quiet. Up to three weeks ago the funeral orders took up most of the white and light colored stock, but since that time there has been practically no demand for these or colored stock, either. With most of the buyers out of town there is little doing in a social way and there is likely to be quite a slump for a few weeks yet. The buyers have such a surfeit of blossoms to select from that only extra fancy roses or similar flowers move at all.

Various Notes.

Luke's Flower Shop, on Powell street, has retired from the retail trade and the premises are advertised for rent.

GRAND ISLAND, NEB.

E. Williams, known in the trade as Williams the Florist, has three new houses in process of construction. One of them, 24x116, takes the place of two old houses which he tore down; another is 16x85, and the third, a lean-to, is 10x85. Mr. Williams has closed his downtown store for the summer months. As this store was the first place of the kind in the city, it was well patronized, and the customers greatly appreciated the convenience of not having to go to the greenhouses when in need of flowers. This season's business, Mr. Williams says, has been the best in his experience. Though the dry weather in June interfered with the planting of stock in the field, the recent rains have put the plants in fairly good condition. The carnations have come through the drought in good shape, with the help of the "dust mulch" which was produced by keeping the surface soil well stirred.

The florists of this vicinity are figuring on a good display at the state fair in the fall. The State Florists' Society will also hold a meeting there at the same time, as most of the members attend the fair every year. With the revised premium list, competition this year will be keen.

The writer recently visited Kearney, Neb., and found the plant of the Kearney Floral Co., under the management of H. L. Hunt, in excellent condition. Mr. Hunt says trade is good, with a scarcity of suitable stock on account of replanting, which is the case generally.

Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Green, of Fremont, Neb., spent two days here a short time ago and reported that trade was good in their town. Mr. Green is doing some building and is installing a larger boiler. E.

The Market.

With the temperature hovering around 99 degrees in the shade, outdoor flowers have suffered some this season. It has rained and is much cooler again and the prospects are better. Roses are fair. Carnations are small. Speciosum lilies and sweet peas are good. Harrisii lilies and gladioli are seen in quantities. The supply is equal to the demand.

Various Notes.

Henry Baur, of Philadelphia, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Baur and will remain in Erie about a month.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Phillips recently spent several weeks in Pittsburg visiting relatives and friends.

Bud Mars, the aviator, met with a painful accident while flying here last week and much sympathy was extended him by Erie citizens, the florists being kept busy.

There are many people of note at present from Philadelphia, Cincinnati and Indianapolis in connection with the Perkins-Franklin case and there is an extra large demand for flowers while this case is on. B. P.

UTICA, N. Y.

Wm. P. Pfeifer has a stock of carnations that are the admiration of all who see them. Plants with five strong shoots are rather rare this season, owing to the drought, but almost every plant here can show that number. They will not be lifted until late.

Frank Baker prides himself on having the finest stock of small ferns that he has had for some time. He was visited by some of the craft during the hot spell and invited to head the party for the convention at Baltimore. Mrs. Baker served some of the lemonade that has made her famous. Harry Mathews expects to be with the crowd and do a little shooting at the same time; he has a splendid dog, which will accompany him. "Doc" Rowlands says he will be with the crowd and expects to have everything planted by that time.

Brant Bros. have a constant call for Killarney and Maryland.

Peter Crowe says Adiantum Croweanum was never in better shape and he has shipped immense quantities both of the plants and cut fronds. M.

Salt Lake City, Utah.—F. A. Huish has purchased property at the corner of First South and Second West streets and will build a greenhouse there.

REMEMBER

Araucarias Are Our Specialty

No one can beat us in this line.

WARNING.

DON'T BE DECEIVED! Now, as well as for the last 25 years, we hold the ground as leaders in the importing, growing and shipping of our specialty, the Araucaria.

ARAUCARIAS. 6000 just received per Steamer Marquette from Antwerp, Belgium, more coming by next steamer. Araucaria Excelsa, Robusta Compacta and Excelsa Glauca, palms, etc. Florists, you know we are leaders for the last 25 years in importing, growing and shipping this so well known evergreen decorative plant. The Araucaria, more in favor now than ever. Almost every florist knows our Araucarias, therefore no argument is needed for our goods. We know what our customers want and need, and have provided for them and set aside special specimen plants of the Spring Importation 1910. These specimen plants will stand the climate everywhere and are especially adapted for decorating lawns, porches, verandas, bungalows, private summer residences, hotels and boarding-houses at the seashore or elsewhere. Our prices are very low for fine stock.

☞Our so well-known Christmas Begonia Erfordii, a constant bloomer for the fall holidays, and during the whole winter is never without a flower; in light pink, pink, dark pink and turning gradually into a bright red (big trusses of flowers), 2½-in. pots, $5.00; 3-in., 8c; 4-in., 12c.

KANSAS CITY, MO.

The Market.

Stock has been scarce. Roses and carnations are scarce and small. Few asters or gladioli are yet to be seen. The weather has been hot and dry. Sweet peas are not plentiful and their stems are short. The downtown stores are not making much of a display in their windows at present.

Various Notes.

D. Freudenthal reports that good stock is hard to get. He has been looking for some good ferns for decorations, but failed to find any.

Samuel Murray had a pretty show window last week, consisting of fancy caladiums in abundance.

The Wm. Rock Flower Co. recently had an attractive window, representing a pond of water, with an overshot water wheel running. The pond was lined with gravel and rough bark, and a number of little ducks were swimming in the water. The surroundings of the water were so arranged as to give the whole scene the appearance of being in the woods. Many spectators were attracted to the window.

W. H. Sawvel has one large house in chrysanthemums that are not excelled by anything in this city. They are in solid benches and were planted early. His grower is trying to show this city how to grow good mums. His roses, also, are doing exceptionally well. They were planted in May in solid benches. He has one large house already planted to carnations and is rushing the work in the other four houses. He will house 35,000 plants. One house will be planted to sweet peas. He is now contracting for several thousand lily bulbs. From the way his stock looks, there is a good prospect for some fine stock for this winter. Mr. Sawvel was confined to his home for three weeks with a broken knee cap. He is now able to be up, but moves slowly on crutches.

W. H. H.

Burlington, Vt.—A range of greenhouses is being erected at the University of Vermont, and will be used jointly by the university for instruction and by the experiment station for investigation. The buildings will consist of a two-story head house, 25x60, and three even-span greenhouses, each 20x60. The greenhouse at the experiment farm has been in use about twenty years and will be torn down. The material for the new houses was furnished by the John C. Moninger Co., of Chicago.

GERANIUMS

The steady increase in the demand for Geraniums is proving beyond a doubt that they are the universal favorites with the flower buying public, that they are today more popular than ever before; in fact, the demand during the past season nearly exhausted the available supply. We are increasing our stock for propagation to the extent that we shall produce them in enormous quantity next season, and feel confident that we shall be in a position to fill your orders to your entire satisfaction, but would suggest that your order be placed early. We have already booked heavily on some kinds. Good standard sorts at $18.50 per 1000, from 2-inch pots.

A splendid stock in 3-inch pots, ready for immediate shipment, at $3.00 per 100 and up, including Ivy-leaved in such varieties as Lycroft's Surprise, Mme. Thibaut, Mrs. Banks, Alliance, Pierre Crozy, etc. Variegated Foliage: Silver Leaf Nutt, Mrs. Pollock, Sophie Dumaresque, Mt. of Snow, L'Eleganta and Duke of Edinburgh.

Achyranthes Emersoni, Alternantheras, red and yellow, Coleus, Lemon Verbenas, Swainsona Alba, Hardy English Ivy, 2-inch, $2.00 per 100; 3-inch, $3.00 per 100.

Greenhouse Heating.

It is reported that if the rate war among the Pocahontas coal dealers in the Chicago district continues a week or two longer there will be a further 10-cent reduction in the list price. Looks like a good time to buy.

Subscribers are invited to write the editor of the Heating Department, describing their troubles or asking any questions regarding the heating of greenhouses, the piping or boiler-room. But please do not ask us to make a choice of apparatus for you. Each article advertised in this department of The Review is good, and the advertisers sell them on their merits.

ONE KANSAS HOUSE.

I have a greenhouse, 24x80, and I wish to install a heating system. I have been advised to put in a steam vacuum system. Would this be better than hot water? I shall probably extend the plant. E. G. C.

For houses up to 200 feet in length, where the boiler can be placed below the level of the returns, many growers prefer an open tank hot water system to any other. Use one 2½-inch flow for three 2-inch returns in each coil, and use as many coils as are needed to furnish the temperature desired. In shorter houses a larger number of returns can be supplied by a 2½-inch flow pipe, but care should be taken that there is no more than 400 square feet of radiating surface, including that of the flow pipe.

About four coils, each consisting of one 2½-inch flow pipe and three 2-inch returns, or three coils with four returns, will heat a house 24x80 feet to 60 degrees.

HEATED BY A HOT AIR FLUE.

I am building a greenhouse, 12x25 feet and nine feet high to the ridge, with 4-foot double walls. There are two feet of glass in the south side and the east end is glass. I wish to heat it with a flue. What kind and size of flue will be best and what size of firebox will be required? I want a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees, with the outside temperature sometimes as low as 15 degrees below zero. The house is fairly well protected from wind. The location is New York state. J. E.

To heat a house 12x25 feet to 60 degrees by means of a hot air flue, build a furnace at one end, about three to four feet long, fifteen inches wide and eighteen inches high inside, and then run a brick flue, about 8x12 inches, from the furnace to the farther end of the house. Care should be taken to give the flue a slight rise all of the way. If the flue is on the side of the house from which the prevailing winds come, the temperature will be fairly even in the house, but if this can not be secured, carry the flue across the end and back on the other side of the house before connecting it with the chimney.

TWO OHIO HOUSES.

We are about to erect two connected houses, each 18x75. The side walls will be six feet high and will consist of three feet of concrete and three feet of glass. The height to the ridge will be eleven and one-half feet. The houses will run east and west. The west end and north side will be protected by the boiler-room and shed. The boiler is to be placed at the west end. The south house will be used for carnations and the north house for general bedding plants.

We want your idea about partitioning off a part, say twenty feet, so as to start in a modest way with roses. Will you tell us the best way to pipe the houses, using 2-inch pipe for the returns? Will a 3½-inch pipe be sufficient for a flow in each house, or would two 2½-inch flows be better? The boiler will be in a pit five feet deep. Will it be necessary to tap it for a 4-inch flow and return? The houses will each have two raised side benches, three feet four inches wide, and a solid bed, six and one-half feet wide, in the center. The boiler is of the Scotch marine type and is rated at is the new method of draining low or reduced pressure heating systems of both water and air. It converts your gravity system into a vacuum system.

The "Morehead Condenser Trap"

IDENTIFIED WITH THE——

MOREHEAD SYSTEM of STEAM LINE DRAINAGE and BOILER FEEDING

No vacuum valves required. All pockets and low spots in the heating system are kept absolutely free from condensation, improving the circulation. Enables you to carry a lower boiler pressure.

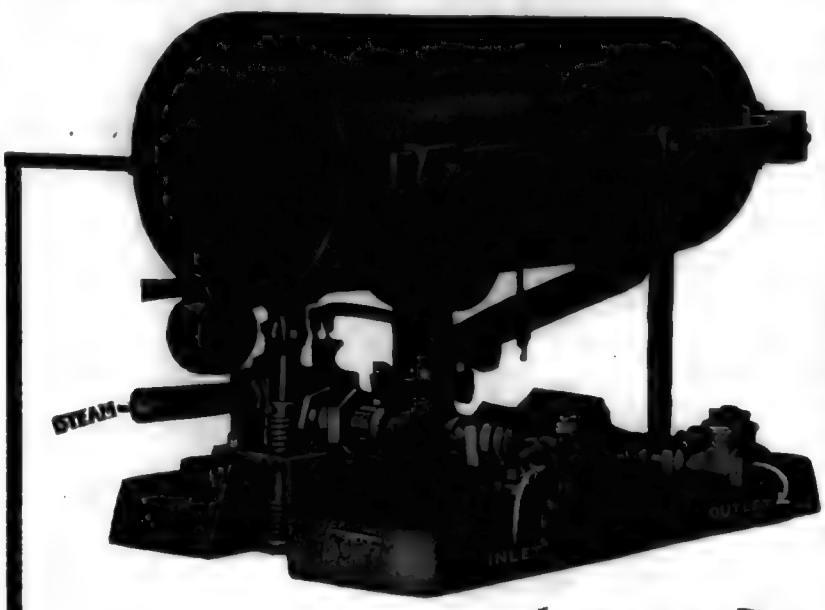
ten horse-power. Is this large enough for another house of the same size, if we should wish to add it in the future? The outside temperature here seldom falls below zero. C. B.

It will be advisable to use two 2½-inch flow pipes in each house, though one 3-inch flow might be used overhead. In addition to the two flows, there should be ten 2-inch returns in the carnation house and twelve in the north house, for 60 degrees. The boiler is probably large enough to heat a third house to 50 degrees. A 3-inch connection for flows and returns should answer for each house.

The house heated to 60 degrees will be about right for roses, and a part may be partitioned off as proposed.

PROVIDENCE.



The Market.

There has been some improvement in the weather conditions, inasmuch as there has been a decided drop in temperature during the last week, but there has been no rain and the ground is dried almost to a powder. Vegetation of all kinds is suffering, and wells, ponds and springs are drying up. The outlook is far from promising.

Sweet peas and asters show a trifle more abundance than a week ago, but are not up to standard, while roses forced by the hot spell show small, undeveloped heads. A few of the growers who have used water regardless of their meter readings are securing a small amount of good stock. Prices have shown but little tendency to stiffen, but it is evident that there will be an advance if improvements in the weather do not come in a few days.

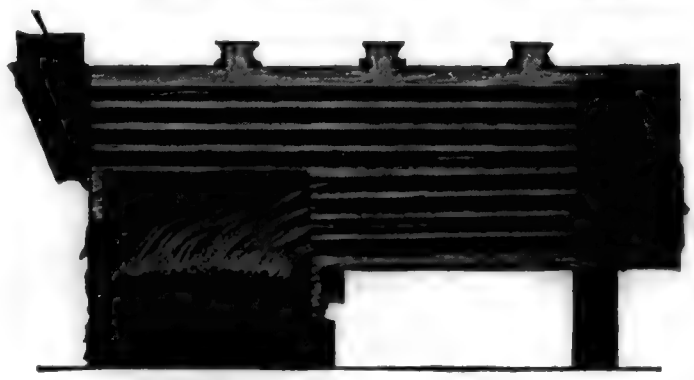
Seldom at this season of the year has there been such a demand for funeral work, and there have been some days when the florists have had to scratch around pretty actively to obtain what they wanted.



Club Meeting and Outing.

The regular monthly meeting of the Florists' and Gardeners' Club of Rhode Island was held Monday evening, July 17, at which there was a fair attendance for this season of the year, with President Robert Johnston in the chair. The matter of taking the usual summer recess for two months was discussed, and it was finally voted not to discontinue the meetings.

The annual summer outing of the club occurred Wednesday, July 19, and those who went had twice the fun the tickets cost them. The committee in charge arranged a blind trip and this had the effect of keeping several from attending, but those who responded, and there was a faithful dozen, assembled at the city hall at 9 o'clock and boarded an electric car for Pawtucket, where a large motor boat was in waiting. The party, with the commissary department, were soon on board and the boat headed down Narragansett Bay. An hour's run brought the party to Hope island, and here fishing was the order. A pool was made up which was to fall to the lot of the member catching the first fish. Hardly had the lines struck the water than Jim Dillon began to pull in. He tugged until he grew red in the face and some declared that he either had a shark or was hooked on the bottom of the bay. He succeeded at length in bringing into view what many term a "monkey" fish, but what was, strictly speaking, a skate. On the strength of this Mr. Dillon claimed the pool, but as the skate is not an edible fish, a dispute arose. As the next claimant, however, could only produce a chogset of less than three inches in length, the award was finally made to Mr. Dillon. Alec Macrae was high liner, although there were enough fish caught by the party for everyone to have a good mess.

After tiring of fishing the party proceeded to Rock Point, where a special shore dinner was served and then "Homeward bound" was the cry. Those who attended included Robert Johnston, Alec Macrae, James Dillon, William Chappell, Cornelius Hartstraw, James Hockey, Eugene McCarron, Mr. Reilly, Mr. Collins, Michael Sweeney, Eugene Appleton and Lawrence Hay.

WHAT THE USERS SAY ABOUT KROESCHELL BOILERS

Use Kroeschell Boilers and Kroeschell Generators and Piping System; Satisfaction Guaranteed

The Kroeschell Generator purchased from you some time since is giving excellent satisfaction. It not only adds to the capacity of the boiler on account of the increased circulation of the hot water, and consequently less piping is required, but it also seems to maintain a steadier and more even temperature all over the houses where it is in use. For instance, the new house I have just completed, 43 ft. wide by 265 ft. long, and piped according to your instructions, is not varying more than two degrees all over the house at any time, and I consider that remarkable for so large a house. Another advantage is that, where roses are grown, sulphur applied to the pipes for checking mildew is much more effective.

A CROP UNDER THE BENCHES.

What will be the most profitable crop to grow under benches that are from three to five feet high? Our houses are new and the ground is fresh and sweet. The benches are five feet wide and 200 feet long. It seems to us that there should be something profitable grown under the benches. M. F. & V. C.

Do not figure on any profit coming from under the benches. It will average you nothing above the trouble and nuisance. I have grown mushrooms under benches in carnation houses, some rhubarb and parsley along the edges and asparagus in warmer houses, but I do not put any crop under the benches now. I prefer to have the heating pipes under them and thus get more profit off the top of the benches.

Nothing will do well under benches where the heating pipes are, if benches of standard height are used. I have noticed many growers who have tried everything and have given it up as poor business. There are times when it is convenient, if temporarily crowded, to put bulb flats and many other things along the edge of the path, but it is no place to leave them long. H. G.

A PERFECT GREENHOUSE HOSE

FURNISHED in continuous lengths of 500 feet. An exceptionally high grade hose manufactured with a woven jacket insertion instead of cotton duck, and with specially selected rubber in the inner tube and cover.

The woven jacket construction makes a stronger hose than can be obtained from cotton duck, and absolutely precludes the possibility of cover opening at seam—a common cause of failure of hose made on cotton duck. This construction also gives a more flexible hose and reduces the possibility of kinking.

"Magic" Hose is guaranteed to stand a pressure of 500 pounds per square inch, although its bursting pressure is far in excess of this.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Department of Registration.

As no objections have been filed, public notice is hereby given that the registration of the rose Wilhelmina, by Hoerber Bros., of Chicago, Ill., becomes complete. H. B. Dorner, Sec'y.
July 13, 1911.

MONTGOMERY, ALA.

The extremely hot June has given place to a cooler and more seasonable July. In June we had twenty-six days that were almost intolerable. At no time during the day did the mercury get below 90 degrees and it often touched 100 at the Government station situated on the roof of the post-office, while 107 degrees was the street record. Under such conditions it was difficult to make much headway in planting in the houses, but by keeping everlastingly at it success was attained.

Carnations look fine. By the new system of careful selection of cuttings and close attention, Paterson has planted 22,000 with scarcely any loss, and certainly finer stock was never seen in this section of the country. Roses look good and are far ahead of this period last year. Business continues good, but is mostly funeral work, the larger part being out-of-town orders. The slug that attacks ferns has made its appearance again and threatens serious damage, although the entire stock of the Paterson greenhouses has been removed to the city greenhouses and a careful watch kept for the butterfly that lays the eggs that produces the grubs, which are not as numerous as at the greenhouses proper.

Roses in the open ground look fine, considering the long dry spell, and now that the rainy season has set in will improve. We can get a larger and finer growth here in one season than can be produced in the north in two. Paterson contemplates building this fall and winter six houses, 30x150, at the country place, for carnations, giving the present carnation range at the home place over to roses and taking the present rose range for pot plants. They intend going in heavily for palms, and will devote one entire house to orchids.

Harry Von Trott is removing his entire plant, purchased from S. B. Stern & Co., farther out in the country, and has renamed his place the Morning View Greenhouses. W. C. C.

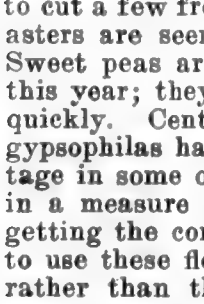
The Market.

There is little change in market conditions. Good carnations continue to be scarce and are cleaned up early in the day. Red roses are not to be had at all and white are almost as hard to get, although the growers are beginning to cut a few from the new plants. A few asters are seen, and also some dahlias. Sweet peas are hardly up to the mark this year; they are inclined to drop off quickly. Centaureas, snapdragons and gypsophilas have been shown to advantage in some of the shop windows, and in a measure have been the means of getting the consent of a few customers to use these flowers in funeral designs, rather than the regulation carnations and roses, which are scarce.

Various Notes.



George H. Cooper has secured a lease on the store at 1506 Broadway, heretofore occupied by the Scott-Martin Floral Co. He has purchased their stock and fixtures, and will conduct a first-class flower store at this address, with F. B. Tinker in charge. His store at 833 Fifteenth street will be conducted as heretofore.

N. A. Benson has gone to the Gunnison river on a fishing trip.

At the National Real Estate Convention, held last week, about 15,000 columbines, the state flower of Colorado, were distributed among the visitors. These flowers were sent to Denver from the cool mountain towns, where they bloom later than here.

The new store of Harry J. Berry, at 613 Fifteenth street, is quite attractive. Mr. Berry does not believe in "barroom effects" in a flower store, and in place of a counter, with a mirror back of it, he has several tables about the room on which to display his stock.

The flower stand at the corner of Fifteenth and Lawrence streets, conducted by Thomas McDonald, has been closed. The location is an excellent one, but the extremely high rent makes it almost impossible for a florist to make any money. M. R. J.

THE WEEKLY FLORISTS' REVIEW

CAXTON BUILDING

508 South Dearborn Street

CHICAGO

Advertising forms close

TUESDAY

The latest hour at which advertisements, or changes of advertisements, can be accepted is 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Waterbury, Conn.—The business of Alexander Dallas has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $40,000. The incorporators are Alexander Dallas, Catherine Dallas and Walter Dallas.

Eldora, Ia.—J. M. Pierce, of Des Moines, who has been associated with John Polland in the Polland Floral Co., has purchased Mr. Polland's interest in the business and will engage a manager to take Mr. Polland's place at the greenhouses. At last report Mr. Polland had several business openings under consideration, but was still uncertain as to his future course. Mr. Pierce is publisher of the Pierce Farmers' Weekly.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

WHAT THE ACCESSORIES MEAN.

Have you ever realized that your customer takes you as you appear, and by what you put before him?

Do you realize that an appropriate suggestion in a finished way, put into action, counts for more than argument?

If your suggestion makes a favorable impression, then you realize that any arguments or explanations would create confidence, more than would have been the case had the first impression been unfavorable.

Now, it is plainly to be seen and understood that every purchaser judges, and judges well, as you do as a purchaser. The flower buyer not only judges you, but your suggestion and then your finished work. Therefore we must remember that "appearances make lasting impressions, from which opinions are formed." Impressions that are satisfying always bring good returns. S. S.

THE FETTERS AUTOMOBILE.

E. A. Fetters, the Detroit retailer, uses a delivery auto made by the Oliver Motor Car Co. The car has already covered many thousands of miles and, although Mr. Fetters was at first somewhat skeptical about changing from horse to automobile delivery, he has often wondered since how he ever was able to get out his orders before. Recently a whole automobile load of funeral work was delivered to Algonac, Mich., a distance of about 115 miles round trip from Detroit, over bad roads, in the course of an afternoon. The car is equipped with solid tires. H. S.

A FEW SUMMER WINDOWS.

Seasonable Outdoor Scenes.

While it is true that there is less to encourage one to keep up his standard of tasteful window exhibits during the summer, it is also to be remembered that material is more plentiful, more time is at command and a larger variety tempts to new efforts during this season. Let the summer windows smack of outdoor scenes, of cool retreats, with now and then a glimpse of water.

Let some one flower be the principal exhibit sometime during the height of its season. With it use, as an accessory, some other flower which is harmonious, both as to color and style. The amount of the accessory flower should be less in bulk than the principal flower to be shown. Never allow one flower to rival another in brilliancy, quantity or prominence of place in the design. At this time the design is the window decoration. Neither should different colors of the same flower which may be used at the same time be allowed to so rival each other, even though the colors may be harmonious. Let one pronounced color hold the place and all others be subordinate in tone and quantity.

Again, let us bear in mind that foliage plays a prominent part in a floral scheme, and it is just as easy to spoil a fine color effect by the introduction of the wrong foliage as by a discordant note in floral color.

Salvia in a Harvest Field.

The likeness in form of salvia and wheat, together with the color harmony, makes a seasonable and pleasing combination for a window decoration. Of course, provide more of the salvia—not necessarily more in quantity, but at least in effectiveness. Lay on a background of loose wheat over the floor. Damaged sheaves of bleached wheat may be cut and so scattered, or the native ripe wheat may be used. Set the long sprays of the salvia in several wide vessels, using Japanese holders or wire frames to hold the stalks apart as they appear when growing. Use wheat in with the salvia, as if it, too, were growing among the salvia, but in limited quantities. Close around the vessels of salvia rake more loose wheat, making the cluster of salvia look like a patch left standing in the harvest field.

A little behind, or at some other convenient distance, set a high dish, full of the salvia, arranged as the first ones. Bind wheat around it and tie with a sheath of cocoa fiber, bark, a frayed Porto Rico mat, or an immense bunch of fiber ribbon. Continue to strew loose wheat throughout the window. Finish at the rear with a group of naturally placed ferns. The wheat can be used afterward in trimming baskets, or for home-coming dinners, Thanksgiving decorations, as ties for casket sprays or in various other designs for elderly people.

Petunias and White Drapery.

Petunias are often to be had in quantity and ought to make a good window decoration. The value of the decoration will depend somewhat upon the choice of accessory flowers, with perhaps some soft drapery, such as white silk. Upon a pole that extends across the middle of the window lengthwise may hang two curtains of the white silk, one draped toward either side. Mass the petunias solidly behind the curtain and in front. In Kift vases, suspended by violet cord from the curtain pole at regular intervals against the drapery, arrange two or three choice blooms to a vase. Have the arrangement alike in all the vases. Five or six vases to a curtain would probably be enough. The finished design should resemble a conventional decoration on the silk. In this decoration the petunias should be fine specimens of double crimson-purple or the purple and white varieties. The floor groups in the decoration might be benefited by the addition of some white day lilies.

Hydrangeas with Farleyense.

Whatever other uses may be thought fit for the majestic Adiantum Farleyense, it shines with Hydrangea paniculata. A window which shall hold but one immense bunch or basket of these flowers, with their own foliage and a generous allowance of Farleyense fronds, with a train of autumn-shaded ribbon in salmon, yellow and green, makes a creditable decoration. Waterbury, Conn.—The business of Alexander Dallas has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $40,000. The incorporators are Alexander Dallas, Catherine Dallas and Walter Dallas.

Eldora, Ia.—J. M. Pierce, of Des Moines, who has been associated with John Polland in the Polland Floral Co., has purchased Mr. Polland's interest in the business and will engage a manager to take Mr. Polland's place at the greenhouses. At last report Mr. Polland had several business openings under consideration, but was still uncertain as to his future course. Mr. Pierce is publisher of the Pierce Farmers' Weekly.

THE RETAIL FLORIST.....

WHAT THE ACCESSORIES MEAN.

Have you ever realized that your customer takes you as you appear, and by what you put before him?

Do you realize that an appropriate suggestion in a finished way, put into action, counts for more than argument?

If your suggestion makes a favorable impression, then you realize that any arguments or explanations would create confidence, more than would have been the case had the first impression been unfavorable.

Now, it is plainly to be seen and understood that every purchaser judges, and judges well, as you do as a purchaser. The flower buyer not only judges you, but your suggestion and then your finished work. Therefore we must remember that "appearances make lasting impressions, from which opinions are formed." Impressions that are satisfying always bring good returns. S. S.

THE FETTERS AUTOMOBILE.

E. A. Fetters, the Detroit retailer, uses a delivery auto made by the Oliver Motor Car Co. The car has already covered many thousands of miles and, although Mr. Fetters was at first somewhat skeptical about changing from horse to automobile delivery, he has often wondered since how he ever was able to get out his orders before. Recently a whole automobile load of funeral work was delivered to Algonac, Mich., a distance of about 115 miles round trip from Detroit, over bad roads, in the course of an afternoon. The car is equipped with solid tires. H. S.

A FEW SUMMER WINDOWS.

Seasonable Outdoor Scenes.

While it is true that there is less to encourage one to keep up his standard of tasteful window exhibits during the summer, it is also to be remembered that material is more plentiful, more time is at command and a larger variety tempts to new efforts during this season. Let the summer windows smack of outdoor scenes, of cool retreats, with now and then a glimpse of water.

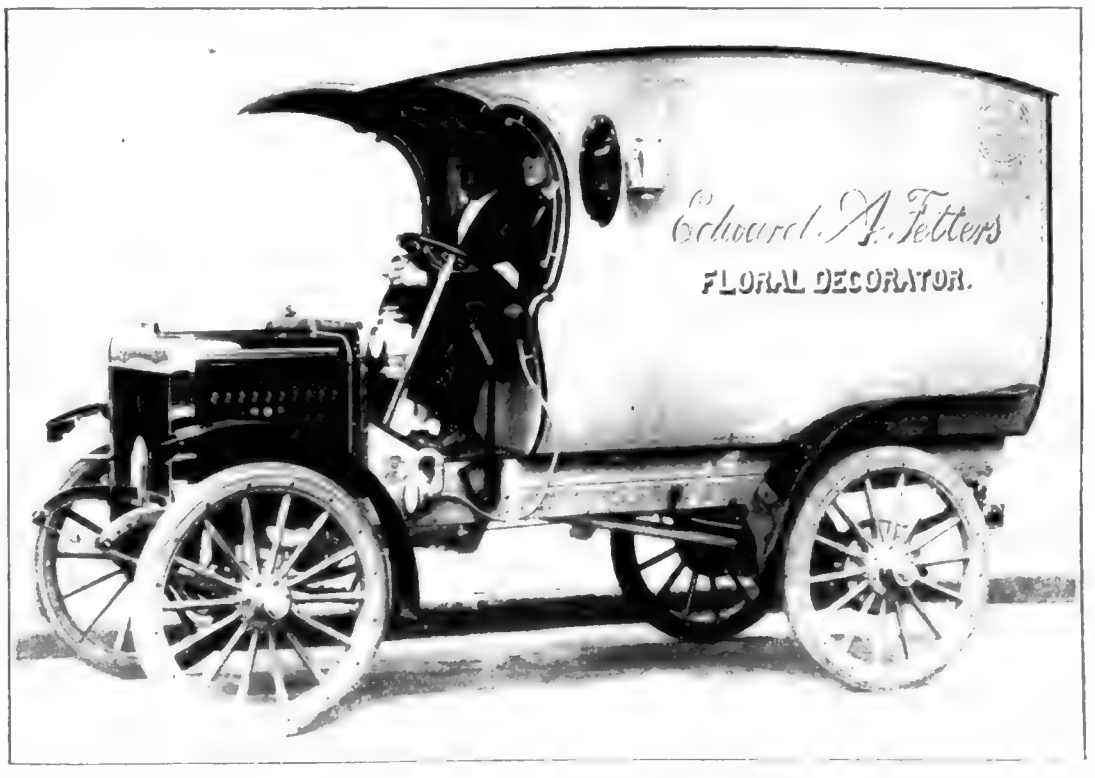
Let some one flower be the principal exhibit sometime during the height of its season. With it use, as an accessory, some other flower which is harmonious, both as to color and style. The amount of the accessory flower should be less in bulk than the principal flower to be shown. Never allow one flower to rival another in brilliancy, quantity or prominence of place in the design. At this time the design is the window decoration. Neither should different colors of the same flower which may be used at the same time be allowed to so rival each other, even though the colors may be harmonious. Let one pronounced color hold the place and all others be subordinate in tone and quantity.

Again, let us bear in mind that foliage plays a prominent part in a floral scheme, and it is just as easy to spoil a fine color effect by the introduction of the wrong foliage as by a discordant note in floral color.

Salvia in a Harvest Field.

The likeness in form of salvia and wheat, together with the color harmony, makes a seasonable and pleasing combination for a window decoration. Of course, provide more of the salvia—not necessarily more in quantity, but at least in effectiveness. Lay on a background of loose wheat over the floor. Damaged sheaves of bleached wheat may be cut and so scattered, or the native ripe wheat may be used. Set the long sprays of the salvia in several wide vessels, using Japanese holders or wire frames to hold the stalks apart as they appear when growing. Use wheat in with the salvia, as if it, too, were growing among the salvia, but in limited quantities. Close around the vessels of salvia rake more loose wheat, making the cluster of salvia look like a patch left standing in the harvest field.

A little behind, or at some other convenient distance, set a high dish, full of the salvia, arranged as the first ones. Bind wheat around it and tie with a sheath of cocoa fiber, bark, a frayed Porto Rico mat, or an immense bunch of fiber ribbon. Continue to strew loose wheat throughout the window. Finish at the rear with a group of naturally placed ferns. The wheat can be used afterward in trimming baskets, or for home-coming dinners, Thanksgiving decorations, as ties for casket sprays or in various other designs for elderly people.



Petunias and White Drapery.

Petunias are often to be had in quantity and ought to make a good window decoration. The value of the decoration will depend somewhat upon the choice of accessory flowers, with perhaps some soft drapery, such as white silk. Upon a pole that extends across the middle of the window lengthwise may hang two curtains of the white silk, one draped toward either side. Mass the petunias solidly behind the curtain and in front. In Kift vases, suspended by violet cord from the curtain pole at regular intervals against the drapery, arrange two or three choice blooms to a vase. Have the arrangement alike in all the vases. Five or six vases to a curtain would probably be enough. The finished design should resemble a conventional decoration on the silk. In this decoration the petunias should be fine specimens of double crimson-purple or the purple and white varieties. The floor groups in the decoration might be benefited by the addition of some white day lilies.

Hydrangeas with Farleyense.

Whatever other uses may be thought fit for the majestic Adiantum Farleyense, it shines with Hydrangea paniculata. A window which shall hold but one immense bunch or basket of these flowers, with their own foliage and a generous allowance of Farleyense fronds, with a train of autumn-shaded ribbon in salmon, yellow and green, makes a creditable decoration. Add a suggestion of salmon pink in a clump of phlox just where the sight fails to detect anything definite in the rear. A ground of oak leaves will make a good setting for this decoration.

For a window of marked contrasts have a decoration of single scarlet geraniums and Shasta daisies, the geraniums being the principal flower. The most brilliant scarlet which betrays yellow blood will be found the best with the yellow of the daisy centers. Something of a more formal design may be attempted with the geraniums in a star and crescent set in a field of daisies. In order to show the design, a sloped background may be arranged. Immense rosette bows of scarlet chiffon, with white centers, will enliven the upper space.

A Colonial Scene, with Dahlias.

The dahlia is a queenly flower, and her court, when held in your window, must needs be dignified and formal. Use colonial vases, if any, and pyramid bays. Have tall white columns, such as are seen at a colonial entrance, flanked at either side by the bays. Top each column with a plant of ivy in a white enameled basket. Range a group of tall yellow and copper-colored dahlias about the base of each pillar. In a flaring direction toward the front of the window set a number of colonial vases with the orange and yellow dahlias. From each vase to the floor drop a single end of ribbon to match. A tight, prim rosette may finish the lower end of the ribbon drape. For the pink and crimson dahlias use the same design.

Another line of reds and yellows, beautifully blended, may be found in cannas. Each stalk will need a tall, slender vase. Over the floor and the base of each vase place a thick mat of green moss, or sphagnum with a green covering. Plant this closely with yellow pansies in bloom. Set in cannas as thickly as seems fit. A few aspidistras may appear in the background, with a group of palms at a disappearing corner.

Further suggestions on summer window displays will be given in a later issue of The Review. G. B.

CHRYSANTHEMUMS

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS.

Feeding.

Early planted stock that has been on the benches from eight to ten weeks will be greatly benefited by a stimulant. The soil is, or should be, full of roots and the plants should be hungry for food. An examination of the soil will soon determine whether this is so or not.

A light mulch of well decomposed fertilizer, either horse or cow manure, is beneficial at this time. It furnishes a certain amount of nourishment, keeps the soil uniformly moist and prevents the surface roots from being burned up by the sun, which is liable to happen along the edges of the benches. Before this fertilizer is used, a sprinkling of bone flour or horn shavings, applied to the bed and lightly rubbed in, is also good. I use the term "bone flour" because it must be of the finest possible texture to be of any benefit to the plants, as it will have only six or seven weeks in which to work, and this is entirely different from using bone on a rose bed, where its gradual dissolution is of benefit all winter and spring. Horn shavings, though not often used, are valuable as a fertilizer. They average high, I believe, in nitrogen, the principal element in plant life. Horn shavings will decay readily under the top-dressing of rotted manure.

This top-dressing should carry the plants for a week or two, when liquid fertilizer may be applied.

The Best Time to Feed.

It is an old saying, which has passed current among mum growers for many years, that the plants should not be fed to any extent until after the bud has set. Any up-to-date grower knows that this is an absolute fallacy. It is really far better to feed the plants well in August, to induce them to make a strong final growth and bud, than to wait until after the bud has set and then feed heavily after all growth is stopped, as the plants at that time will not be in such good condition to take up the food. Heavy applications of food late in the season are also bad for the flower, making it soft and much more liable to damping than it otherwise would be.

These notes on feeding do not concern the commercial grower, perhaps, to any great extent. As a general rule he makes the compost fairly rich and, aside from a light top-dressing, the plants are left to finish as best they can. It is a different matter, however, with the exhibitor, who must feed, and feed heavily, if he is going to get the best of his competitor.

If the plants have been grown in pots they will, of course, need a great deal more feeding than the same plants grown in a bench, as the soil is much more quickly exhausted. Liquid fertilizers, if made from sheep or cow manure, can hardly be made too strong. Most establishments of any size have a mixing tank and apply the liquid manure in some way through the pipes. Where the number of plants grown is limited and the establishment is small, a bushel of manure can be placed in a bag and put in a 50-gallon kerosene barrel; then the barrel can be filled with water and the manure allowed to soak for several days. It is not a great while since this was about all any of us had to work with.

Chemical Fertilizers.

Chemical fertilizers are a valuable aid to the exhibition grower. A 4-inch potful in a 50-gallon barrel of water is perfectly safe to use and its good effects can be quickly seen in the color of the foliage. Waterings of these chemicals between the applications of liquid animal fertilizer seem to do the most good.

The most commonly used chemical fertilizers are either nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia, nitrate or muriate of potash. In my own case, after repeated experiments, I have figured out my own formula, which is a combination of several of these ingredients, and other growers of my acquaintance have done the same.

By using fine bone as previously advised, both in the soil and as a top-dressing, we afterward get with these chemicals a combination of the three chief elements of plant growth, nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash, the lesser elements being almost always present in every soil in sufficient quantities.

Nowhere, perhaps, does the beginner fall down more quickly than in feeding his plants, and under no condition can the expert grower, however willing he may be, be of much help to him. The novice must work out his own salvation, which he can only do by personal experience and years of painstaking care and observation.

TIME TO TAKE BUDS.

When is the best time to take buds of Golden Glow and Smith's Advance? After the taking of the buds, what length of time will elapse before the plants will be in flower? H. L.

The buds on Golden Glow and Smith's Advance can be taken at any time now. In fact, in the case of the former, it is probably making nothing but buds from now on. Buds taken the first week in August will be in flower by the end of September. The question of bud selection on the earliest varieties was discussed by me somewhat in detail in The Review of July 13, page 10.

BUSH PLANTS IN THE SOUTH.

Can you tell me what varieties of pompon chrysanthemums will make good bush plants and bloom for November in New Orleans? Will any of the other chrysanthemums, if planted now, make good bush plants and bloom for November 1? If there are any, please name them. N. O.

It is somewhat difficult for me, living in New Jersey, to state with any degree of certainty what will be in flower in New Orleans November 1. The large flowered kinds that have been recommended to me by a grower living in New Orleans include Mrs. Robinson, Col. Appleton, Monrovia, Timothy Eaton, Alice Byron, Gen. Hutton, Yellow Eaton, Maud Dean and A. J. Balfour.

Pompons, apparently, have not been grown much in the south, but the following list, given in their colors, are good growers and should be excellent for the purpose wished: In yellow—Jeannette, Ida, Windlass, Madge and Yellow Gem. White—Queen of Whites, Waco, Myers' Perfection, Snowdrop, Jersey and Eva. Pink—St. Illoria, Silver Queen, Eynsford Gem and Gloire de France. Red and bronze—Barney, Baltimore, Rev. Hoffmann, J. Lagravere and Urith.

Adiantum Farleyense Glory of Moordrecht—the Glory Fern.

These varieties all flower with us in what may be termed early to midseason and they should all be in flower in New Orleans on or before November 1. A personal test, of course, is the only way to be sure, and that I have been unable to give. Chas. H. Totty.

PROLIFIC WHITE SORTS.

Please give us your opinion as to the best white chrysanthemum, one which will produce as many flowers as possible, the flowers to be suitable for design work? We do not want pompons. We should prefer the outcurved or straggly kind. S. F. C.

It is pretty hard to state which is the best white, as individual opinions differ greatly. The question, as I read it, means: Which will give the greatest quantity of flowers per plant, the "straggly" kind or reflexed variety being preferred? One of the best is Mrs. J. R. Tranter. Its flowers are extra wide and spreading and can be made to cover considerable surface. The same is true of White Cloud and Mrs. D. V. West, though they are not often classified under the heading of commercial varieties.

Commercial whites that give apparent satisfaction, covering the season generally, are Beatrice May, Mrs. Wm. Arnold, Marguerite Desjouis, Lynnwood Hall, Jeanne Nonin and W. H. Chadwick. These varieties will give flowers from October 1 to January 1, if rightly handled, and, judging from the orders received, these are the most popular varieties for the average grower. Chas. H. Totty.

SHADE FOR MUMS AND ASTERS.

Do chrysanthemums or asters need shade on the glass where the temperature runs up to 110 or 115 degrees? B. B. C.

A light shade I have found to be a benefit to asters under glass in early summer, but I do not use it until the plants are nearly ready to flower. Chrysanthemums do not require any shade until their flowers are opening. If the glass is shaded, it will only tend to make the plants more lanky. They are greatly benefited in hot weather by sprayings overhead. Give abundance of ventilation and use the hose freely on the foliage. No matter how high the temperature or how fierce the sun, the plants are greatly benefited and refreshed by an occasional spraying. This also tends to cool the atmosphere. The ancient idea that it is dangerous to wet the foliage when the sun is shining does not hold good with mums; nor, in fact, with a great many other plants grown under glass. C. W.

A NEW MARKET FERN.

Although novelties innumerable make their appearance, both in America and in Europe, so few are really useful market pot plants that the arrival of one giving promise of adaptability to the needs of the market grower attracts international attention.

Possibly the most talked of novelty of the year in Europe is Adiantum Farleyense Glory of Moordrecht, which the Redlands Co., A. A. Fabius proprietor, Emsworth, Hants, England, is exhibiting as the Glory fern. The variety has had innumerable awards, including the first-class certificate of the Royal Horticultural Society of England, March 14, 1911, but it is because of its commercial possibilities that it holds the attention of the growers. The accompanying illustration is reproduced from a photograph made at Gouda, in Holland, where the plant was sent for one of the exhibitions. It shows the characteristic form of Farleyense and gives an idea of the glorified color, from which the fern gets its name. Mr. Fabius, of the Redlands nursery, is a market grower, and he believes he has in this novelty the finest commercial plant of recent years. He says it is of quick growth, being easily handled, requiring no more heat or attention that Adiantum cuneatum. That it makes attractive plants in small sizes is the general report, and the illustration shows that it certainly is fine in larger pots. The stems hold up the fronds so well as to make it a splendid plant for decorative purposes. The European horticultural trades' journals have given the plant many extended notices, employing all their stock of adjectives in their efforts to show why the plant promises so well from a money-making standpoint.

Denver, Col.—The Scott-Martin Floral Co. is no longer transacting business.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Antirrhinums.

Where antirrhinums are wanted to follow early mums, which means they will have to be ready about the last of October, the present is a suitable time to sow a batch of seeds. A shaded coldframe is better than a greenhouse for the seeds, but remove the sashes when the seedlings are up, to prevent them from becoming drawn. The dwarf and intermediate varieties are not so desirable for forcing as the tall sorts. Mixtures are an abomination and the flowers will not sell at any price, but pure white, golden yellow, bright pink and clear scarlet are colors that people want. Keep the plants grown along in pots. If they are in 4-inch pots when planted and have had one pinching back, they should start away well when benched. There is not any great call for snapdragons until after Christmas and plants benched to follow mums will flower early in the new year.

Hydrangeas.

Look over the hydrangea plants in the field and cut off any flower heads which may appear. Where water can be applied during droughty periods, the plants will be greatly benefited thereby. Where this can not conveniently be given, keep the cultivator constantly at work. The plants may wilt severely during hot days, but with cooler evenings and more moisture from the skies, which we are bound to get sooner or later, the plants will grow surprisingly fast and the growth they make in September will equal that of the two preceding months combined, as a rule. Plants being grown along in pots should be plunged and freely syringed, as well as watered. For early forcing these are better than lifted stock, as their wood can be ripened earlier and more easily.

Callas.

Calla plants which have been grown in pots and have been lying on their sides since the middle of June should now be shaken out and repotted. Throw away any decaying or diseased tubers. They can now be purchased so inexpensively that it does not pay to carry over any poor stock. As a general rule, 6-inch, 7-inch and 8-inch pots are excellent commercial sizes to use. These soon become filled with roots, but by feeding them well with liquid manure and giving them top-dressings of bone or sheep manure every ten days they can be kept in a vigorous growing condition. Do not overlook the Godfrey calla. This is the grandest acquisition this family has had in many years. Do not confound it with the now almost forgotten Little Gem. It is superior in every way, producing thrice the number of flowers, and the flowers are as large as the ordinary calla and purer in color. Callas like a generous compost; one containing two-thirds fibrous loam, one-third dried cow manure and a good dash each of bone and sharp sand suits them. Keep outdoors for some time after repotting, and if you prefer to grow them planted out in benches and the benches are not yet ready, the plants are all right where they are until wanted.

Lilium Harrisii.

This is the season when the new crop of Lilium Harrisii arives. This lily has not proven entirely satisfactory for some years, but the Bermuda growers are now exercising greater care with their stock and the bulbs offered are believed this season to contain a much reduced proportion of diseased ones. Single bulbs in 5-inch pots are the best when growing the ordinary forcing sizes of Harrisii. Any of extra size can go into 6-inch pots, but we find 5-inch pots answer well for the majority. Keep in a well-shaded place, such as a cellar floor, after potting. Soak well with water and then let the soil dry out well before applying any more. Some of these lilies will probably flower by Thanksgiving, but the majority can be safely timed for Christmas if they are given an average night temperature of 65 degrees when nicely started.

Formosa Lilies.

More of the Formosa lilies are being grown each year. For Easter they are not so desirable as giganteums or multiflorums. The majority grow too long, and while the flowers are of good size, they are often carried only one, two or three on a stem. For cutting, however, they are really splendid and it will pay country florists to try a case or two of them. The trouble with these, as with many more lilies, is that growers are digging too early in order to get them on the market ahead of the previous year's date and the result is plainly evidenced in the sickly, abortive growths of many of the bulbs. It would be better by far if these Formosas did not arrive until September and we would then hear and see less of disease. The Formosas include a wide variety of seedlings. Some grow eighteen inches, others six feet high. Some flowers resemble L. Brownii; others are like ordinary longiflorums. They do not all flower together and anyone with a case of bulbs will cut flowers over a period of probably three months. Nevertheless, when we can get fine Formosas in flower at Christmas and for two months later, it will be found a useful lily to grow.

Poinsettias.

The old poinsettia stock plants will still be furnishing an abundance of cuttings. These can be profitably put in until the middle of August. The latest propagations make up nicely in 6-inch or 7-inch pans, being dwarf and stocky. Keep the cuttings potted off as soon as they root. It cripples them severely to have roots broken and it is best to lift them as soon after roots are formed as possible. Plants propagated early will be rather tall for making up into pans, but will pay well if potted on and flowered in 6-inch pots; or, if bench space permits, they can be planted out, but be sure it is in a house where a minimum temperature of 60 degrees is at command, or the bracts will not develop in season for the holidays. Old stock plants benched in June are now growing vigorously. Each of these makes several strong shoots and these will need stakes before long to keep them straight.

Geraniums

GERANIUM STEMS EATEN.

This spring I planted out, for stock, a bed of Alphonse Ricard geraniums. During the last few days I have noticed some of them wilting. Upon removing some of them to ascertain the cause, I found the stems eaten completely hollow and scores of little, white, ant-like insects in them. Not having had any trouble heretofore with this pest, I am anxious to find out whence they came and how I can get rid of them. One after another, the geraniums seem to be going the same way. A. P.

I have never had geraniums attacked in the way described, and as the correspondent has not forwarded any specimens for examination, I am unable to state whether I am acquainted with the pest or not. As to whence they came, that is a hard query to answer. It might be asked of scores of other pests which we are constantly fighting. It is more than likely that the insects or small maggots enter from the soil through the roots, tunneling their way up to the shoots.

Remedial measures are not easy, but you can kill anything in the soil itself by boring holes with a pointed stick, eighteen inches apart each way, and pouring a teaspoonful of carbon bisulphide in each hole. This carbon costs about 25 cents per pound can, at retail. Fill the holes with soil immediately after you have poured in the liquid. You might also try spraying the plants well with a nicotine solution. Watering the ground with tobacco water has been found helpful for root maggots and might help in this case, as also would dusting the ground rather heavily with tobacco dust and scratching it into the soil. None of these remedies will hurt the plants and some one of them, or a combination, may help to clear out your pests. C. W.

NITRATE OF SODA FOR ROSES.

Can you tell me how much nitrate of soda to use in each gallon of water? I want to use it for my roses. The soil is not rich and I want to bring them along and make them grow.

C. & W.

One pound to fifty gallons of water is a sufficiently strong dose of nitrate of soda to apply to roses. This is a powerful stimulant and must be used with extreme caution on all plants. Be sure not to apply it unless the roses have plenty of roots to take it up, or it will do more harm than good. A better and safer food is liquid cow manure. A mulch of this manure, spread on the surface an inch thick, will also be of much benefit, feeding the plants and preventing the beds from drying out.

C. W.

A START IN ROSE GROWING.

I intend to grow some roses in benches. Will you tell me when to make cuttings and what wood is used? When should disbudding be done and how? What pruning has to be done during the season, after planting new roses? When cutting flowers, how far down can they be cut, or how many eyes should be left for new growth?

E. D.

From Christmas until the end of January is the best season to propagate roses for forcing. Of course they can be rooted later than this, but at the time specified solar heat is at its minimum and fire heat is fairly steady, which will give an even bottom heat in the propagating bench. A temperature in the sand averaging as near 60 degrees as possible will be found right, with an atmospheric reading 5 degrees lower. Use coarse, gritty sand, which water will pass quickly through, and pack it well in the bench. Firm it well and soak well with water before putting in any cuttings.

Propagating wood from flowering shoots is generally preferred. Some growers have found that blind wood does not give as satisfactory results. Two eyes are sufficient for a cutting, although three may be left. Remove the bottom leaf and cut clean across below this leaf. Cut half of the other leaves away. Firm the cuttings well. Keep sun away from them. Never allow them to get in the least dry, and in from four to six weeks they will be rooted and ready to go into 2¼-inch pots, using loam with only a little manure. Keep them shaded until established. Shift into 3-inch pots when they have become well rooted.

Unless you want early flowers, pinch off all flower buds until early in October. The only pruning needed prior to and after flowering is the cutting out of blind, weak wood. When carrying plants over a second season, a rest of six weeks to ripen the wood should be given. They should be pruned back to plump eyes and all useless wood should be cut away. In cutting the flowers, as long a stem is wanted as possible. Two eyes can be left on shoots of moderate strength and three on strong ones.

C. W.

HARDY ROSES LOSING COLOR.

My outside roses, in light, sandy soil, seem to be light colored. Can you suggest anything to add to the soil to deepen the color in the blooms, or do they need shading overhead in bright weather, or a combination of both kinds of treatment? Klondike strawberries in the same soil come well colored. I live in Texas.

C. W. B.

Shading overhead with cheesecloth will help to prevent the flowers from fading out so quickly. All roses fade out quickly in hot, sunny weather, and in your warm climate the color will not hold so well as farther north. In the case of hybrid teas, which are probably the kinds which succeed best with you, if you mulch with well rotted manure through the hot months and have facilities for watering the plants, they will be vastly improved. If you have no barnyard manure, try top-dressings with dried blood, which will have a beneficial effect on both foliage and flowers. A light overhead shade, as suggested, is the only way to prevent flowers from fading out quickly.

GLADIOLUS COLVILLEI.

I wish to grow some Gladiolus Colvillei for Memorial day. How shall I keep the bulbs until it is time to plant them? Shall I grow them in flats or benches, and do they have to be set away to form roots, like hyacinths? I have grown only carnations until the last year and do not know much about other plants.

A. A. S.

These gladioli can be grown either in benches or flats. You would find it most profitable to use flats four inches deep. Each flat, 4x12x24, will hold seventy-five to 100 bulbs. The bulbs arrive usually about October 1 and should be placed in soil right away, well watered and stood in a coldframe or on a cellar floor on a bed of ashes. They do not need covering with sand or ashes, as do hyacinths, tulips and narcissi. G. Colvillei The Bride is quite early, but for Memorial day trade you will find G. nanus Peach Blossom, Blushing Bride, Ackermanni and Sappho far superior. Blushing Bride and Ackermanni are inexpensive. To flower at the end of May, place them in a carnation temperature about April 1. These gladioli need an abundant water supply and enjoy liquid manure. They can be flowered from April 1 to July 10 by starting successional batches.

SEASONABLE NOTES.

Cattleya Gigas.

Cattleya gigas has been making a good show for some time past. The flowers, while large, do not possess the substance of such better known commercial sorts as labiata, Trianæ or Mossiæ, but they come at a season when orchid flowers are scarce and often in good demand. To flower this cattleya well, the plants must be grown in a rather strong light. Those with big, deep green bulbs and leaves are liable to come entirely blind. Suspended, while growing, near the ridge of the house, gigas is in its element. It needs the warmer end of the house, and in bright weather two or three syringings a day are relished. Care must always be taken, however, to keep gigas where it is well shaded while in flower, as it is more easily scorched than any other cattleya. As the plants pass out of flower any repotting can be done. It is often unnecessary to repot all the plants, but any with roots hanging over the sides need overhauling. Pot firmly, using a moderately coarse brand of osmunda fiber.

Calanthes.

This is the season of active growth of calanthes. The pots or pans should now be well filled with active roots, and, this being the case, they can be given an abundant water supply and an application of liquid cow manure twice a week. The plants should be rather heavily shaded, or the foliage will be of a pale color. Unlike cattleyas, they appear to do better when both bulbs and leaves are somewhat drawn up, so long as they are of a deep green color.

On hot days the calanthes will enjoy spraying over, both morning and afternoon, and the house in which they are growing should be closed up sufficiently early in the afternoon to bottle up a good amount of sun heat. On dull days the plants should not be syringed. On any night when the outside temperature falls below 60 degrees a little fire heat in the pipes, just sufficient to take off the chill, is beneficial. One of the most successful growers of these attributes much of his success to having a little fire heat every night through the summer. Where plants have quantities of roots running over the surface, a mulch of old cow manure can be applied with advantage. Calanthes make their growth best in houses which are rather close and stuffy, conditions which also suit many of the dendrobes and phalænopsis at this season.

Seedling Cattleyas.

During the summer months orchids are in less demand than in winter and spring, but there is an ever increasing call for orchid flowers even in the hot weather and there are many fine hybrids which bloom in summer. Some may not be quite equal to their parents, but others are even better. These seedlings generally possess greater vigor than their parents and in many cases flower finely twice a year. Unlike the collected cattleyas, they seem to care but little for a resting period and do just as well when not rested at all. It is a fact that cattleyas are often seriously weakened by excessive drying, and growers are gradually waking up to the fact that in the past this resting business has been rather overdone.

Seedling cattleyas up to the flowering stage, and even later, succeed remarkably well in a house which is kept moderately moist and which can be closed up at 4 or 4:30 p. m., after spraying the plants over. There is no need at all to treat them as we are in the habit of treating collected plants. This is not saying that they will not grow well with them, but they seem to enjoy more heat and moisture. There need be no hard and fast rules about repotting them. It can be done practically any time in the year. Just as soon as the pots are well filled with roots and start to push over the sides, repot them at once.

Note how strongly many of the seedlings break, as compared with the forest species. It is common to see double breaks; three, and even four, are not unusual; in fact, it is often necessary to cut out some of the growths to strengthen the others, especially before the plants have flowered. Any grower who has two or three dozen hybrids can cut flowers practically every day in the year, and this is quite a consideration to the man who has a steady call for choice flowers. In the near future houses of special hybrids will be grown by all the leading commercial specialists. This will be a necessity, as the forest supplies can not last forever. The plants themselves are only good for a few years, while hybrids produced from vigorous parents possess much greater longevity.

CHRISTMAS PEPPERS.

Kindly publish cultural notes on Christmas peppers, when to sow and how to treat to be in prime condition for Christmas. R. A. B.

Christmas peppers should be sown not later than the first week in April. Prick off into flats when large enough to handle. Plant outdoors about June 1, when all danger from frost has passed. Lift and pot about the middle of September. Keep well sprayed and shaded for a few days, until the plants become established. Some growers prefer to keep in pots through the summer. This entails more labor in watering, but if the pots can be plunged in soil or cinders in an open, sunny spot, convenient to water, they will do well. Six-inch pots are a convenient size to grow the plants in. Remove to a house with a night temperature of 50 to 55 degrees by the early part of October, in order to get them well ripened in good season.

C. W.

CUTTING GLADIOLUS SPIKES.

How close to the ground should gladiolus spikes be cut, in case the grower wishes to sell the blooms and either sell the bulbs or retain them for his own future use? A. G.

The gladiolus spikes should be cut so as to leave at least two fully developed leaves. This can be done by placing the blade of a sharp knife across the stalk and bending the spike over the thumb of the knife hand, cutting the spike and snapping it out at the same time. Generally it is not necessary to cut entirely through the stalk. Varieties differ in growth; some are much easier to cut long than others. It is necessary to leave at least two leaves in order to develop the new corm, which begins to form from the time the spike shows.

ASTERS BENCHED TOO LATE.

I have a bench of asters, put in during the first week of June. I put strawy stable manure in the bottom of the bench; on top of that I placed some soil and then about one inch of well rotted stable manure, spaded in. My asters did nicely for about three weeks; then they began to turn black on one side of the stem. Can you tell me where the trouble lies? D. R.

The compost would seem to have been all right for the asters. The main trouble is in benching them as late as June. For indoor culture early planting is best, benching not later than the early part of May. This permits the plants to get well rooted and strong before the intense summer heat comes on. The terrific heat experienced during July of the present year has been too much for some plants under glass, asters among them. The fact that watering had to be done daily to keep the benches moist, with shade temperatures of 100 degrees or thereabouts, has no doubt caused the trouble. Stir the surface soil frequently, admit abundance of air and let the benches dry out well between waterings. Shade on the glass would not be of any benefit now, but should be given when the flowers start to open. C. W.

HARRISII IN BERMUDA.

Frank R. Pierson, of the F. R. Pierson Co., Tarrytown, N. Y., it will be recalled, was the original introducer of the commercial culture of Lilium Harrisii in Bermuda, and his statement that the lilies shown in the accompanying illustration are grown under better cultural methods than have generally been employed heretofore in Bermuda will be of interest in the trade. The picture was taken when the field was in full bloom a few weeks ago and Mr. Pierson says he believes the stock this year is the cleanest and nicest Harrisii that has been exported in a number of years. It is well known that Harrisii has been allowed to run down in recent years and has become badly mixed because of poor cultural methods. The growers of late have come to appreciate the danger of the situation and have taken such means as their individual capacities would prompt to correct the tendency and improve the culture. Mr. Pierson says that onions or potatoes were grown last year on the ground occupied by the field of lilies illustrated, and that next year the lilies will be followed by another vegetable crop. This rotation has been found to secure a more vigorous growth and freedom from disease, when taken with the careful selection of the stock for planting, scaling the bulbs as was originally practiced for propagation in the early days of the cultivation of Harrisii in Bermuda. There can be no doubt that the quality of the Harrisii has improved materially in the last few seasons.

SWEET WILLIAMS FOR SPRING.

I wish to grow some sweet williams for Memorial day in a house which I expect to start up about the middle of February. Will you please tell me what kind of seeds would be best, when to plant them and how to proceed? I live in Massachusetts. A. A. S.

Lose no time in sowing seeds of sweet williams. The plants would have been much stronger had the seeds been sown a month ago. For Memorial day trade bright colors are in special demand, and you would do well to sow one packet each of scarlet, crimson and pink, or you can, if preferred, sow mixed seed. The auricula-eyed form, with large, clearly defined eyes, is distinct. Sow the seed under the protection of sashes or cheesecloth, in a light compost, and keep watered with a watering can and not with the hose. The seeds will germinate in about ten days. Transplant to beds or nursery rows during cool, moist weather, allowing the little plants six to eight inches of space each way. Keep them well cultivated all summer.

To winter outdoors successfully, cover the plants lightly with dry leaves when the ground freezes up. Lay some old corn stalks or brush over the leaves, to hold them in place. In your state sweet williams flower outdoors about the middle of June and should be lifted and planted in the benches not later than April 10. Two weeks earlier will be better if the ground is open. Treat them as you would stocks or any other spring crops.

Other plants which you could grow and flower, and which can be sown now, include Canterbury bells and rockets, white and purple. These plants will do well planted in benches in a carnation temperature. Still another good Memorial day flower is Coreopsis grandiflora. There is still ample time to sow this. It is, however, better if wintered in a coldframe, not being reliably hardy in Massachusetts.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

The picnic of the Kentucky Society of Florists, held at Stowers Grove, Thursday, July 27, was a great success. About 200 persons enjoyed a basket lunch and supper. Outdoor games of all kinds were played. W. H. Leeming proved an efficient chairman of the picnic committee, while J. B. Stuessy made a great hit as master of ceremonies.

The following were winners in the athletic contests:

100-yard foot race for men, Herbert Lord.
100-yard foot race for boys, Harry Kunzman.
50-yard race for married ladies, Mrs. Mamie Fenster.
50-yard race for girls, Miss Maud Drakewell.
Peanut contest, Mrs. E. C. Stuessy.
Peanut contest, George Rasmussen.
Potato race, Miss Grace Sands.
Euchre, first prize (for ladies), Mrs. Louise Karsat; second prize, Miss Aleda Kleinstarink; consolation, Mrs. Simon Pontrich.
Euchre, first prize (for men), Simon Pontrich; second prize, Pete Reynolds; consolation, E. A. Stuessy.

There was much enthusiasm in the matter of getting the S. A. F. here for its 1912 convention.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Rather more flowers are arriving than a week ago, but the demand, for the season, has been fair and all stock of good quality has been readily disposed of. Recent heavy rains, while of immense benefit to all outdoor crops, did considerable temporary damage to asters and other flowers and caused a shortage for a time. Asters are becoming more abundant and are realizing excellent prices, as high as $3 per hundred being paid for the best. The quality, also, is improving. White is most in demand, followed by pink and blue. Sweet peas have improved in quality and are seen with better stems. Many, however, are hardly worth bunching. Gladioli from the open now include America, Brenchleyensis, May and Augusta, but the spikes are not yet good, nor the demand robust.

Roses, with few exceptions, are extremely small and short-stemmed, being cut from newly planted stock. There is still a fair call for Beauties, and My Maryland is good, holding its color extra well. Carnations are of little account, asters being far superior in every way, but quite a number of undersized, spidery flowers are still seen. Valley is good; the quality is better than the demand. The summer crop of gardenias is now in and there is a moderate sale for these flowers. Lilies are not overabundant and sell well. Dahlias have already made their appearance, but there is no sale for them yet. There is an adequate supply of cornflowers, gypsophila, gaillardia, candytuft and other outdoor flowers, with an uncertain call for them. The demand for asparagus and adiantum is about the same.

Club Picnic.

Glorious weather was once more enjoyed by the 500 or more members and friends of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston who attended the annual club picnic at Caledonian grove, West Roxbury, July 26. An inch of rain two days earlier ended the prolonged drought and put the grounds in perfect condition for the occasion, which was marred by no accidents and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended. All the officials, from Peter M. Miller, the president, downward, worked hard and they felt well repaid for their labors by the words of commendation heard on every side.

The results in the various sporting events were as follows:

Baseball, Commercial Growers vs. Private Gardeners. Commercials won by 10 to 7. The winning team consisted of A. G. Walsh, W. S. Green, J. McCarthy, George Palmer, M. F. Ruane, Frank Edgar, B. Snyder, F. Pettit, W. Aylward; pitchers, Aylward and McCarthy; umpire, J. L. Miller.

One-hundred-yard race, handicap, heat 1, E. Holscher, J. Comerford; heat 2, W. Iliffe, T. S. Brown, H. L. Pree; final heat, H. L. Pree, W. Iliffe; ten entries.

One-hundred-yard race, boys under 15, heat 1, E. Bingham, J. Rogers, A. Hull; heat 2, C. Pree, E. Plummer, T. Iliffe; final heat, C. Pree, T. Iliffe, E. Plummer; twelve entries.

Flag race, married ladies, Mrs. F. Coles, Mrs. H. F. Woods; six entries.

Quoit match, F. Coles, A. K. Rogers; twenty entries.

Fifty-yard race, girls under 8, Mary Flood, Marion Iliffe; seven entries.

Flag race, girls under 18, heat 1, Harriet Coles, Alice Iliffe, C. Lally; heat 2, Margaret Iliffe, Edith Harbison, Edith Iliffe; final heat, Margaret Iliffe, Alice Iliffe, C. Lally; twelve entries.

Putting sixteen-pound shot, J. Comerford, forty feet four inches; T. Mahan, D. H. Barnes; nine entries.

Fifty-yard race, married ladies, Mrs. F. Coles, Mrs. G. H. Cray; seven entries.

Fifty-yard race, unmarried ladies, Louise Eisenhardt, Bessie Brown, Jean Westwood; eight entries.

Sack race, men, T. S. Brown, T. Westwood; eight entries.

Fat men's race, D. F. Roy, James Wheeler, J. L. Smith; seven entries.

Broad jump, J. Comerford, seventeen feet eight inches; W. Iliffe, H. Coles; nine entries.

Three-legged race, boys, final heat, G. Palmer and T. Westwood, first; Edgar Parker and Arthur Whyte, second; eight entries.

Half-mile race, H. L. Pree, D. H. Burns, W. Iliffe; six entries.

High jump, T. Mahan, J. Comerford, H. Baldwin, five feet four inches; eight entries.

Tug of war, commercial growers vs. private gardeners; the latter team won and was as follows: A. K. Rogers, W. R. Thornhill, John Reid, W. Robb, J. Will, J. L. Smith, D. H. Burns, J. Burns, G. H. Cray, J. Comerford, T. Mahan.

Fifty-yard race, boys under 8, Prescott Whyte, W. Shield, J. Duquid; nine entries.

One-hundred-yard race, commercial growers only, F. E. Palmer, W. S. Grassie, J. Wheeler; six entries.

Fifty-yard race, children under 5, Florence Walke, Arthur Rogers, Norman Craig; ten entries.

Fifty-yard race, girls under 8, Margaret Harbison, Marion Iliffe.

Picnic Notes.

The commercial ball team fairly beat the privates this time. The latter began to score in earnest in their last innings, however, and added no less than five runs. Comerford brothers, for the privates, and Aylward and McCarthy, for the commercials, made good pitchers.

The fat men's race, as usual, was one of the star events of the day and the way D. F. Roy raced and beat the redoubtable Wheeler caused many a heart to thrill. The privates led here.

Where were all the local S. A. F. boomers? We failed to see any of them or hear any convention talk. They lost a grand opportunity for booming the Baltimore trip.

The private gardeners made short work of their opponents in the tug of war. They had altogether too much weight for the commercials, who needed a few men of the caliber of W. A. Manda to turn the scales.

The executive committee furnished coffee, sandwiches and ice cream to all who had not brought ample lunches, and did the work well.

The group photograph includes only about one-half those in attendance. Ladies, as usual, were out in force and took a keen interest in the athletic events.

The commercial growers' race for the Benjamin Hammond trophy was a hair-raiser; time for the 100 yards, less than eleven seconds. F. E. Palmer ran as never before in his life and touched the tape a few inches ahead of W. S. Grassie, with J. Wheeler close at their heels.

Boston to Baltimore.

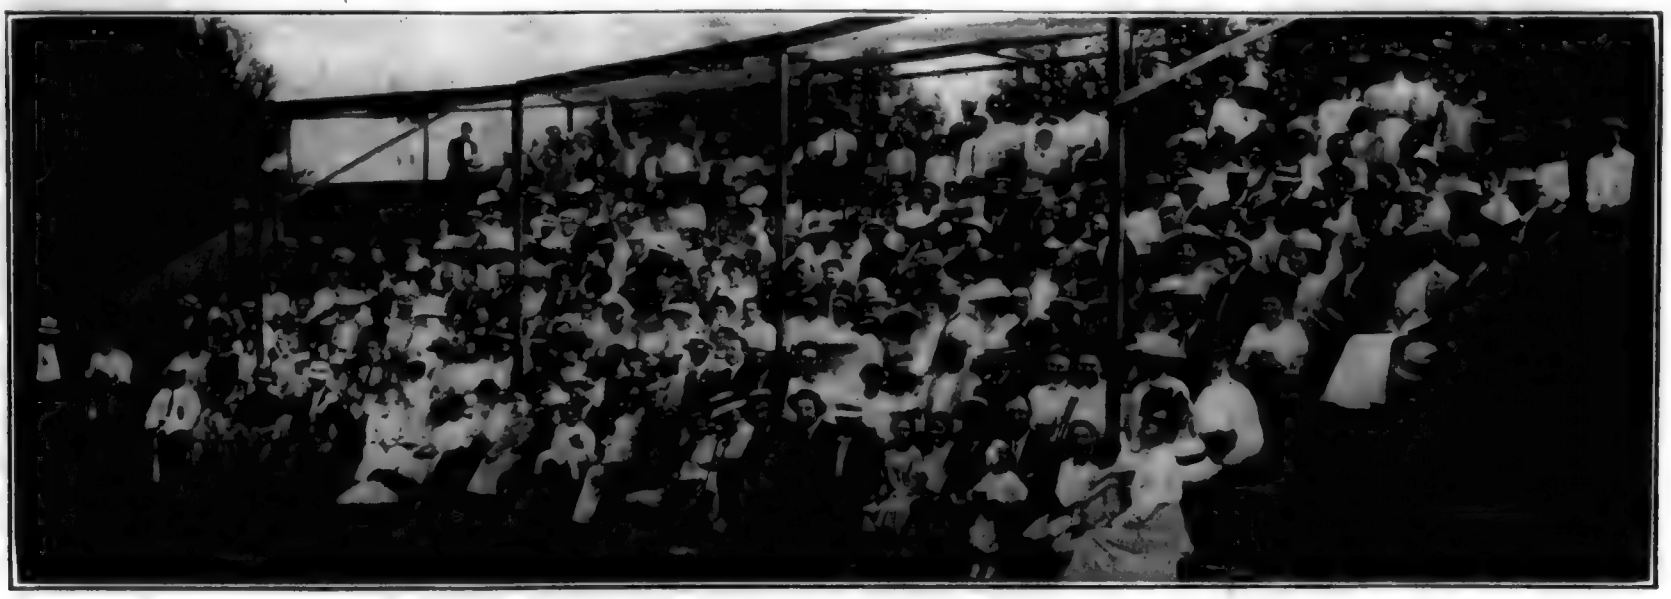
In spite of the intense heat, quite a little interest is being shown in the coming Baltimore convention, which promises to be largely attended from Boston and vicinity. The fact that Boston will put forward a strong candidate for president is proving a great attraction and the Hub's representatives will make themselves heard on the convention floor at Baltimore. The Boston delegation, it has been decided, will leave the south terminal Sunday evening, August 13, at 6 o'clock, going per Fall River steamer to New York, where they will join the New York delegation. The single fare from Boston to Baltimore will be $8.65, or, with the reduced rate of one and three-fifths, the double journey will be only $13.84.

All wishing to go with the Boston party are requested to write to W. A. Hastings, state vice-president, C Park street, Boston, who will furnish all possible information and will also be glad to enroll new members, the fee being $5. The secretary of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, W. N. Craig, will also be pleased to answer any inquiries.

Various Notes.

The double fare for the Baltimore convention from Boston is not $8.65, as has been stated, but $13.84 on the certificate plan; berths extra. The Boston delegation leaves South Terminal station at 6 p. m. August 13, taking the Fall River steamer at 7:40 for New York, and will accompany the New York delegation, leaving at noon August 14. W. A. Hastings, state vice-president, has received an encouraging number of responses from members planning to attend and wants to get many more, in order that Boston may have a big, united body to work, talk and vote for their presidential candidate, John K. M. L. Farquhar, who is eminently fitted in every way to fill the highest office in the gift of the S. A. F.

S. J. Goddard sailed July 26 for a trip to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. He had all carnations housed before he left. His plants never looked better at this season. Sprinklers were kept running among them all the time they were outdoors. The new varieties, White Wonder and Gloriosa, have stood the dry summer well and are now growing strongly. Mr. Goddard will attend the Baltimore convention.



Mrs. R. H. Edgar, of the W. W. Edgar Co., and Mrs. J. McHutchinson are spending two weeks in New York. The greenhouses here contain a splendid lot of Lorraine begonias, now in 5-inch pots, cyclamens and poinsettias and many other holiday plants.

J. T. Butterworth has been vacationing at Cape Cod and has returned greatly benefited by the change.

Robert T. McGorum was an interested spectator at the club picnic, but for some reason failed to start in any of the athletic events. This rather surprised us, as we imagined he had considerable sporting blood. All his roses are planted and doing well. He is specially impressed with Radiance, for which he sees a good future.

James Wheeler was, as usual, to the fore in many of the club sporting events and performed nearly as well as when he was a private gardener. He has 23,000 carnations planted in his big house and reports stock as looking extra well.

Thomas Brown, of Framingham, well known to many in the trade, and father-in-law of S. J. Goddard, the noted carnationist, had a growth removed from his lip at the Framingham hospital July 22. He refused to take ether and stood the operation finely. The doctors considered this marvelous in a man 85 years of age. We wish him many more years of peace and content.

William F. Walke, of Salem, who is one of our most successful growers of pot plants, has an extra fine lot of cyclamens, poinsettias and Lorraines for Christmas. He is not growing quite so many lilies this season, finding that stock rooted and produced at home is more profitable.

Mr. Nelson, of Nelson & Johnson, Framingham, is enjoying a much needed vacation with friends in the west.

F. E. Palmer, of Brookline, has irrigated many of his crops this season and is more than pleased with the results, especially in the case of vegetables.

July 24 gave us an inch of rain and ended our long drought. July 28 gave an additional fall of 3.49 inches, a larger amount of precipitation than we have had in any full month previously in 1911. While outdoor crops of flowers and fruits received a rude battering from the wind and rain, the benefits immeasurably outweigh the damage and all growers are feeling happy.

Prof. E. A. White, of Amherst, and H. W. Field, of Amherst, are each planning to attend the Baltimore convention.

H. M. Robinson & Co. are busy making everything shipshape for the fall trade. They report good July business. Joseph Margolis, one of the firm, left July 29 to spend his vacation in the Pine Tree state.

William R. Nicholson is busy emptying his carnation houses and replanting. Recent rains have greatly improved the plants in the field, which are well up to the average in quality. Quite a few novelties are being grown.

Rose My Maryland is doing particularly well with W. H. Elliott, at Brighton, as a summer bloomer. Some excellent Beauties and Carnots are also being cut here at present. The big Madbury plant is reserved for winter blooming varieties.

Henry R. Comley, the well known Park street florist, is able to be around again after a month's sickness. There is always something new and interesting to be seen at his store.

Peirce Bros. are this year planting five of their large houses in carnations, one less than in 1910. They are each year growing more of a general line of flowers and plants. Their house of cattleyas has done uncommonly well this year.

Boston in July, 1863, had twelve and one-half inches of rain. This year we have not had half that fall in the same month. The 1863 fall was the heaviest Boston ever had in a single month.

Everyone who sees the 360-foot house of the new rose, Lady Hillingdon, at the Waban Rose Conservatories, is carried away with it. It grows and flowers as freely as Bridesmaid and the flower is far superior to such sorts as Mrs. Aaron Ward.

B. Hammond Tracy now has a fine display of gladioli in his fields at Wenham. The rain has greatly benefited them. Mr. Tracy will make an exhibition at the S. A. F. convention. He will have the Gardeners' and Florists' Club of Boston as his guests toward the end of August.

Allan Sim, brother of William Sim, of Cliftondale, has returned from a pleasant visit to Scotland.

W. N. Craig.

OBITUARY.

Jeremiah Galbraith.

Jeremiah Galbraith, for more than fifty years a landscape gardener at New Rochelle, N. Y., died of cancer July 23, at his home, 15 Cedar street. He was 76 years old and had come from Ireland at the age of 26.

Miss Minnie Johnson.

Miss Minnie Johnson, of the firm of M. & L. Johnson, Dayton, O., died of consumption July 25, at her home, 915 North Main street. She was born in Dayton in 1852 and had spent her entire life in that city. She was the daughter of the late Jabez and Annie Johnson, who were engaged in the nursery business in Dayton several years ago. In 1882 Miss Johnson, together with her sister, Miss Lucy Johnson, established the first flower shop in Dayton, at 142 South Jefferson street. Miss Johnson's health had been failing for the last three years, but she was able to be at the store until two years ago; since then her strength had failed rapidly. In character she was amiable and pleasant; in business, honest and upright, and she leaves a large circle of friends to mourn her loss. She is survived by three sisters, Miss Lucy Johnson, Mrs. Carrie Baker and Mrs. Anna Wilson, all of Dayton. Miss Lucy will continue the business.

Mrs. C. H. Woolsey.

Mrs. C. H. Woolsey, wife of the well known florist at Rockford, Ill., passed away July 31, after an illness of several years of pernicious anemia. For the past three months she had been critically ill, and several times during the summer she was so low that it was not thought she could live through the day.

Mrs. Woolsey was born April 24, 1857, in the house in which she was later married and which has always been her home. She was married to C. Harry Woolsey November 7, 1877. Four children were born: Marie K., who died in June, 1902; Earl Jay, who died in infancy; Mrs. Ella B. Hixson, of Pasadena, Cal.; and Ralph H., a clerk for the C. & N. W. railway and living at home.

The funeral was held August 2 and was largely attended, there being many flowers.

GRASSHOPPERS IN GREENHOUSE.

Will you kindly tell me how to kill the grasshoppers in my greenhouse? They are eating the buds off my carnations and asters. I have hand picked them, but that does not get rid of them.

J. M. K.

Hand picking is the only means I know of for destroying grasshoppers. If you will go through your house early in the morning, while it is quite cool, you can catch them easily.

If you find that you can not get rid of them in this way, I would suggest that you screen your ventilators and doors. That would prevent their coming in from outdoors, and after you got rid of the ones inside you would have no more trouble with them. To screen the ventilators, get some mosquito netting and tack it around the edge of the ventilators and the opening in the roof. You will find this inexpensive and effective. A. F. J. B.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

THE CONVENTION HALL.

The big stone building in which the Society of American Florists will hold its convention and trades' display August 15 to 18 is the pride of Baltimore. It is the Fifth Regiment Armory and the illustration herewith, showing the exterior, is reproduced from the picture post-card that the conventionites will be sending to the stay-at-homes. The interior view is much more impressive. It is made from a photograph produced by the joining of three plates in the printing. Mack Richmond, the superintendent of the trades' display, says he will have the great floor space filled with exhibits convention week.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Routes to the Convention.

One of the pleasantest features of the S. A. F. convention is the getting together in parties at the principal centers for the journey to the convention city. Whenever these parties foregather everyone who can do so always is expected to join in. Here are the routes of the principal parties for the trip to Baltimore:

New York to Baltimore.

Via B. & O. R. R., leaving West Twenty-third street, New York, at 11:50 a. m., Monday, August 14, arriving at Baltimore 4:15 p. m. Address F. H. Traendly, 131 West Twenty-eighth street.

Boston to Baltimore.

Via Fall River line to New York, leaving south terminal at 6 p. m. August 13, joining the New York special train via the B. & O. Fare $13.84 round trip. Address W. A. Hastings, C Park street, Boston.

Chicago to Baltimore.

The Chicago Florists' Club will travel via the Monon railroad and the C., H. & D. R. R. to Cincinnati, and via the B. & O. S. W. and Baltimore & Ohio from Cincinnati to Baltimore. Leave Chicago 11:30 p. m. August 13; leave Cincinnati 8 a. m. August 14, arriving at Baltimore at 11 p. m. This will be the President's Special. Low fares on summer excursion tickets via Norfolk, Va. Address Herbert Wiley, G. A., 104 South Clark street, Chicago.

St. Louis to Baltimore.

The St. Louis and southwestern party will travel via Pennsylvania railroad, leaving St. Louis 12:20 noon Monday, August 14, arriving at Baltimore at 12:05 noon Tuesday, August 15. En route the train will pass through Indianapolis at 6:05 p. m., Richmond, Ind., 7:45 p. m., Dayton, O., 8:50 p. m., and Columbus, O., 10:20 p. m., Monday, August 14. This is one of the Pennsylvania's finest and fastest trains, on which an extra fare is charged to New York, but not to Baltimore. Low summer excursion rates. For reservations in the florists' special cars address F. H. Weber, Boyle and Maryland avenues, St. Louis.

Pittsburg to Baltimore.

The B. & O. rate, Pittsburg to Baltimore, is $13.05 for the round trip, which includes the charge for validating the ticket at Baltimore. Tickets on sale from August 11 to 16, good returning until August 22, with stopover privileges at Harpers Ferry and Washington. Train leaves Pittsburg at 8 a. m., 1:15 p. m., 6 p. m. and 10 p. m. The Pennsylvania railroad fare is the same cost, with train leaving Pittsburg at 9:40 a. m. and 11:18 p. m. Berth rates, lower berth $2 and upper berth $1.60. Both railroad companies promise a special car, providing the Pittsburg delegation travel together and the number is twenty-five or more. Anyone desiring to join the Pittsburg party should notify T. P. Langhans, 121 Seventh street, Pittsburg.

Philadelphia to Baltimore.

The Philadelphia party will have special cars on the Royal Blue train, via the B. & O., leaving Philadelphia at 10:17 a. m., August 15, arriving at Baltimore at 12:16. John Westcott is in charge.

NEWS, NOTES AND COMMENTS

READERS ARE INVITED TO CONTRIBUTE ITEMS FOR THIS DEPARTMENT.

Rossville, N. Y.—Carl Dicte, a florist and gardener of this town, has made preparations for the erection of a residence. It will be in the form of a Queen Anne cottage.

Newburyport, Mass.—C. J. McGregor has made a reputation through this part of the country for the origination of unique and striking designs without losing sight of the ever-necessary good taste.

Bridgeport, Conn.—Frank C. Foehrenbach, who for the last nine years has been employed by James E. Beach, in this city, is now building a greenhouse, 20x96, and will engage in business for himself. He will grow carnations and pot plants.

Adams, Mass.—Robert Groves, the well known fern dealer, has purchased the Chase homestead, on Grove Hill, and will reside there. The house is handsome, modern and commodious and is in an elevated position, surrounded by pretty grounds.

Amsterdam, N. Y.—J. C. Hatcher reports a big demand for Asparagus Hatcheri, which occupies a large part of the extensive range. The King Construction Co. recently had a representative looking over the plant with a view to extension.

Sheridan, Wyo.—The Best Floral Co. is building an addition of three houses. One of them, 28x160, will be used for lettuce; another, 25x100, is for tomatoes, and the third, 25x100, is for cucumbers. With this addition, the firm will have a total of 45,000 square feet of glass.

Kalamazoo, Mich.—The H. A. Fisher Co. will remove in a few weeks to a handsome new store in the New Burdick hotel. The interior of the store will be finished in Italian marble and white enamel, and the intention is to make it one of the finest establishments of the kind in the state.

Canajoharie, N. Y.—Joseph Traudt reports a highly satisfactory demand for his variegated alyssum and intends to work up a big stock for next season. He is building a new house, 20x130, with concrete walls and benches. He expects to make an exhibit at Baltimore. J. O. Graham, Jr., will be in charge.

Melrose, Mass.—A. M. Tuttle & Co. have sold their greenhouses, on Sargent and Howie streets, to Charles Rapp, of New York. Mr. Rapp is an experienced florist and will continue the business. The Tuttle company, however, will retain the nursery department of the business and will probably conduct it on a larger scale than before.

Fargo, N. D.—T. D. Smedley, proprietor of the Fargo Floral Co., will erect a range of greenhouses at Miles City, Mont.

Geneva, N. Y.—Smith & Gannett report a satisfactory season. Mr. Gannett is enjoying a vacation at the Thousand Islands.

Lakeside, Mich.—M. Vanderhave has taken the position of gardener on the estate of E. K. Warren, proprietor of the Featherbone factory at Three Oaks.

Little Falls, N. Y.—J. O. Graham is packing his grip for Baltimore. He says that after the warm weather recently experienced, the Oriole City will be a cool spot.

Waterloo, Ia.—Charles Sherwood is building two more greenhouses, each 28x100, at his range on the corner of Fairview and Reihl streets. The new houses will be used for roses.

Hannibal, Mo.—H. Griffin, who lives on the London road, near this city, has erected a greenhouse and expects eventually to have one of the most up-to-date and complete establishments in this vicinity.

New Haven, Conn.—Gustave Ginter is making preparations for the erection of a bungalow on his property on Sylvan avenue. The plans provide for a 9-room building, fitted with every convenience.

Beloit, Wis.—J. H. Farnsworth has purchased an interest in the McMaster store, in the postoffice building, and has removed his stock to it. The store, like Mr. Farnsworth's former place, will be known as the Beloit Floral Shop.

Omaha, Neb.—William J. Sanders has opened a flower store in the Loyal block. Though still a young man, Mr. Sanders has just closed eight years of continuous service in the United States navy and he made the tour around the world with the Pacific squadron. During the last year he had been assistant to the physician at the recruiting station in this city. He spent four years in the florists' business in Boston before entering the navy.

Montgomery, Ala.—The business of H. L. von Trott, heretofore conducted under the name of the Fernhill Greenhouses, now bears the name of the Morningview Floral Co. The former greenhouses, on the upper Wetumpka road, have been taken down and removed to Morningview, Capitol Heights, where they will be rebuilt, enlarged and planted with new stock. The houses will front on Evergreen street. They will probably be completed sometime in the fall.

Batavia, N. Y.—Stroh & Sons report encouraging business, to which they pay close attention.

Canandaigua, N. Y.—R. H. McKerr is rebuilding and enlarging, expecting to cover the whole available area within a short time.

Batavia, N. Y.—Paul Liebsch, in business here for thirty years, has left town, the property having been purchased for building purposes.

Buffalo, N. Y.—John B. Milley made a hit on late struck geranium cuttings, especially S. A. Nutt and Beaute Poitevine. He is in favor of chartering a special car to convey the craft from this vicinity to Baltimore.

Rochester, N. Y.—Colin Ogston, superintendent of the Kimball Conservatories and the Mitchell farm, is an active man, but hopes to join the party for the convention. His chrysanthemums are looking promising and will be seen at the fall show.

Northfield, Minn.—The Northfield Seed Co. has leased the nursery of the Northfield Nursery and Greenhouses, thereby permitting C. P. Nichols to devote his entire attention to the florists' business. He plans an early increase in glass.

Syracuse, N. Y.—Gustav Bartholme was both a busy and happy man when the writer called. He was finishing up a heavy day's work on funeral pieces and expected to commence the next day by giving away a favorite daughter in marriage and presiding at the wedding feast that would follow. They have our best wishes.

Lockport, N. Y.—Thomas Mansfield says he will be at Baltimore. What he does not know about heating, either by steam or hot water, is preciously little. A boiler maker by trade, he followed that profession for a quarter of a century, finally deciding to locate a greenhouse over a boiler in this city, where he has built up a lucrative business. He is a successful grower of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and is much interested in Glory of Cincinnati.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Charles Hewson, foreman for the William Scott Co., is a strong advocate of crocking for drainage. Willie Scott showed the writer a batch of Bostons grown in 5-inch and 6-inch pots treated this way. They were a grand lot of plants. The mums are planted late here. The idea is to plant late varieties only, owing to the houses being used for bedding stock, the demand for which has been unusually large this season. By the time the houses are overhauled, only late kinds can be planted. Early varieties are grown at Corfu.

FLORISTS' REVIEW

OUT AUGUST 17

Even larger and finer than in other years. It marks the opening of the new season. Reserve your space now.

"Every one in the Trade reads The Review; the replies to my small advertisement prove it."—W. Bay.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.

Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.

Officers for 1911: President, George Asmus, Chicago; vice-president, R. Vincent, Jr., White Marsh, Md.; secretary, H. B. Dorner, Urbana, Ill.; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo, N. Y.

Annual convention, Baltimore, Md., August 15 to 18 1911.

RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

Now is the time to advertise field-grown carnation plants—also the time to buy them.

CHEAP insurance for greenhouses: A quantity of glass bought at present prices and stored in some safe place.

NOT a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

IF I. X. L. and others, who tear off the printed heading of the paper on which they send inquiries, will sign full name and address, the questions will be carefully answered. Anonymous inquiries never can receive attention.

THE seventeenth annual exhibition of the Dutchess County Horticultural Society will be held at Poughkeepsie, N. Y., November 2 and 3. Preliminary schedules may be had by addressing Herbert C. Cottam, secretary, Wappingers Falls, N. Y.

THE secretary of the S.A.F., in sending out the 1911 badges to the members who have paid their dues, advises that no one will be admitted to the exhibition hall at the Baltimore convention unless he be a member of the S.A.F. or the Baltimore Gardeners' and Florists' Club.

MONTAGU C. ALLWOOD, who has achieved some fame in England as a carnation grower on the American system, has left Stuart Low & Co. to join his brother, George W. Allwood, who has had six years' experience in America, in growing carnations at Wivelsfield Nurseries, Hayward's Heath, Sussex.

A MEMBER of the city council at Minneapolis has introduced an ordinance restricting the location of greenhouse establishments. If the measure passes it will provide that greenhouses can be erected only by special permission of the city council and with the written consent of both aldermen of the ward in which they will be located.

REACHING THE BUYERS.

A constantly increasing number of advertisers think it would not pay them to multiply their advertising expenditure to reach the few trade buyers who do not read The Review.

We are having great success with our Silver Pink antirrhinum, and as we are using only The Review the credit must go to you.—G. S. Ramsburg, Somersworth, New Hampshire, July 29, 1911.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

There has been a marked increase in the supply since last report, but it was not until the opening of the present week that the increase in production began to affect the demand. Saturday, July 29, was one of the best midsummer days the market ever has known, though the preceding day there was a little less shipping than on other Fridays during the month. On the whole, July has been the best ever. Of course growers who were cutting little may not have found it so, but prices never were better in July and those who had something to sell reaped the harvest. Retailers did not find July especially good—sales not heavy and such stock as was acquired cost more than it usually has in July.

Asters, which have been late, have arrived in force and now dominate the market. The quality of the stock is as yet nothing to brag about, though some excellent asters grown under glass are seen. The dry weather has affected the bulk of the crop and its effects have not been wholly overcome by a few recent showers. The aster has practically displaced the carnation, though a few carnations from the old crop are still coming in, with a few from the field, and a few from the early plantings under glass.

The rains also have benefited gladioli and increased the receipts. Prices have fallen, though the quality is improved. Now that asters are abundant, gladioli are not in such strong demand.

Beauties are in light supply, but there are increased receipts of roses. Prices on roses are unchanged, but the buyer gets a better rose for his money. Killarney is the principal item in roses; more Killarneys are received, white and pink, than all other varieties combined. Several growers are cutting Killarneys of superlative quality. The White Killarney is not really white, but the pink Killarney is pinker than in a long time; no better color ever was seen. Mrs. Aaron Ward is lengthening in stem and is popular with the buyers, as is Prince de Bulgarie.

Easter lilies are once more in good supply and there continue to be plenty of auratums and rubrums. Not many sweet peas are coming in, but the arrivals include some flowers much better than those that came in before the rains.

One of the curiosities has been the absence of demand for orchids during the time that other flowers were in such keen request. Last week everything sold well, except cattleyas, some of which actually were lost for lack of a buyer at any price.

All greens are plentiful, except galax.

Wm. Wienhoeber Enters Firm.

William Wienhoeber entered the Ernst Wienhoeber Co. August 1 and will devote the future to the business.

ANOTHER BIG CROP OF BEAUTIES

GROWN BY A SUMMER BEAUTY SPECIALIST.

This week we are getting the first cut of a new crop of Beauties grown by a specialist in this flower—the same grower who has supplied the Beauties we have shipped in other seasons. Whenever this grower is in crop, these Beauties always are the best in the market. Few growers are cutting at present, but we have a large supply and they never were better. All buyers who want good Beauties, any length, should get in touch with us at once.

KILLARNEYS

Big Supply of Splendid Stock.

The quality of our Killarneys this summer is the marvel of the market—Chicago never has seen anything like so large a supply or such fine quality. We are furnishing buyers all the Killarneys they need, in any length up to 18 to 24 inches. The color is something wonderful—better than it is in winter. These roses are business-builders. Once tried, you will use no others.

Specially strong on the 6c, 8c and 10c grades.

GLADIOLI

Since a few good rains, Gladioli are much more abundant and the quality also is better, though our Gladioli left little to be desired in the matter of quality and our supply has been large right along. Mrs. Francis King (red), America (light pink), and Augusta (white). These are the three buyers want in quantity, and we have them. Note reduction in prices.

ASTERS

Asters now are in very large supply; we can furnish any color, any length, in any quantity. The quality is much improved and you can count on getting, for the rest of the season, if your orders are sent to us, all the Asters you may need for any kind of sale that comes your way.

Lilies

We can furnish Easter Lilies, Rubrums or Auratums, best quality, in any quantity.

Valley

Order Valley of us and you will draw on a never-failing source of supply.

HEADQUARTERS FOR ALL GREENS

Here you get the best Fancy Ferns, all the Smilax and Asparagus strings you want, Sprengeri and Plumosus bunches, Mexican Ivy and Galax. No order too large for our facilities and no order too small to receive our careful attention.

FANCY EASTER LILIES

While we always have been well situated to supply Lilies, this summer we are in better shape than ever before. These Lilies are grown in a cool climate, giving keeping and shipping qualities exceeding anything we ever have had in Lilies. Cut half developed, so as to reach you in perfect condition. Supply large and steady. Can furnish any quantity.

Also Choice Rubrums in Large Supply, and Auratums.

GLADIOLI in All Colors

We are prepared to furnish Augusta (white), Mrs. King (red) or America (light pink), separate colors in any quantity, or mixed unnamed varieties if wanted. This is fine stock—much better than the Glads that brought more money earlier in the season, before the recent rains. Send along your orders—you can use this stock in quantity.

Mr. Wienhoeber is the youngest son of the president of the company, who laid its foundation on Elm street, near the aristocratic Lake Shore drive, in 1877. The young man, after completing his college course, has taken a practical course in the flower business, first with a leading Pittsburg retailer and for the last year with Alex. McConnell, in New York, where the millionaires delight to trade. Mr. McConnell has spoken highly of Mr. Wienhoeber's capacity and prospects.

Testimonial to Reinberg.

Pinning a five-pointed diamond star on the coat of Alderman Peter Reinberg July 27, Mayor Harrison said: "The gold in this badge is not purer than your heart, and the gems are not more brilliant than the smile with which you greet your friends. If the people of Chicago appreciate you at your true worth as a man and as a public official you will hold a much higher office than you do now."

This was said in the presence of 250 democrats, mostly from the Twenty-sixth ward, who had gathered in the grillroom of Vogelsang's at a testimonial banquet, of which the presentation of the badge was the climax. There were many flowery speeches. J. F. McInerney caused the diners to rise en masse when he predicted that Peter Reinberg would be the next democratic governor of Illinois.

July Weather.

Taking July as a whole, the mean temperature was exactly the same as in July, 1910, but it came about through the first part of the month being much warmer than usual, with temperatures up to 102 degrees, while the latter part of the month was cooler than usual, with a minimum temperature of 53 degrees. The rainfall was only 2.65 inches, or about an inch less than the average amount. The percentage of possible sunshine was seventy-five, or just about normal.

Various Notes.

The Chicago Flower Growers' Association opened its new wholesale house on the morning of August 1. Everything was in perfect readiness and practically every buyer who visited the market called at the new establishment to inspect its facilities and receive the glad hand from Manager Frese and the directors of the institution, who acted as a reception committee. There were smokes and much good-fellowship. It is said that the first order received by the company came from C. P. Mueller, Wichita, Kan., and the first consignment from Wellworth Farms, Downers Grove, Ill. An enthusiastic meeting of the stockholders was held Monday afternoon, July 31.

Paul M. Bryant says C. M. Dickinson captured a 25-pound muskie at Pelican lake last week.

A circular has been issued by the Monon railroad, over the signature of George Asmus, president of the S. A. F., descriptive of the route of the President's Special to the convention, as adopted by the Florists' Club. All the rates quoted in the circular require the excursionists to go to Norfolk, Va., before returning. It develops that the rate of $30 to New York and return, with stopover at Baltimore, does not apply via Cincinnati.

The Rising Eastern Market.

Asters and gladioli are increasing in numbers, as well as some of the other flowers. The total quantity is about the same as it has been for the last fortnight. There is a moderate amount of business; supply and demand are balanced fairly evenly.

The aster is the principal flower. Ostrich Plume has come. While there are a few fine asters of this variety, and of Queen of the Market, most of the stock is classed as ordinary. Gladioli are good. America leads, followed by May, Augusta and the red. Some new crop Beauties have come. They are welcome. Maryland and Kaiserin are the leading roses. Good sweet peas from New York state are more numerous. Cattleyas are scarce. Easter lilies are in demand, and some days there are not enough to go around. There is no change in valley. Greens continue dull.

Club Meeting.

President Heacock called a large meeting to order, Tuesday evening, August 1. The club decided to take the Royal Blue train on the Baltimore & Ohio, leaving Twenty-fourth and Chestnut streets at 10:17 Tuesday morning, August 15, arriving in Baltimore at 12:16, in good time for the opening of the S. A. F. convention. Excursion tickets, $4. A special car for the club members will be attached to the train at Philadelphia, where Chairman Westcott will dispense hospitality. All going to the convention are cordially invited to join the party. No hotel headquarters were officially chosen. The bowling team will be: D. T. Connor, captain; John H. The Philadelphia Bulwark.

I have often wondered whether florists generally understand what makes a successful greenhouse business, a business that can be depended upon to produce good returns year after year. I did not understand it myself until the necessity arose for studying the varying conditions that surround each grower's establishment, in order to write about them intelligently. It is apparent to the newspaper man of today that the shipping business of Philadelphia is growing in supplies, in seeds, in cut flowers, in plants. It is also apparent that success today requires quite as much ability, in a different way, as in former years. It is also apparent that there are more failures, because in the old days pretty much everybody succeeded more or less.

The foundation of the success of the plant business lies in the ability to produce at a reasonable price a regular supply of plants on which dependence may be placed. This calls for a combination of cultural skill, business sagacity, reliability and entire freedom from the American tendency to speculate. The reward is the confidence and respect of the profession and a certain income, superior to that which can be obtained from any kindred pursuit.

A fair example of what I mean may be found at Holmesburg in Charles D. Ball. Mr. Ball built three greenhouses, each 26x100, in 1879. Through perseveringly keeping to his purpose and through his ability, he has made the product of his nineteen greenhouses the standard of quality in palms all over the country. His stock is known and valued by one or more florists in many cities outside of Philadelphia, who feel that season after season they can depend upon him for their best palms.

An hour spent with Mr. Ball in his greenhouses brought out even more strongly than usual the strength of the kentia; it seemed that nine out of every ten plants grown here belonged to that family. In numbers Kentia Forsteriana is increasing at the expense of Kentia Belmoreana, because it is believed to produce better made-up plants in the small size—that is, the 6-inch size—and in the extra large decorative size, while Kentia Belmoreana is better in the medium sizes. Great care is exercised to keep up the proper number of each size in both these varieties of kentias, not only for this year but for next year and for the year after that.

Areca lutescens, grown in the cool kentia temperature, has a grace and finish that seems to assure its future popularity for many years to come. Cocos Weddelliana germinates better sown in pots under the table than on the table, a labor-saving device that speaks well for care in watering. Phœnix Roebelenii is pretty, but Mr. Ball doubts whether it will rival the leaders in popularity, as it grows slowly. Pandanus Veitchii, from own stock, holds its place. There was a pretty batch of Dracæna terminalis, and a smaller one of Dracæna Sanderiana. The ferns are represented by Nephrolepis Scottii and Scholzeli and the fernery sorts are mostly of pteris blood. Latania Borbonica from Brazilian seed promises finer stock a year hence than can be obtained from the old Cuban seed. Livistona rotundifolia was absent; there is something better in sight for some day.

Mr. Ball nodded when asked whether his son was taking an interest; presently Charles D. Ball, Jr., was encountered hard at work on a lot of splendidly finished palms that would do credit to anyone. Fred Vith, who has been with Mr. Ball for ever so many years, stopped long enough from work to give a pleasant greeting.

A new Lord & Burnham house, 26x100, has this spring replaced one of the three houses built thirty-two years ago. It is in marked contrast with the six by eight glass and heavy sashbars of the two remaining old-timers. A gutter on the outside of this house admits of a new propagating house filling the intervening space.

Various Notes.

The S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co. has purchased the property at 1216 H street N. W., in Washington. It is approximately 24x100 feet and the company probably will build on this ground next summer, carrying on its Washington business in the present New York avenue store until the lease expires, September 1, 1912. The new building will have every modern facility for the wholesale cut flower business.

Rowland C. Hayden, treasurer of the Philadelphia Cut Flower Co., is enjoying a let-up in business activity at Cape May, N. J., with his family.

J. G. Poat, of Poat Bros., bulb growers at Highland Park, Richmond, Va., sailed for Europe last week to visit Guernsey, one of the Channel islands, where his firm is an extensive grower of fruit and vegetables under glass for use in the principal cities of Europe.

The Keller Pottery Co., Norristown, Pa., has installed two new kilns in readiness for the fall demand.

Miss Evans is seen once more at Edward Reid's, radiant from her trip to New York state.

Julius Wolff, Jr., gave a party to his employees and some of their friends near the greenhouses of Louis Couche, at Seventy-second and Haverford streets, July 27. There were refreshments and a good game of ball. Among those present were Jack Winter, William Dunning, Al Thomas, Joe Cannon, Adolph Zell, Adolph Rueger, Carl Klemm, Fritz Beerface, Thomas Fargrave, Frank Ulrick, Julius Wolff, Jr., Earl Wolff, Martin Gannon, Paul R. Klingsporn, Ralph Shregley, Richard Umstead, Barney McGoldrick, George Auegel, Norman Wolff, mascot; spectators, M. Rice, two mules and a horse.

Frank M. Ross has purchased the West Philadelphia property at 13 South Sixtieth street, where his store is located.

The Market.

The conditions of the market last week were somewhat better. The few showers and the cooler weather made stock of all kinds look much better. The demand, too, was improved, owing partly to large orders for funeral work for several prominent people. The funeral of Mayor Kreisman's mother created a great demand for fancy stock.

Gladioli are coming in heavily now in all varieties, with America as the favorite and the top price $8 per hundred. Asters are arriving more freely and will soon be plentiful enough to take the place of carnations, which have been extremely scarce for the last six weeks. A nice lot of outdoor roses are coming in, with white and pink Cochets in the lead. Hardy hydrangeas and tuberose stalks are rather scarce, as is

A Visit to Belleville.

On Wednesday, July 26, W. C. Smith, W. J. Pilcher and J. J. Beneke spent the day visiting the Belleville florists. The party called first on the St. Clair Floral Co. and was received by A. S. Halstead. After this well kept plant had been inspected, Mr. Halstead put his large touring car into commission and took the visitors to E. W. Guy's place. From there, in company with Mr. Guy, the party went to A. G. Fehr's place. Gust Grossart's was the next stopping place and then the West End Floral Park, of which Henry Emunds is proprietor.

At all these places everything was found in good shape for the coming fall season. The St. Clair Floral Co. had all its carnations and chrysanthemums planted and they looked well. Mr. Guy had not started planting, but his field stock looked healthy. Mr. Fehr was busy getting ready for planting and for the building of two more houses. Mr. Grossart, who grows a little of everything, had his houses in excellent shape. At the West End Floral Park Mr. Emunds showed the visitors several remarkably fine houses of chrysanthemums. All complained, of course, of the long dry spell and the constant watering that had been necessary to keep the plants alive. In spite of this, Belleville will be well supplied with cut stock this fall and winter.

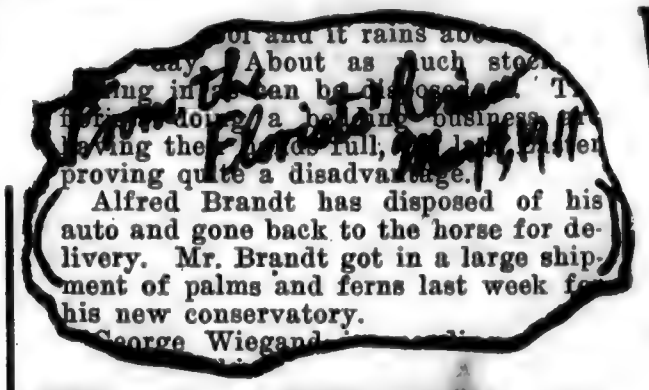
After a tour of the city, inspecting all points of interest, the visitors were taken to the Elks' club room for dinner, as guests of A. S. Halstead. Then the St. Louis party left for home, with pleasant memories of the hospitalities of the Belleville florists.

Various Notes.

F. J. Farney, representing M. Rice & Co., Philadelphia, reports a good business here for last week.

Mrs. John Steidle, president of the Ladies' Home Circle, says that the next meeting of the lady florists will be held at Chautauqua in September, in honor of Miss Matilda Meinhardt, their secretary, who will have returned from her trip to Europe by that time. A full attendance is expected on this occasion.

Julius Dilhoff, representing the Schloss Bros. ribbon house, New York city, was here last week, calling on the trade.



State Vice-president Fred H. Weber, of the S. A. F., was out booming the Baltimore meeting last week. He has quite a few names on his list for the trip and expects to have a complete list of those who are going by August 10.

The election of the three-year term trustees of the Florists' Club will be a lively contest. The candidates, J. F. Ammann and Frank A. Weber, are both confident of success.

President Sanders and Secretary Windler say there will be an important meeting of the Retail Florists' Association on Monday, August 14. Quite a few names will be presented for membership.

David Geddes, of the Ayers Floral Co., says that the improvements have been completed in the workroom and show house. All the heating system has been renovated and they are now ready for the opening of the season.

The Market.

With the advent of another spell of warm weather, business became more quiet again after a short busy time.

Stock is greatly improved in quality; roses and asters, especially, are better than a week ago. The supply is also not so limited and indications are that there will be no more trouble on this score this season.

Gladioli are coming in quantity and are of good quality.

Various Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Bissinger, of Lansing, were in the city Monday, July 31, to attend the outing to Peche Island.

Miss Julia Dreher, of W. B. Brown's staff, has just returned from a long vacation.

Most of the downtown retail florists closed their stores Monday afternoon, July 31, in order to enable their employees to attend the outing given by the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange. This never before happened in this city as far back as the writer can remember, but there is no reason why a flower store can not close for a half day once during the year, when grocers and butchers do it.

Hubert Pearce, proprietor of the Detroit Cut Flower Supply House, has been confined to his home for many weeks with a severe attack of rheumatism. After nearly three weeks in bed, Mr. Pearce is now able to get about on crutches and is confident that he will soon be back in his office.

What remains of the greenhouses occupied for the last thirty years by Stephen Taplin, at Twenty-fourth street and Fort street, west, is being removed. Mr. Taplin's sons, who have been running the establishment for some time, have gone out of business. About thirty-five years ago the houses belonged to Ferrand & Osborne, Mr. Taplin being manager. Later they were sold to Hubbard & Davis; then Mr. Davis acquired sole ownership, and about thirty years ago Mr. Taplin, who was still manager, bought out Mr. Davis.

On Monday, July 31, the florists of Detroit and vicinity, with their friends, spent a most enjoyable afternoon as the guests of the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange. At 2 p. m. the party boarded the beautiful new steamer, St. Claire, and were taken on a trip up and down the river. Dancing and refreshments added to the pleasure. In all, there must have been fully 500 people on board. The weather was ideal. Among the party were A. Miller and President H. E. Philpott, of the Chicago Florists' Club.

The conservatory and greenhouses at the residence of the late O. Scotton are being torn down. Harry Pickworth, now with Asman & Dunn, was gardener for many years at Mr. Scotton's.

On Monday evening, August 7, the annual election of officers of the Detroit Florists' Club will take place. Every member is urged to attend this meeting, as much of importance, besides the election, is on the program.

Thursday, July 27, B. Schroeter celebrated his seventieth birthday. Mr. Schroeter does not show his age; in fact, he is the first and last man on the job every day in the year, and has just commenced the erection of a beautiful new store and conservatory at 56 Broadway.

Wm. Starret, of the Kenneth Anderson Co., together with his wife, spent a most enjoyable afternoon at the Michigan Cut Flower Exchange outing to Peche Island.

Mrs. J. F. Sullivan had to undergo another operation last Friday, but is now resting much more easily and her speedy recovery is hoped for. H. S.

NEW BEDFORD, MASS.

The Market.

Flowers are a little more plentiful owing to the recent rains, and asters are coming in regularly and show a steady improvement in quality. Carnations are small and will soon be thrown out to make room for the young stock from the fields. Roses are quite good for this time of the year and sweet peas are blooming freely on account of the rain. Some of the growers are benching their young carnations and the stock looks fine. Funeral work is good and uses up lots of short-stemmed stock.

The retail prices are as follows: Asters, 35 to 50 cents per dozen; carnations, 35 cents; roses, $1 to $1.50; sweet peas, 50 cents per hundred; gladioli, $1 per dozen.

Various Notes.

We are having unsettled weather, with lots of rain.

Vacations are now the order of the day and early closing is the rule.

The Market.

Cool weather with an abundance of rain has done wonders with vegetation in general, and conditions are about normal once more after the drought of early July. Gradually the supply of cut flowers is becoming equal to the demand. Asters are coming into the market in great quantities and are used for all occasions, but especially for funeral work, as they can be put to such varied use in design work and are most satisfactory flowers for clusters.

Roses are much better. Killarneys are rich in color and firm of stem and retail for $1, $1.50 and $2, while specials bring $2.50. Marylands are not quite so good, but bring the same price, while Richmonds are only fair and retail for $1 and $1.50 per dozen. Kaiserins are fine at present, much better than White Killarney or Bride roses. Beauties are just fair and go at $3 and $4 per dozen. Sweet peas are still quite scarce and poor in quality. They have been higher in price this year than for many years previous, for in midsummer they are selling at 25 cents per bunch, or $1 per hundred. Valley is good and retails at $6 per hundred. Gladioli are coming much better now and in choicer variety, but the quantity is still on the minus side. Coreopsis, cornflowers, mignonette, phlox, helianthus, gaillardias and scabiosa are more plentiful this week, but carnations have almost disappeared.

There is little call for asparagus and adiantum just now.

All through the summer there has been a big demand for flowering plants, but the local dealers had nothing but gloxinias, hydrangeas and a few potted pink lilies to offer. Bedding plants are still being sold occasionally.

Trade in general has become stagnant, but took a few spasmodic spurts during the month. Part of the working force in the stores is painting vases and stands and renovating in general in preparation for the fall trade.

WIND STORM AT PEMBROKE, N. Y.

Arthur A. Kirchhoff, of the W. E. Kirchhoff Co., gladiolus specialists, reports under date of July 25 that Pembroke and surrounding towns had been at the mercy of a great wind storm since the preceding morning. The storm, he says, did considerable damage to all outdoor stock, such as sweet peas, asters and gladioli, and also broke considerable glass. At the greenhouses of the Kirchhoff Co. two ventilating sashes were torn from their fastenings and a number of lights of glass were broken. Sweet peas, which were then at their best, Mr. Kirchhoff says, were HENRY FIELD has returned to Shenandoah, Ia., after a three weeks' vacation.

ADVICES state that the first large shipment of the 1911 crop of French bulbs left Marseilles July 7.

IT is stated that up to July 10 just 600 cases of this year's bulb crop had left Japan, mostly consigned to Europe.

THE drought is hurting the crop of gladiolus bulbs. America promises to be in short supply for the next season's demand.

J. O. TOLAND, the seedsman of Humboldt, Ill., is replacing his old seed house with a new, modern building, 28x60 feet and consisting of two stories and a basement.

EDWIN A. KING, referee in the bankruptcy case of Josiah L. Young, Troy, N. Y., has filed his report and is prepared to declare a first dividend to creditors. A meeting for that purpose will be held August 7.

THE new warehouse for the Texas Seed & Floral Co., at Dallas, is rapidly approaching completion and will probably be ready by September 15. The building is located at the corner of Hawkins street and Pacific avenue. It is entirely of con-

One of the New York bulb importers says the crop of Formosa bulbs is short on small sizes and long on large bulbs. This is just the opposite of what one would expect.

It is stated that Isaac Bunting, the London bulb merchant, is shipping from his Japan branch lily bulbs to the United States for Von Zonneveld Bros. & Philippo, packed in larger cases and of heavier weight. It will be interesting to note how the bulbs will stand the long journey. Small cases have been thought advisable, owing to the danger of rot if too many bulbs were packed in one case.

The Rudy-Patrick Seed Co., Kansas City, announcement of the incorporation of which was made in the last issue, is formed to succeed the Frank Rudy Seed Co. The officers are: President, Howard S. Patrick; vice-president and treasurer, Frank Rudy; secretary, John W. Miller. Mr. Rudy, before locating at Kansas City, was engaged in the seed business at Paolo, Kan. Messrs. Patrick, Miller and Edwards have been connected with the J. G. Peppard Seed Co. for twenty-four, twenty and ten years, respectively, and Mr. Patrick has been vice-president since its incorporation.

OLDS' GROWTH.

The L. L. Olds Seed Co. has almost tripled its business since removing from Clinton, Wis., to Madison, Wis., the turnover in the last year amounting to $241,165.12, an increase of twenty-five per cent as compared with the previous year. During the last season retail business from mail orders amounted to $92,906.42, an increase of nine per cent. The store sales reached $14,624.15, an increase of twenty-two per cent, and the wholesale business amounted to $133,634.57, an increase of forty per cent. The record of sales for the last three years is as follows:

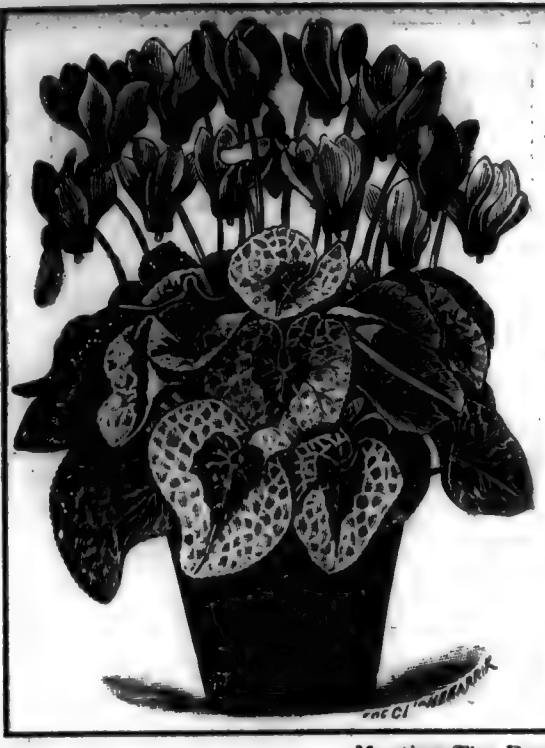
ST. DAVIDS HARRISII.

The following is from the Royal Gazette, published at Hamilton, Bermuda, dated July 22:

"Market wharf certainly presented a scene of activity for a short time towards its 'Daisy end' Thursday morning last, shortly after 7 o'clock. First of all came the Daisy from St. Davids loaded up or down, just as you choose to call it, with an extraordinarily choice assortment of Lilium Harrisii bulbs from 5s to beyond extras in size and in appearance, they said, never to have been surpassed. These bulbs were from St. Davids island, where we understand some very good as well as very bad lilies have been raised this season, for parties at the West End. Some few weeks ago we asked one of the growers concerning the lily crop on St. Davids for this season and he replied that it was awfully bad, but the bulbs seen this morning looked certainly good."

TENERIFFE ONION SEED.

One of the largest growers of onion seeds on the Island of Teneriffe makes the following report:



"The present season will show no better stand than in 1910. We have had more rains, but these came late and the plants generally will not have their seed heads fully matured before July 15 to 20. The yield, on the whole, will turn out short, and specially of the White Crystal Wax variety.

"About one-third of the crop of Bermuda onion seed is raised in a certain district well adapted to this crop, and it is here that fine looking fields early in May have been severely injured by strong winds and disease. It is so serious, indeed, that many fields looked as if they had been set on fire with kerosene. Everywhere black, yellowish, headless stalks may be seen for a long distance. I estimate the loss of Crystal White Wax, and the other varieties in the infested district, to be no less than fifty to sixty per cent of the expected crop before disease made an appearance.

"The most conservative and approximate figures I can give on this year's seed production are as follows:

White Crystal Wax	4,000 lbs.
White Bermuda	23,000 lbs.
Red Bermuda	7,000 lbs.

"This seed will not all go to American growers, for at least fifteen per cent will be exported to other smaller onion growing countries. Considering that last year American growers used over 50,000 pounds of Bermuda onion seeds, and that demand will be this fall somewhere around 45,000 pounds, it is natural to presume that many onion growers will be short of seeds, and consequently, the general Texas Bermuda onion crop in 1912 will be smaller, with correspondingly higher prices.''

OMAHA.

Club Outing.

The Omaha Florists' Club held its fourteenth annual picnic July 27, afternoon and evening, at Courtland beach. This was one of the most successful and well attended picnics in the club's history. The weather was fine. The bowling match between Omaha and Council Bluffs was interesting, with teams of ten men on each side. Two games were played. The first the Bluffs won and the second the Omahas. The Bluffs had a few pins in their favor. Time did not permit the third game. Amusements of various kinds were engaged in. The girls' race was won by Miss Soranson, and the boys' race by Perry Fallis. A fine lunch was served, with ice cream and other refreshments, all going home at a late hour with pleasant thoughts of a fine and sociable time.

Various Notes.

Flowers are of poor quality and not plentiful on account of the hot and dry weather. Hardly any of the outdoor flowers are available. The demand for flowers is mostly for funerals.

The florists are having their vacation at home in the shade, some fixing up their greenhouses, while others may be off to some mountain resort.

L. Henderson has remodeled and painted his store and others are about to do the same.

P. Floth is rebuilding some greenhouses.

Hess & Swoboda have made many improvements at their greenhouses, adding a range of new houses.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Lang, of Chicago, were visitors in Omaha last week, coming through from a three weeks' trip from the mountains of Colorado, Denver and Manitou. L. H.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

Now the aster dominates the market. Next, it will be the gladiolus. In fact, already shoals of both, especially the aster, are arriving. These, and the water lilies, make up the window exhibits, backed as usual by a grand variety of ferns, from Bostons to cibotiums. The supply of roses and carnations is short and of good stock there is comparatively none. The new stock of these is limited and this is fortunate, for there is practically no demand. For the best grade of American Beauties 25 cents appears to be top. A few top-notch Killarney bring 4 to 5 cents each. There is little of the surplus on the street, most of the venders having departed for the summer resorts.

The orchid supply is sufficient for all requirements and there is no change in prices, 50 to 60 cents being the limit for the selected gigas. The price of George Orth and wife have returned from three weeks at the Highlands. Matty Kassner will spend two weeks at Albany; Eve Lawson, at Asbury Park, and Miss Conklin, the bookkeeper, returns from a four weeks' sojourn in the Catskills.

Wm. T. Iler, of E. C. Horan's, has returned from a three weeks' stay at Mt. Marion, near Kingston, N. Y. Charles Matthews left July 29 for a two weeks' stay at Lake Huntington.

Mr. Furderman, of the force of Gunther Bros., spends his week ends at Sag Harbor, while the principals of this house find much daily recreation, as do many of the sedate veterans of the wholesale section, at the ball grounds.

Messrs. Bradshaw and Logan, of J. K. Allen's force, left July 31 for a two weeks' vacation. Miss Smedley, the bookkeeper, spent a week at Atlantic City during the Elks' convention.

Mr. Russin, of Russin & Hanfling, is with his family for a few weeks at a Catskill mountain resort.

Wm. Sullivan, with Siebrecht & Siebrecht, spent two weeks of his holidays at Rockaway. George Siebrecht was the helmsman on the motor boat Caroline, which won the great ocean race last week and the Hearst cup and $1,500. Walter Siebrecht is suffering from an attack of malaria.

Mr. Beauplan, of the Forster Mansfield Co., is on a pleasure trip to Newport on his yacht, the Chanticler.

Charles Miller, of W. F. Sheridan's, has returned from his vacation at Rockaway and Robert Monroe, the bookkeeper, has gone to the Catskills.

Edward Aucker, of Traendly & Schenck's, is at the seashore, and Thomas Martin, the lieutenant, and Miss Hultberg, the bookkeeper, leave August 15 for two weeks' vacation.

Clarence Saltford and family will holiday at Perth Amboy, N. J.

Patrick Donegan, of M. C. Ford's, left July 27 for Saratoga. Charles

There are over one hundred varieties and grades of rice grown in Japan. The difference in quality is very great, but how much does your Grocer know about rice? Now, if a salesman came to you to sell Mining Stock you would likely want to know something about the mine, where it was, how much per ton the raw material was worth, the cost of producing it at the market place, etc. But if a bulb salesman offered you Japan bulbs, you would never think to ask him what part of Japan they come from, how the fields look, or anything about them. Funny, isn't it. Well, the fact is, not one out of ten knows anything about it. With them "pigs is pigs" and "bulbs is bulbs" and the lower the selling price, the better for them. However, there is a difference in lily bulbs and that difference has cost many a grower more than he realizes or cares to admit—and all is due to his anxiety to save a penny the wrong way. The best Giganteum produced today are labeled Horseshoe Brand. They are incidentally about the best lily bulbs any man could buy. Don't believe what we say about them because we know about them and you don't—so try them—that's the way to tell—and compare your profits. Write for prices.

Lilium Harrisii

(The Bermuda Easter Lily)

LET US SUPPLY YOUR WANTS IN LILIES THIS SEASON

We think we can make it to your advantage to do so, as regards both quality and price.

The stock that we offer is not gathered indiscriminately from all kinds of sources, but is grown for us by a few selected growers whose stocks have been worked up from the true, original stock. In order to insure the health of the product, the bulbs are not grown on the same field oftener than one season, other crops being grown on the field the preceding year. The ground is thoroughly manured when the previous crop is grown, leaving it in a high state of cultivation, and when the lily bulbs are planted no fresh manure is used; this prevents disease and insures a crop of strong, healthy bulbs.

In addition to this, we do not dig our bulbs as early as they are usually dug, but leave them in the ground until they are thoroughly ripened and matured. When Harrisii is good it leaves little to be desired. There is very little, if any, stock obtainable as good as the stock that we are offering. We are supplying only this one grade of selected stock and when this is disposed of we shall have no more to offer.

While the quality of the stock that we offer is of the highest, our prices are as low as, or lower than, the prices of those who offer the ordinary stock gathered from indiscriminate sources. We are sure buyers will find our stock very satisfactory, and much more so than the Japan-grown Longiflorum, which has badly deteriorated in recent years.

Bear in mind that we were the original introducers of Harrisii in Bermuda, and that we have exceptional facilities for obtaining our present supplies. Also take note that the smallest bulbs that we offer are 6-7 inch bulbs, not 5-7 inch, as usually offered.

6- 7 inch bulbs, 350 to the case, $15.00 per case; full thousand lots, $ 40.00 per 1000
7- 9 inch bulbs, 200 to the case, 16.00 per case; full thousand lots, 75.00 per 1000
9-11 inch bulbs, 100 to the case, 18.00 per case; full thousand lots, 175.00 per 1000

FERNS

We have an exceptionally nice lot of ferns in the following varieties – good, bushy, well-grown plants that will please the most critical buyers. Plants have been grown in pots and are thoroughly well established and nicely finished.

Nephrolepis Bostoniensis and Piersoni, 6-inch pots . . . . . $0.50 each Nephrolepis Elegantissima, Piersoni, Bostoniensis and Harrisii, heavy 8-inch plants . $1.00 to 1.50 each
